SWING THRILLS INTO LINE FOR JUBILEE MARCH

Lights and Colors to Blaze in Parade.

Invited to Jubilee

A Wisconsin Legion band and drum corps were honored yesterday when at a meeting of the coordinating committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, planning the Chicago Jubilee May 10 to 16, the Electric Post American Legion band of Milwaukee and the Racine Legion drum corps were invited to participate in the grand parade which will pass down Michigan boulevard Monday night, May 11, opening the festive program.

The band twice has been first place winner at the national Legion convention and the drum corps has won this coveted position five times. In addition to this ranking, the Racine post won first place last summer in the adult division of the drum corps contest in the Chicagoland music festival, conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 27 associated newspapers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa and Michigan.

W. C. Calvert, executive secretary of the North Central association, was among forty business men present at the first meeting of the coördinating committee of the Chicago Jubilee yesterday in the offices of the Association of Commerce.

There was outlining of parades, of choral singing, of pyrotechnics, military pageants, yacht regattas, and neighborhood carnivals.

"I'm afraid we've lost one of the outstanding features of the Jubilee parade," said F. J. Ashley, chairman of the committee. "Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, says it will be impossible to use the army searchlights. That battery of beacons, would have been an inspiring to the crowds."

Mr. Calvert Solves Problem.

Mr. Calvert quietly asked why the beacons could not be used.

Mr. Ashley mentioned mechanical difficulties. The gasoline engines supplying motive power to the beacon carriages also supplied the current for the lights, he explained. Hence the beacons could not be lighted and move in the parade at the same time.

"I say they can be used in the parade," declared Mr. Calvert. "If Gen. Parker can't do it, I can. I'll get a couple of tractors—hire them myself, if necessary—and we'll pull the beacon trucks by tractor power, saving the truck engines to supply the current."

That settled the beacon question. Mr. Ashley promptly designated Mr. Calvert a committee of one to see that the beacons played a part in the parade.

Poster Question Settled.

Some one brought up the question of posters. G. Ray Schaeffer, advertising manager of Marshall Field & Co., averred that hundreds of merchants through the city would be happy to display Jubilee posters and that thousands of motorists would be equally anxious to carry Jubilee emblems on their cars.

"But it's commercializing," objected Mr. Ashley. "We've been pestered by commercial houses trying to sell us such schemes."

"It's nothing of the sort," retorted Mr. Schaeffer. "Where's the commercialization when the merchants and motorists want to help advertise this Jubilee? Now, let's get those posters and emblems out tomorrow."

Colors: Orange and Blue.

It was agreed. Mr. Ashley surmised using orange and blue as the colors not alone for the poster but for all decorations on stores, public buildings, in parks and elsewhere during the Jubilee.

As representative of one of the great downtown stores, Mr. Schaeffer was asked what the State street council was contributing to the Jubilee. He had plenty to tell the meeting.

"For one thing the council, Mr. Schaeffer said, in a meeting concurrent with the coördinating committee's meeting, had voted a substantial appropriation for decorating State street and had elected Leon Mandel of Mandel Bros. as chairman of a co-operative Jubilee committee.

Statement from Mr. Mandel.

Later Mr. Mandel issued the following statement:

"The State Street council will cooperate heartily with the Association

Seven of North Side Family Terrorized.

Four masked gunmen took possession of the home of I. M. Bailen, 913 Galt avenue, early last evening and, after terrorizing seven members of the household with threats of death, escaped with a small amount of cash and jewelry and furs valued at more than $18,000.

I. M. BAILEN.

During the afternoon a richer haul in gems was made by prowlers who entered the home of Charles L. Krum, 2600 Lake View avenue, while members of the family were absent. Mr. Krum, who is president of the Morkrum company, manufacturers of teletyping apparatus now in use by the Chicago police department, reported the burglars had taken his wife's diamond necklace, valued at $20,000, and a number of other articles that raised the total loot to more than $25,000.

Robbers Lie in Wait.

The robbers at the home of Bailen, who is president of Miller & Co., furriers at 616 South Michigan avenue and 166 North Michigan, hid in a hallway until I. Miller, a nephew of Bailen, arrived. They surrounded Miller as he was opening the front door and went in with him. In the apartment, which is on the second floor of a three flat building, were Mrs. Bailen, her 10 year old daughter, and two maids.

Miller, the maids and the child were compelled to lie on the floor in a rear hallway. There two of the robbers guarded them while the others kept Mrs. Bailen in the living room and threatened to shoot her unless she told them where she kept her jewelry.

Miller Is Seized.

When she complied with their demands the bandits had one of the maids lead them to the places she mentioned. While the collection of the gems was in progress Miller, accompanied by his chauffeur, entered the house. The bandits took $60 from the fur merchant and then sent him and the chauffeur to join the other prisoners in the rear hallway.

Mrs. Bailen said that the loot included three bracelets valued at $4,500, $3,500 and $2,500; rings valued at $4,000 and $2,700, and a $950 fur coat.

In the Krum burglary the thieves entered only one bedroom, that of Mrs. Krum, where they found the jewelry in a specially constructed closet drawer. Finger print experts from the detective bureau examined the drawer, but announced a belief that the prowlers wore gloves. Apparently they had picked a lock to enter the apartment, which is in the Marlborough apartment hotel.

STOLEN LOVE OF TINY WIFE WINS MIDGET $10,000

Los Angeles, April 28.—[Special.]—John B. Fox, circus midget known as "Major Fox," won a $10,000 verdict against Jesse J. Coombs, novelty manufacturer, by a default judgement in Superior Judge Marshall McComb's court. In his complaint Fox asserted that Coombs had stolen the love of Mrs. Nona Fox, midget like her husband, but taller than the Major's 3 feet 6 inches. Fox charged that Coombs eloped with Mrs. Fox. Major Fox has to take care of his 6 year old daughter, Nona, who his somewhat larger than her father, and asserts he has little time for circus work. The daughter was born to Mrs. Fox by a Cassarian operation, and is of normal size. Mrs. Fox did not appear at the hearing.

Cafe Proprietor Shot by Wife During Quarrel

THE LOST SPIRIT

POLICEMAN AND ROBBER SHOT IN CAFE GUN BATTLE

Detective Charles Kelly, assigned to the detective bureau, stopped on his way home to visit his brother William in the latter's restaurant at 4746 Harrison street early this morning. While they and three other men were chatting a robber walked in, pointed a gun at the restaurant man, and demanded his money. Detective Kelly started to draw his own pistol and the bandit opened fire. Kelly returned the fire and both men fell wounded, the detective with two bullets in the left shoulder and the holdup man with one in the leg. Other policemen were summoned. They took Kelly to the Robert Burns hospital and the wounded robber to the Bridewell hospital. At the bureau of identification he was identified as William Collins, who a few years ago lived at 1608 West 16th street.

Whether the government paid too much for the so-called Marshall Field postoffice site, which it has abandoned for an air rights site, was the subject of dispute in testimony yesterday at a hearing in the federal building before a senate subcommittee. Senator John J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.], chairman of the committee formed to investigate postal sites and leases, was the only senator present.

SENATOR BLAINE.

There was testimony purporting to show that the 1928 assessed valuation of the site was $4.55 a square foot, whereas the government paid an average price of $17.50 a square foot. Henry C. Geisler, an appraiser for the interstate commerce commission, estimated that the purchase price of $4,425,000 was $1,900,000 more than a fair market price.

Paid More, Says Simpson.

However, James Simpson, chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co., testified that the cost of his company's share of the Field site, which was sold to the government for $3,900,000, was in excess of $4,000,000, taking into consideration taxes paid and interest at 6 per cent.

Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals for the Cook county board of assessors, told of the $4.55 a square foot valuation. He was questioned by Senator Blaine as follows:

Q.—Did you make an appraisal of the so-called Marshall Field site, bounded by Polk, Harrison, Clinton, and Canal streets? A.—The appraisal was made, but there was no assessment because the property was exempt from taxation after it was sold to the government.

Q.—Do you have the figures on that appraisal? A.—Not with me, but they are available at the county clerk's office.

Says It Was Cash Value.

Q.—I have here a memorandum purporting to show that the appraisal was $4.55 a square foot, taking into consideration the entire 222,000 square feet. Is that your recollection? A.—I believe that is about right.

Q.—In your opinion, was that the

DORAN SAYS 208 DIED DURING WINTER FROM POISONOUS DRINKS

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—The number of deaths from poisonous wood alcohol and synthetic methanol last winter was placed today at 208 by the bureau of industrial alcohol.

In addition, the bureau said more than 200 other deaths were believed due to drinking similar liquids, mostly in the form of anti-freeze solutions or speakeasy products.

Commissioner Doran said an extensive investigation which disclosed these conditions had been under way for months.

Many of the victims were said to have succumbed after drinking anti-freeze solutions made from synthetic methanol. Hardy drinkers, it was said, often had survived the anti-freeze solutions made from completely denatured alcohol manufactured under government formula and containing between 4 and 10 per cent of wood alcohol.

When they unwittingly purchased the solution made from non-government formula methapol, often containing as high as 76 per cent of wood alcohol, it was said, the drink proved almost instantly fatal, preceded by paralysis of the optic nerve and body convulsions.

REPORT BROWDER SEIZED; POLICE CHIEF DENIES IT

Louisville, Ky., April 29.—(AP)—M. Rey Yarberry, chief of detectives, said early today he knew "nothing about it" when asked concerning a report that Roy Browder, alias Burgess, was under arrest here. Officers at the police station said he was not held there.

Browder is sought as a suspect in the slaying of George "Big" Perry, at South Bend, Ind., who was identified by Mrs. Myrtle Blackidge, Chicago, as the man who engineered a $50,000 faro swindle.

Brower and Roscoe Reynolds, alleged associates of Perry in the swindle, have been sought for questioning concerning the slaying of Perry. Browder has a police record here.

The fact that Yarberry talked with South Bend police by telephone led to the belief that Browder was under surveillance, but the report he had been captured could not be confirmed.

LAMB IN PLANE JAMS CONTROL; FALL KILLS FLYER

Spokane, Wash., April 28.—(AP)—A department of commerce inspector today said Thomas D. Stimson, millionaire Seattle aviator, crashed to his death Sunday after a lamb he was carrying jammed the controls by sticking its nose into the hole through which the control stick entered the cabin.

Flames Trap 24 Workers; 10 Are Injured

Gladewater, Tex., April 28.—(AP)—Fourteen men were killed today when the wild Sinclair No. 1 Cole oil well, two miles from here, exploded from a spark caused by friction.

Ten others were injured, five probably fatally. Most of the injured were removed to a hospital at Longview.

Tom Cole, part owner of the well, said he saw a spark caused by the friction of lowering tools into the well. He turned to run for his life, but got only a few feet away before the explosion dashed him to the ground, searing his back and head.

Tonight nine bodies still lay about the flaming pyre, with all available ambulances employed in removing the injured men to Gladewater and Longview.

Well Comes in Unexpectedly.

The well was brought in unexpectedly early yesterday, a gusher of an estimated capacity of 30,000 barrels a day, and out of control from the instant the petroleum spouted over the top of the derrick.

A disaster was narrowly averted then. Oil field roustabouts dashed for engines and quenched fires in the vicinity.

For a time gas spread over such a wide expanse that tank builders waiting to erect containers for the spouting oil could approach no nearer than a quarter of a mile. With the valuable oil spouting wildly over the ground, an effort was made late today to curb the gusher.

The drilling crew was making an effort to regain tools left in the hole when the oil began to flow. In an effort a spark was caused by friction.

Bodies Lie in Flaming Oil.

Bodies of five of the victims snatched from the edge of the flaming oil pool about the well were brought to Gladewater. Nine bodies could be seen in the seething inferno, which spread over an area of more than 300 square yards.

Claude Sizemore, a workman who escaped death, said the fire came so quickly there was no way of telling exactly how it started.

"The flames shot hundreds of feet into the air and reached out after everything," he explained. "I had just stepped from my car and had approached within fifty feet of the well.

"Three men who were up on the derrick jumped for their lives. The heat was so intense that I am certain many of those who perished never knew what happened."

Living Torch Runs and Dies.

Sizemore said that as he turned to run from the fire he saw a human torch streaking towards him. He continued:

"'Here comes a poor devil afire,' shouted my brother, who had driven up with me. I saw one of the men who had evidently leaped from the derrick. He was ablaze from head to foot. Just before he reached us he collapsed. I pulled my heavy leather coat from my back and wrapped it about the man. My brother took his coat off and we rolled the burning man, trying to smother the flames. Still he burned. We scooped up dirt in an effort to extinguish the fire, but found he was dead."

While the wild well tonight shot a column of flame 250 feet into the air and was far out of control, Gladewater was not endangered nor was there another well nearer than a mile away.

Tonight's casualties ran the death list in the new East Texas field to twenty-three within the last ten days, the other eleven having been killed in a series of fires and explosions.

CERMAK STARTS TO TRIM COSTS OF RUNNING CITY

His Efficiency Man to Scan Pay Rolls.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Cermak took two decided steps yesterday to curb city expenditures, and then promised still more activity in this direction within the near future.

J. LOUIS JACOBS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

First came a demand upon Dr. Benjamin Goldberg for his resignation. He is the remaining trustee of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium who has not resigned. A preliminary survey of that institution shows that its expenses have doubled since 1918, while the number of patients has increased by only 200.

Next Mayor Cermak announced that J. Louis Jacobs, efficiency expert for the county during Cermak's régime as president of the county board, will transfer his activities to the city hall in a few days.

Believes Funds Squandered.

From fragmentary information the mayor is convinced that taxes have been squandered in the city service on salaries to employés for political purposes, while adequate compensation for faithful employés has not been provided.

Standing out like a lighthouse on the rocks, the mayor sees most frequently and plainly the financial condition of the city. The city has not cash on hand to pay salaries after May 1. That is not so distressing as the fact that the city is unable to borrow. The bankers so far have declined to advance funds.

Bankers and Assessors.

The bankers want to know when the loan will be paid. No one can tell. One trouble lies in the failure of the board of assessors to complete its 1930 valuations of property so that taxes can be spread. The bankers have been given to understand, according to the information received by Mayor Cermak, that the assessors have practically used up their appropriation and have completed less than two-thirds of their work.

The mayor reiterated yesterday what he told the city employés at his inauguration speech in the city hall Monday night.

"With the advent of every new administration the cry has gone out that the city is broke," said Mr. Cermak. "Employés and the public have heard the story time and again, until they have been saying: 'O, well, they will find the money. The new administration must have its joke.'

Not a Joke This Time.

"Let me tell you it is no joke this time. After the next pay day there will be no cash available to meet salaries. There is none in sight. I'll never ask the state legislature to increase the tax rate. If I did, and they granted the enabling legislation, it would not get us out of our present predicament. The sooner the situation is understood the sooner we will get started on a solution.

"So far as the city is concerned the expenditures must be cut. There is no other way to reduce taxes. The school board must reduce its expenditures as well as the city."

The mayor has had Dr. Allen J. Hruby make a preliminary survey of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium. Dr. Hruby's report shows that the cost per patient per week in 1918 was $10.33 while in 1930 it was approximately $21. The dispensary service has been recently reduced because of the order directing that all temporary employés be dispensed with. In one group 47 employés were cut off the pay roll.

319 Temporary Employés.

In one division of the service are 575 employés of whom 276 are in the classified service, having taken tests to demonstrate their fitness for the positions they hold. But there were 319 "temporary employés."

Altogether the report shows that the institution has 1,071 patients and 905 employés. Some of these employés are engaged in dispensary work away from the institution.

The records show $237,600 in unpaid bills between last Dec. 31 and April 1 of this year, with 480 patients waiting to be admitted to the institution. Mayor Cermak has been supplied with affidavits indicating how certain patients gained admittance to the sanitarium while others, whose illness is

The several inventories at the institution are reported to have shortages of varying sizes, and the need of repairs in several places has been recommended to the mayor.

Jacobs to Scan Pay Rolls.

The announcement of the advent of Jacobs, the efficiency expert, will cause unrest among a number of city employés, it is reported. Even before the election rumors were circulated that Mr. Cermak, if elected, would have Jacobs investigate the salary rolls of the city.

Jacobs has the reputation of boring in, and Mayor Cermak believes that he will find every employé who has been given a salary for his political ability rather than for his service to the municipality.

"That campaign story was untrue," explained the mayor yesterday. "I had no intention of asking Jacobs to come into the city hall. But the financial condition of the city is much worse than I had been informed. Something drastic is necessary. I believe that the employé who does the work should get the salary, and Jacobs will probably find some who are entitled to more pay as well as those who are giving inferior, little, or no service for the pay they are collecting."

Alcock in Charge of Police.

On crime Mayor Cermak said that John H. Alcock is head of the police department and will be held responsible for results.

In addition the mayor said that he will suppress the plays and movies which represent Chicago as a crime center. He said that he will attend the first performance of a play the advance notices for which indicate that it will depict Chicago as overrun with crime.

"I will close that show, if it is what the newspaper stories proclaim it to be," said the mayor.

Mr. Cermak arrived at his office a trifle before noon yesterday and stood the gaff for two hours. Every one wanted to see him. He was unable to give serious attention to any important city subject.

Returns to Work in Evening.

After lunch he went into conference with several advisers at a downtown club, and returned to his work in the city hall at 6 o'clock last night.

Nearly all of the hundreds were tired out waiting and had departed, but a delegation headed by William Quinlan, William Tabor, and other officials of the street car men's union remained until the mayor arrived. They did not make known the purpose of the visit, but with them was Jefferson O'Connor, who has been mentioned for fire commissioner.

Two other men were said to have spoken to the mayor regarding Coroner Herman Bundesen for health commissioner. It has been suggested that Dr. Bundesen retain his office of coroner and work for the city gratis, but the mayor said that plan had not been presented to him.

PAY ROLLS TO BE MET

City Controller Szymczak in his first official report yesterday to Mayor Cermak announced that he has taken steps to meet the salaries of the police and firemen when they fall due on May 1.

The controller sent $1,300,000 worth of corporate fund tax anticipation warrants to City Treasurer Kearns with a request that he invest them in the city's special funds. If the request is concurred in the corporate fund will be able to meet the police and fire pay rolls.

Representatives of the controller were reported to have met with discouragement in their efforts to sell 1931 warrants to the banks. It was reported that the banks are unwilling to buy until the 1929 warrants which they now hold have been redeemed.

Besides the corporate fund warrants the controller also sent $55,000 worth of municipal tuberculosis sanitarium warrants to the treasurer also to be invested in special funds so that the regular two weeks payroll of the sanitarium employés can be met.

Two other new appointees of Mayor Cermak also took office yesterday. They are Ben F. Lindheimer, president of the board of local improvements, and Michael L. Rosinia, city prosecutor.

Mr. Lindheimer said he will maintain a policy of strict economy in the building of the subway, widening traffic arteries and carrying out other large public improvements.

In taking over his new duties Mr. Rosinia said he would prosecute all cases brought to him by the various city departments as rapidly as possible.

Women Visitors Are Assured a Good Time at the Jubilee

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

"Company's coming!"

That's what, from the first announcement, the Chicago Jubilee has meant to the organizations of women, among whom enthusiasm for the celebration was found yesterday to be boiling and bubbling. Initial plans to coördinate and direct the energy and resources of these clubs and organizations, large and small, were forthcoming yesterday at the gathering of neighborhood representatives at the Association of Commerce headquarters.

As general chairman of women's activities, Mrs. Henry W. Hardy has been named to head a committee to crystallize and direct the major program from the feminine angle. Mrs. Hardy is president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, representing the principal groups of social, political, and charitable women in the Chicago metropolitan area. Her scope of contacts is thus ideal for the office.

Club Leaders to Meet.

Invitations will be issued by Mrs. Hardy and her committee to the heads of the prominent women's organizations, to meet at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning at the Association of Commerce to present and discuss the various features of the Jubilee. Especial emphasis will be laid on the program for Monday, May 18, which has been designated as women's day.

Meanwhile individual clubs and organizations are going ahead with their own tentative arrangements to participate in the Jubilee. Chicago is going to be displayed to feminine guests as its civic, social, commercial, and cultural best.

Women and girls who propose to take advantage of good highways or of lowered railroad rates to visit this metropolis during the Jubilee will find a wealth of attractions spread for them. Scheduled attractions will include, in addition to the natural focal centers for visitors, lavish displays of furniture, apparel, jewelry, millinery, motors, household goods, and other merchandise. There are to be musical programs, art exhibits, fashion shows, luncheons, receptions, sightseeing tours, dances.

The visitors will be proffered the hospitality and the facilities of clubs, stores, and other public buildings. They will have an opportunity to meet women whose names are familiar throughout the nation, in welfare work, in science, in art, in business, and the professions. And everywhere they will find that spirit of welcome and fellowship that has always been distinctively Chicago's.

Democratic women gathering yesterday at the Hotel Sherman for the regular monthly meeting of their group, under the presidency of Mrs. Elisabeth A. Conkey, heard a brief talk on the scope and purpose of the Jubilee, and declared themselves "ready to go." They are debating the advisability of staging either a luncheon at one of the hotels or a reception for out of town women as their part in the Jubilee.

This afternoon Miss Elizabeth Eckert, president of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women, will meet with the board of directors of that group to determine what form their participation will take.

Art Exhibit Will Be Held.

What promises to be one of the greatest attractions offered to visiting women was announced yesterday by Miss A. Betty Lloyd, who is chairman of a no jury art exhibit that will be held at the Palmer house for the duration of the Jubilee. More than 1,500 entries of painting, sculpture, and other forms of art is anticipated, from studios both in Chicago and within a fifty mile radius of the city. Invitations have been extended only to artists of recognized merit and standing.

Robert Harshe, director of the Art Institute, is chairman of the committee of artists coöperating in the exhibit. Members of the committee are Edgar S. Cameron, Oskar Gross, Gerald Frank, Boris Ainsfeld, Edward T. Grigware, Emil Grumieau, John Norton, John Storrs, and Charles Biesel.

It is the intention that no admission be charged to any of the events of the Jubilee program except those of a palpably commercial nature. All those mentioned herein will be free to the public.

PREDICTS EARLY ACTION ON PLANS TO REMAP WARDS

Bowler to Offer New District Scheme.

With the organization of the new city council the revamping of the boundary lines of Chicago's fifty wards to equalize their populations will be worked out, Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] announced yesterday.

Ald. Bowler is chairman of the committee on committees and rules which, under a change in the council's rules, took the redistricting task away from the judiciary committee.

Hope for Early Approval.

"I have outlined a plan based principally on population," said Ald. Bowler, "but I believe that it will have to be changed to get the required number of votes to approve it. The committee will start work the first of next week, and I hope to have a plan to submit to the council at an early meeting."

Two other plans, one based on the 1930 census and the other on the estimated population of 1932, will be submitted to the committee. These were prepared by the social service department of the University of Chicago at the request of the Kiwanis clubs of Chicago.

Seeks Compact Wards.

Both plans, according to Frank J. O'Brien, chairman of the executive committee of the All-Chicago Kiwanis Clubs, were worked out on the principles that all wards shall be as nearly equal in population as possible and be composed of contiguous and compact territory.

Each ward would have a population of 67,528 on the basis of the 1930 census. Under the other plan the largest ward would have a present population of 77,521 and the smallest one a population of 63,276. The north side would have nine wards, the west side twenty-one and the south side twenty.

PLANE IN SPIN, PILOT SAVED BY PARACHUTE LEAP

Unable to bring his plane out of a tail spin after diving 3,000 feet toward the earth, Sergt. Peter T. Hubert, attached to the 108th observation squadron of the Illinois National guard, yesterday jumped in a parachute and saved his life. The plane was demolished.

Hubert had taken off from the Chicago airport to attempt a number of maneuvers required to pass examination for a transport pilot's license, for which he was to have been tested today. He rose to 3,500 feet and set the ship into a spin. As the plane aped downward it refused to respond to control and right itself. Hubert said he battled for control until the ship was within 400 feet of the ground when he jumped, pulling the rip cord and opening the parachute only a moment before he struck the ground.

The pilot, whose home is in Elmhurst, landed on the western boundary of the airport, escaping serious injury. He was taken to the Holy Cross hospital, where a leg wound was dressed.

Chicagoan Convicted in Bomb Plot; Wins Probation

San Francisco, Cal., April 28.—(AP)—Convicted of possessing dynamite in connection with an attempt to bomb a Spokane newspaper office, Thomas Boyle, 24, was placed on five years' probation today by Superior Judge L. L. Harris on condition he abstain from liquor and return to his parents in Chicago.

of Commerce and other groups fostering the Jubilee. State street will do its part in this great civic enterprise. State street will observe the occasion not only through its individual stores, but as a group. The State street demonstration will be gay and colorful, and will add to the importance of the occasion."

Although Mr. Mandel declined to discuss details until after a coördination meeting with the Association of Commerce committee, some of the plans in prospect were divulged elsewhere.

Loop to Resound with Song.

For example, one State street store will erect a platform before its display windows, mass thereon a chorus of 170 voices, and, after a concert, will spread the chorus through the loop in smaller groups as singing troubadours.

All the big stores are entering floats on which high salaried decorators are lavishing the most splendid pageantry effects the merchants can command.

Among those attending the coördinating committee meeting were: Fred A. Slater, representing C. D. Peacock, Inc., the jewelers; William J. Maresh, South Central association; William A. Dudley, Greater Central District association; George F. Wolff, Michigan Avenue association; Samuel E. White, Negro Commercial club; Byron F. Field, Junior Association of Commerce; Frank T. Tomczak, Avondale Chamber of Commerce; Joseph A. Laseski, Brighton Park Business Men's association; John H. Paprocki, Twenty-second Street Business Men's association; Frank W. Kee, Cook county council of the American Legion, and others.

Ask Wider Radius for Low Fares.

The transportation committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce was before the Central and Western Passenger associations yesterday petitioning the railroads to expand the reduced fare area for Jubilee week from 200 to 500 miles.

The committee, headed by John T. Pirie, State street merchant, included Charles Hochstedler, C. W. Judd, B. C. Getsinger, William D. Dean, and D. J. O'Grady. After hearing Mr. Pirie and other committee members for nearly two hours the 20 railroad representatives at the meeting agreed to take the request under advisement and announce a decision within a few days.

In seeking the extension of the reduced fare area, Mr. Pirie argued that action would benefit the railroads. A majority of the thousands of visitors expected to come from within the 200 mile area will use their own cars or buses, he argued, but an expansion of the low rate district to 500 miles would attract thousands of others who, while unlikely to undertake a trip of that distance by automobile, would enjoy the comfortable train ride.

ROBBED OF TAX MONEY.

Mrs. Dorothy Binder, 1142 North Francisco avenue, was robbed of $403 yesterday by a man who snatched her purse at Division street and Maplewood avenue. She had drawn the money from a bank to pay her taxes.

COMMUNISM PERILS U. S. STANDARDS, FISH TELLS ROTARY CLUB

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York, chairman of the congressional committee investigating communism, yesterday told the Rotary club in the Hotel Sherman that communism is "the most serious and far reaching issue affecting the civilization of the world and the happiness and safety of our people."

"The much discussed question of prohibition sinks into insignificance when compared to communism," he said. "For communism enters into practically every human activity and threatens our standards of living, civil rights, and all the ideals, traditions and even our form of government.

"The congressional investigating committee reached the conclusion that there were between five and six hundred thousand communists in this country, of whom two-thirds were aliens. The communists admit openly that they take orders directly from Moscow. In reality, the communist party here is but a section of the communist international at Moscow aimed at the heart of our government."

POLICE CAPTURE HIT-RUN DRIVER IN AUTO CHASE

A police squad from the Des Plaines street station last night pursued and arrested Seymour Freed, 20 years old, 3550 Douglas boulevard, after his automobile had struck and seriously injured a telegraph messenger boy at Ogden avenue and Randolph street.

The injured youth was taken to the Presbyterian hospital. He is Stanley Yesbee, 17 years old, 2148 West 13th street.

The inquest into the death of Benny Butler, south side beer runner, who was killed in an automobile crash early yesterday, was continued until May 21. The postponement was ordered to allow Thomas Burke, 509 South Wabash avenue, driver of the car, to recover from his injuries.

Butler and Burke, a labor union agent, were driving south in South Chicago avenue when their car collided at 75th street with one being driven by Frank Balkus, 1515 East 74th place.

Butler was a former aid of Danny Stanton in south side beer running and later a cog in the Al Capone organization. It was through his friendship with Leo V. Brothers, slayer of Alfred J. Lingle, that Pat Roche and others working on the Lingle case, learned the hiding place of the slayer through telephone conversations.

An unidentified man about 45 years old was killed early this morning when he was struck by an automobile in front of 903 North Ashland avenue. The driver of the car, Joseph Sternshein, 30 years old, 4800 North Springfield avenue, was held. The death increased the Cook county motor fatality toll to 378 since Jan. 1.

U. S. INDICTS BOB FOR $7,000,000 FRAUD BY MAIL

Charges Stock Promoter Mulcted Public.

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Charles W. Bob, the stock promoter, and his associate, Frederick O. Russell, were indicted today by the federal grand jury on ten counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy growing out of the failure of his Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., an investment house.

CHARLES V. BOB.

John S. Pratt, special assistant United States attorney general, and Assistant United States Attorney Alvin McK. Sylvester, who obtained the indictment, said that Bob, chairman of the board of the investment trust, and Russell, secretary, conspired to defraud 5,000 purchasers of stock in Metal and Mining Shares, Inc.

Faces 52 Years of Prison.

The maximum penalty under the indictment is fifty-two years in prison and a fine of $20,000.

Mr. Pratt said that Bob and Russell sold $7,000,000 worth of stock in Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., and then, assuming control of the purchase and sale of securities for the trust disposed of the original valuable and legitimate securities and substituted stocks and debentures of Bob's enterprises.

These companies included Golden Center Mines, Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., Consolidated Chromium corporation, and Metal and Mining Founders Shares, Inc., the latter organized simultaneously with Metal and Mining Shares, Inc.

No Assets of Any Value.

Mr. Pratt said that $10,000,000 in debenture bonds of Metal and Mining Founders Shares, Inc., were issued, and that this company had no assets of any value at any time. Of these debentures, he said, $6,000,000 worth found their way into the portfolio of Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., in substitution for good securities.

"Bob and Russell," he said, "not only wrecked the company, but they did so entirely for their own benefit."

Bob disappeared on an airplane trip to Chicago about the time of the crash of his companies and was "missing" for several weeks.

SUSPECT IN CHICAGO POLICE SLAYING IS CAPTURED AT ALTON

Vollmar, assigned to the motorcycle detail, was shot and killed in a battle with a robber at School and Clark streets on Feb. 22, 1929. The killer, a few minutes before, had robbed Dr. Walter A. Birgerson of $8 in front of his home at 1010 Belmont avenue. Vollmar, on his cycle, had taken up the chase at the request of Dr. Birgerson.

For more than a year the Chicago police had no clew to the identity of the bandit. Last fall L. E. Secor, chief of police at Jackson, Mich., came here and asked the police to search for Yarck. He was wanted for the killing of a policeman in Jackson. Secor added that he had information that Yarck was the man who shot and killed Vollmar.

Yarck formerly lived at Muscatine, Ia. Learning that he was working in Alton as a representative of the Sheriffs' and Police Officers, association, 188 West Randolph street, Chicago, the Chicago police on Monday sent a request for his arrest to Chief George Mayford of Alton.

Yarck asserted to Chief Mayford that he was an advertising salesman, and that he had no connection either with the killing in Jackson or with that of Vollmar. Spite work or a misunderstanding, he insisted, was responsible for his arrest.

Doctor Charged with Causing Girl's Death

Dr. Thomas J. Ney, 37 years old, 7010 Stony Island avenue, was arrested by the Woodlawn police yesterday on a charge of murder by abortion as a result of the death of Miss Esther Stevenson, 22 years old, who died on Friday evening. When Dr. Ney was arraigned in the felony court his case was continued until May 8 to await the outcome of the coroner's inquest.

SIAM KING MADE TO TOE THE LINE AT WASHINGTON

Vice President Shows Him How to Do It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—"At 6 p. m.," said the handsome state department program with its silken tassels and coat of arms embossed in gold, "their majesties the king and queen of Siam; their royal highnesses the Prince and Princess Prem, Maj. Gen. Prince Amoradat Prabhakara, the Siamese minister at Washington; Gen. His Excellency Chao Phya Bijayendr, chief aide de camp; Gen. Mom-Chao Vipulya Svasdi, his majesty's private secretary; Rear Admiral Mom-Chao Thavara Chavant, his majesty's physician; Mme. Thavara Chayant, lady in waiting to her majesty the queen; Phra Noraraj, his majesty's chamberlain; and Maj. Mom-Chao Prasobsri Chirapravati, aide de camp, will arrive at the Union station."

At 6:16 p. m. a very serious little figurine of a man beside the stalwart bulk of Vice President Curtis walked resolutely out of the station's presidential waiting room, down the middle of a double file of United States marines—and then did something he probably had never been required to do before in his royal life.

He toed the line.

Everybody Steps Right Up.

His majesty King Prajadhipok, emperor over the destines of twelve million people, peeked out of the corner of his eye to see what his companion was doing. Then he, too, inched forward until his shoetips came even with the line.

His consort, Queen Rambai Barni, solemnly shepherded by Secretary of State Stimson, paused a moment. Her features, with the reputation of being the prettiest among all far eastern royalty, expressed a little dismay, a bit of amazement. Diplomatically Mr. Stimson indicated the proper place. Queen Rambai toed the line.

Then the Cameras Clicked.

Whereupon fifteen feet away, the gentlemen who had drawn the line cocked their cameras and clicked their shutters. The shiny brasses of the army band crooned the lilting Siamese national anthem.

The exhausts of police motorcycles barked authoritatively. Naval and army aides, swords clattering, medals clanking, gold braid glittering, strode purposefully. The handsome gentlemen of the state department in striped pants and glossy stovepipe hats fluttered happily.

Vice President Curtis bowed the king into the upholstered interior of one of President Hoover's own cars. Secretary Stimson bowed the queen into the other of President Hoover's own cars. Other attendant dignitaries bowed Prince and Princess Svasti, the queen's parents, into cars belonging to the state department.

Parade Down the Avenue.

Past sidewalks unusually crowded for blasé Washington, inured to the sittings of celebrities, the procession began to roll forward. Down Pennsylvania avenue, past the White House, to stop finally at the Lars Anderson home on Massachusetts avenue.

There Mrs. Henry P. Fletcher waited to greet the royal ladies in Mrs. Hoover's name. A tall coated butler and squads of footmen in blue coats with brass buttons, knee breeches and white cotton stockings lowered seductively and as impassively as though helping royalty off with its wraps was quite the usual thing.

Then tea was ready in the billiard room, which is only one of the fifty master's rooms and twenty-eight servant's rooms in the Anderson house. And their majesties the king and queen of Siam were permitted to sit down and catch their breaths after their American welcome to America's capital.

They have a big day with more of the same thing ahead of them tomorrow. They go to the White House for the official call on the President and Mrs. Hoover, then dash back to Massachusetts avenue for the official call of the President and Mrs. Hoover on them.

$100,000 Fire Ties Up Traffic on City Artery

THE HENNESSEYS ARE GOOD IN THEIR LINE, IT SEEMS

Policeman Hennessey Is Even Better.

The Hennesseys were at it last night.

Walter and Maurice Hennessey are brothers. They live at 928 North Lawndale avenue. Walter is 28 years old and bellicose. Maurice is 27 years old and mild, but will fight. They are cement workers.

After work yesterday Walter suggested a bottle. Maurice agreed. Between drinks they walked west on Monroe street. In front of the Globe laundry, 1236 West Monroe street, Walter bumped into a foreigner and demanded a fight.

We Witness Round One.

Walter scrutinized Maurice carefully, forgetting the little fellow. "All right, Maurice," he replied, starting a swing from the sidewalk, "you are my size."

Maurice returned the swing and Walter backed away. Neither noticed a yawning coal hole. Just as Walter ducked a right to the jaw he slipped. Both battlers disappeared in a cloud of dust.

In the boiler room of the laundry company three stokers joyfully leaped into the fray. After a few short but fervid rounds of fighting two of the stokers were out, the third, nursing a bruised face, was howling for help in the coal hole.

Leon Lacey, who is English and a private policeman for the A. D. T. Watch service, answered the call. But he lasted only a moment against the Hennesseys. The stoker continued to yell. An Irish desk sergeant at Des Plaines street station got a call for help and hurriedly scanned the roster.

Hennessey to the Scene.

"Schwartz? Goldstein? Johnson?" he read off the list. Then he shouted: "Hennessey!"

Policeman John Hennessey raced out of the door. At the coal hole he discarded his coat, his revolver, and his hat, and rolled up his sleeves. In the boiler room he leaped for the Hennessey brothers, who, their enemies vanquished, had resumed their private fight. The policeman knocked Maurice over. Walter followed. At Des Plaines station the sergeant picked up the phone. "The Hennesseys are being brought in by Hennessey," he heard. Then he turned to assign patrolmen to traffic details and grade crossings.

INQUEST RETURNS MURDER VERDICT.

A coroner's jury investigating the shooting of Edward Fitzgerald, minor south side gangster, killed last week in front of a saloon at 7356 South Peoria street, yesterday returned a verdict of murder by person or persons unknown.

Flee by Fire Escape

Fire believed to have been started by crossed electric light wires igniting tissue paper decorations yesterday swept through a four story brick structure at 2552 Milwaukee avenue, routing more than a score of men and one woman and causing damage estimated at $100,000.

The building, known as the Leo A. Schueneman Recreation building, has a miniature golf course on the first floor, where the fire started; a restaurant on the second floor, owned by Mrs. Ethel Santhorp; and billiard rooms and bowling alleys on the third and fourth floors. When the fire started about twenty men in the restaurant and in the billiard room, accompanied by Mrs. Santhorp, fled down the fire escapes.

EDWARD T. LEE QUITS AS HEAD OF REFORM GROUP

Edward T. Lee, dean of the John Marshall Law school, resigned yesterday as president of the Better Government association at a meeting of the board of directors. He gave as his reason a report by the association on the qualifications of the two mayoralty candidates issued before the election, which indicated a preference for the old administration.

According to the written resignation, the board of the association voted on March 16 to take no part in the campaign beyond the issuance of a brief and impartial statement of the public records of the two candidates.

"With this understanding," Mr. Lee wrote, "I left Chicago on the following day for Porto Rico and, upon my return three weeks later, I found that there had been issued, over my name as president, an unauthorized statement which I regarded as partisan and biased. Had I been in Chicago I would have repudiated it as not representing the action of the board."

Detective Accidentally Shot by Daughter, Aged 4

Detective Sergeant Fred Wright, 33 years old, of the Fillmore street police station, was wounded in the right leg yesterday when his 4 year old daughter, Betty, accidentally discharged his service pistol. The accident occurred in the Wright home at 1442 North Lorel avenue. The bullet narrowly missed two brothers of the little girl, Francis, 9 years old, and Fred Jr., 5 months old. Betty had taken the weapon from her father's holster while he was preparing to go to work.

U. S. DRYS POSE AS BARTENDERS, NAB GANGSTERS

Two prohibition agents posing as bartenders yesterday arrested two gunmen who called at the Sunnyside inn, north of Glenview on Waukegan road, to collect a bill for liquor they are charged with forcing upon a reluctant roadhouse proprietor.

The gunmen are Martin Accardo, brother of Tony Accardo, Capone lieutenant, and John Matteis, a minor hoodlum. They were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday afternoon and released on bonds of $10,000 each.

After their release, Assistant United States District Attorney Edward A. Fisher declared that he believed Matteis was Frankie Foster, charged with being an accessory to the murder of Alfred J. Lingle. This was later found to be improbable as Foster spent yesterday in court at a hearing before Judge Harry Fisher on the murder charge. A continuance to May 15 was granted to the state at the hearing.

Richard Seiffert, owner of the Glenview roadhouse, declared that Accardo and Matteis called on him a week ago, left a case of liquor and promised to return later to collect, despite his protests that he was not operating a speakeasy. When the men—both armed—arrived yesterday they were arrested by Prohibition Agents Don Coakley and J. E. Scanlan.

J. C. EVANS, HEAD OF LAKE TRANSIT COMPANY, DIES

Buffalo, N. Y., April 28.—(AP)—James Carey Evans, 68, president of the Great Lakes Transit corporation, which operates a line of passenger and freight steamers on the great lakes, died tonight following a long illness.

Mr. Evans came of a family long identified with marine interests on the lakes. He became vice president of the Canal and Lake Steamboat company in 1888. In 1901 he was appointed general western agent of the company at Chicago. In 1911 he became vice president and general manager of the Anchor line, and later in the same year he was elected president of the Western Warehousing company of Chicago, a subsidiary. He was a director and member of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association, Cleveland, and a director and member of the executive committee of the Great Lakes Towing company of Cleveland.

TAXI RATES HERE ABOVE THOSE IN OTHER BIG CITIES

BY HAL FOUST.

Notwithstanding a reduction in prices for automobiles, gasoline and tires, and a drop in living costs generally, Chicago's taxicabs continue to charge, under a tariff unchanged since the world war, a higher rate, with few exceptions, than is paid in any of the larger cities in the United States.

And, while other industries have stimulated business through price reductions, Chicago's taxicubs are not doing so well. Five years ago, the city hall records show, there were approximately 7,500 licensed cabs on the street. Today, about 4,000 taxi are being operated.

Taxicab Rates Compared.

There follows a comparison of taxicabs rates in the various cities:

CHICAGO—First quarter mile, 25 cents; each half mile thereafter, 10 cents.

NEW YORK—First quarter mile, 15 cents; each quarter mile thereafter, 5 cents.

WASHINGTON—15 and 5, same as New York.

ST. LOUIS—First two-fifths of a mile, 25 cents; each two-fifths of a mile thereafter, 10 cents.

PHILADELPHIA—First third of a mile, 20 cents; each third of a mile thereafter, 10 cents. Another company charges 15 cents for first fifth of a mile and 5 cents for each additional fifth.

DETROIT—For first quarter of a mile, 15 cents; for each additional quarter, 5 cents.

CLEVELAND—For flag pull, 5 cents, and 5 cents more for each third of a mile.

LOS ANGELES—For first fifth of a mile, 10 cents; for each additional two-fifths of a mile, 10 cents.

BOSTON—For first mile or less, 30 cents; for each mile thereafter, 20 cents.

BALTIMORE—First half mile on metered cabs, 20 cents; on cabs under zone system, 35 cents for two mile zone.

Defend Chicago Cab Rates.

Thomas Hogan, general manager of the Yellow Cab company, and Robert E. McLaughlin, president of the Checker Taxi company, defended the higher Chicago rates on the grounds that this city has the best taxi service in the world and that its citizens are willing to pay to ride in shiny big cars.

"The drop of a nickel a gallon in gasoline in the last six months doesn't mean so much to us," said Mr. Hogan. "Fuel is only a minor expense in operating a cab. In traffic, we get only about ten miles per gallon, so a reduction of 5 cents a gallon means a saving of only a half cent per mile to us. The cut in tire prices saves us no more than a quarter of a cent per mile."

Win Delay of Three Years for Taylor Street Bridge

City officials yesterday received permission from the war department to delay for three years, or until June 15, 1934, the completion of a bridge across the south branch of the Chicago river at Taylor street. The extension was asked because of a lack of funds.

300 CASES AWAITING FIRST DAY OF RENO'S HIGH SPEED DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., April 28.—[Special.]—At least 300 divorce cases are waiting to be filed in Reno next Saturday under the provisions of the six week residence law, which becomes effective May 2. Practically every lawyer in Reno will file at least one case, while some attorneys or law firms will file as high as fourteen.

It is planned to set the cases ten minutes apart and it is estimated that in this manner each of the two courts can hear about forty uncontested cases, or possibly more, a day.

A couple may be divorced for $36.50 court costs. Any charge above that will be for the personal appearance of a lawyer, and $50 for the whole job will be the average cost.

OLD EXCURSION SHIP SAUGATUCK IS SUNK IN LAKE

A relic of the passenger excursion business along Chicago's water front, the ship Saugatuck, yesterday made its last trip. It was towed twelve miles out into the lake, and the hull sunk after the superstructure had been burned.

For many years the boat carried passengers from Navy pier to Lincoln and Jackson parks. During the last two years it has been rotting in the North avenue basin of the north branch of the river. It was disposed of at the request of its owner, John Banner. A government inspector accompanied the boat to make sure the sunken hull would not be a menace to lake navigation.

Brothers Are Stabbed by Unidentified Trio

Clifford Sorenson, 26 years old, and his brother, Allen, 22, of 4530 North Racine avenue, were taken to the Lake View hospital with knife wounds about the chest and shoulders early this morning. The police started a search for three men who the brothers said leaped upon them and stabbed them in front of their home. The Sorensons said they knew of no motive for the attack. Allen's wound was reported to be serious.

AND THUS ENDS INCIDENT OF THE HOME MADE JAIL

"Jailer" Howard Lietzmann, 143 South Albany avenue; Clyde Secrest, 4300 Carroll avenue, the "jailed," and "Assistant Jailer" Charles Willhoyt, 3113 5th avenue, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Alfred O. Erickson in the Des Plaines street court and fined $5 each for what they called "a little joke."

According to Lietzmann, he gave a party at his home on Monday evening, and Secrest, one of the guests, became unruly. Secrest picked up a chair and started breaking up other furniture with it, said the host. Lietzmann, who had given parties before and had learned that guests will be guests, had improvised a lockup in the basement of his home. When Secrest got too strong, Lietzman said, he and Willhoyt threw Secrest into "jail."

"Your honor, it was only a joke," said Lietzman.

"Well, this is no joke to me," said Judge Erickson. "Five dollars and costs for each of you."

Blaine Opens Hearing on Senate Charges.

true cash value or just a percentage value. A.—That was the so-called cash market value.

Q.—Of course you know that the government paid Marshall Field & Co., $17.50 a square foot. Does that alter your opinion as to its true cash value. A.—It might.

Q.—You mean that the sale of land in the immediate vicinity affects the market value of any one tract, but you wouldn't determine the increase in value from one sale to the government, would you? A.—No, we would consider the composite sales in the district.

Figures Must Be Conservative.

Mr. Cutmore at one point qualified his testimony with the remark that assessments, for the purpose of taxation, must necessarily be conservative.

Mr. Cutmore was asked whether he had had occasion to appraise air rights properties, and he mentioned the Chicago Daily News building, with the air rights part of its site valued at $13 a square foot.

Q.—The government proposes to pay about $17 a square foot for the Union station air rights. In your opinion, how does this property compare with the Daily News with respect to desirability and value? A.—The Daily News is closer in, and in view of the trend toward the north in building development, I believe it is more valuable, but I have made no specific examination of the matter.

Lobdell a Witness.

Edwin L. Lobdell, president of the E. L. Lobdell company, bankers, which sponsored the Lobdell site for the postoffice at Clinton and Van Buren streets, testified that a price of $18 a square foot was asked for this property.

"We asked a total of $4,748,000, somewhat higher than the Marshall Field price, but the latter had no buildings on it," said Mr. Lobdell.

"It has none now; nothing but a ball park, not a professional one, but a springtime park for the boys," said Senator Blaine.

Q.—Do you recall attending a meeting of the Chicago Plan commission on Jan. 14, 1927, when Mr. Simpson was present? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you recall writing a letter to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Dewey to the effect that the executive committee of the plan commission, as was expected, had approved the Marshall Field site? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the significance of the words "as was expected"? A.—I suppose I had in mind the large amount of duties paid by Marshall Field & Co. and the supposition that they had more acquaintances and more pull at Washington than others might have.

Q.—Is that all you had in mind? A.—Well, I knew Simpson as a man of very great influence, and when I put myself up beside him I knew I didn't have a show.

Q.—Did you have in mind that politics, perhaps, might have had something to do with it? A.—I don't believe I thought of it in that way.

Q.—On Jan. 20, 1927, you wrote to A. W. Mellon [secretary of the treasury], declaring that well informed citizens believed that if the government bought the Marshall Field site it would never be used for a postoffice. What was the basis for that belief? A.—Because of the difficulty in getting railway connections.

Q.—You wrote that those well informed citizens were of the opinion that the purchase of the site would reflect scandal on the Coolidge administration. What scandal did you mean? A.—I meant that a great saving in the handling of the mails would result from the purchase of some other site.

Simpson a Witness.

When Mr. Simpson was called to the stand, he declared:

"I have heard some extraordinary appraisals of real estate values this afternoon, and I wish to state here that I wish the board of assessors would assess our properties, for the purpose of taxation, on the basis of Mr. Cutmore's evaluations."

"You'll have to take that up with Mr. Cutmore," said Senator Blaine.

Mr. Simpson said that he was chairman of the executive committee of the Plan commission and that he had been a member of the organization for 25 years. The commission was on record for many years favoring a site on Canal street, between the Union and Northwestern stations, and eight pieces of property, including the Marshall Field site, had been submitted, he said.

"Marshall Field & Co. acquired the site which we sold to the government over a period of years, from 1920 to 1925," said Mr. Simpson. "Taking into consideration the taxes we paid on the property, and interest at 6 per cent, we paid in excess of $4,000,000 for the tract. This was sold to the government for $3,900,000. The price was not predicated on the cost, but was considerably less."

Q.—What was your purpose in acquiring the site? A.—We planned to erect a wholesale warehouse upon it.

Q.—Then why did you sell it? A.—We changed our plans about the warehouse, and erected the Merchandise Mart, which served the purpose and provided additional facilities for our competitors as well.

Q.—When this matter comes up before congress, may I understand, Mr. Simpson, that Marshall Field & Co. is a prospective purchaser of the site, if the government desires to sell it? A.—No, we are not in the market, having made other arrangements, but we were glad enough to purchase the site when we did.

Q.—And you were equally glad to get rid of it? A.—I suppose we were. There has been a considerable decline in real estate in the last two or three years.

Eugene Taylor, managing director of the Chicago plan commission, testified that absolute impartiality prevailed at the hearings on proposed postoffice sites, and that after the Marshall Field site had been submitted, Mr. Simpson withdrew from all action.

Star Here on Way to Husband

Laemmle Also Here

America's well known sweetheart, Mary Pickford, was in town yesterday. She is on her way to meet Douglas Fairbanks, she said. Whether they'll meet in London or Baden-Baden she didn't know but she imagined it would be in Baden-Baden as her husband wanted to pray poif there.

She arrived in her private car attached to the Santa Fe Chief and left on the Century for New York. On the Chief also was Carl Laemmle, movie producer, who said he would return for the Chicago Jubilee week, which would be in the way of a homecoming for him. He started business in Chicago 25 years ago.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL AS SHE FLEES ANNOYER

Mrs. Jean Heirbinsen, 805 Cass street, wife of a drug clerk, was probably fatally injured early yesterday when she fell from a window in her second floor apartment while fleeing from a neighbor. The neighbor, Andrew Barry, also a drug clerk, was held by Chicago avenue police.

The Heirbinsens share an apartment with Mr. and Mrs. Barry at the Cass street address. On Monday night Barry returned home intoxicated, according to the police, and began to abuse his wife, who fled with Mrs. Heirbinsen into a bedroom and barricaded the door.

As Barry stood outside trying to break in with a flatiron, Mrs. Heirbinsen attempted to escape from the room by knotting sheets together and letting herself to the ground from the window. While she was still 20 feet from the ground the knots parted and she fell to the pavement. Her skull was fractured and her spine injured.

GOV. ROOSEVELT CLEARS WALKER OF ALL CHARGES

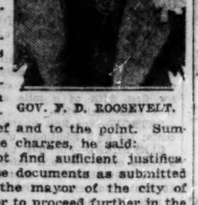
New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Tammany Hall won its first important skirmish with the enemy forces in the current "war on city graft and corruption" today when Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt dismissed the charges of misfeasance and nonfeasance filed against Mayor James J. Walker by the city affairs committee.



GOV. F. D. ROOSEVELT.

The governor's memorandum in connection with the dismissal was brief and to the point. Summing up the charges, he said:

"I do not find sufficient justification in these documents as submitted to remove the mayor of the city of New York or to proceed further in the matter of these charges."

The decision was made public at the executive office at Albany, and Samuel I. Rosenman, the governor's counsel, wired the findings to Mayor Walker, to Dr. John Haynes Holmes, chairman, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, vice-chairman, and Paul Blanshard, executive director of the city affairs committee here. The governor was at his home in Hyde Park when the memorandum was made public.

Governor Gives Reasons.

The governor found that, in view of the fact that the mayor was charged with incompetence and neglect of duty, the story of abuses in city departments was not as disturbing as it might seem at a casual glance. These were his reasons:

"In the case before me the principal allegations relate to the acts and conduct of subordinate officials of the public officer complained against. When the charges are of this nature it must clearly appear either that the various acts and wrongdoings complained of were known by the mayor and that he failed to take steps to punish such wrongdoing or that he was negligent and recreant in failing to keep himself properly advised."

Mr. Roosevelt found nothing in the evidence submitted to him that showed that the mayor had failed to act on information given to him or that he had failed to keep himself advised as to the activities of the subordinates beneath him.

Cautious to Keep Home Rule.

He also leaned heavily upon the general state policy toward home rule and declared that the greatest caution must be exercised in annulling the deliberate decision of the New York City electorate.

Mr. Roosevelt revealed that he had never regarded the charges as carrying a great deal of weight and was fully cognizant of their general nature. He said it was only after mature deliberation that he finally decided they were specific enough to require an answer from the mayor.

Renewed scrutiny of the charges during the last week and an examination of the mayor's reply convinced the governor that the investigation should go no further and that there was no occasion for the appointment of a commissioner and the holding of hearings.

Anna Nilsson Cured After Three Years on Crutches

Hollywood, Cal., April 28.—(AP)—Anna Q. Nilsson is coming back to Hollywood without her crutches. Three years ago, at the height of her film career, Miss Nilsson fell while horseback riding and shattered her hip. For months she was an invalid. Then she began to hobble around on crutches and there was a fear among her friends that she might never walk again without them. Today, from a resort at Nice, friends of Miss Nilsson received word that she has thrown away her crutches and will return to Hollywood in June.

THREE DAYS IN SUBWAY WRECK AN ELOPEMENT

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—The Brooklyn police had a subway elopement on their hands today—something new in the way of elopements.

Frank De Paolo, who is 18 years old and Mary Forschner, a year younger, have been "keeping company," to use the old fashioned phrase, and last Saturday decided that they just had to get married. So they came over to Manhattan and rambled into the marriage license bureau. When the clerk told them that the present market price of marriage licenses is $2 and no credit given, even to the most ardent lovers, Frank and Mary walked out. Frank had 50 cents in his pocket.

They retreated to the subway, riding up and down and up and down, catnapping from the Battery to the Bronx, until Sunday afternoon. Getting a little tired of the subway and feeling the pangs of hunger, they wandered out into the daylight and spent most of the afternoon in Central park, lunching on peanuts and pop. Night drove them back to the subway, their only shelter.

In the meantime the parents of the young lovers had called on the police.

Early today detectives found Frank and his Mary cuddled in a corner of a B. M. T. car.

The largest small table we have ever found. With leaves down it has a friendly living room character; with the leaves up and fully extended it will dine 8 people.

OLD NEW YORK AND OLD VIRGINIA MEET

Connoisseurs agree that the ideal dining room group in American Federal mahogany is a collection of pieces from two sources far apart geographically, but closely related in tradition; Duncan Phyfe dining table and chairs, from Old New York; together with Hepplewhite serving table and sideboard, derived from the hunting tables of Old Virginia.

This, then, is the aristocratic basis of the Danersk Randolph group.

Its rare simplicity will be especially prized by collectors; for they, of all folk, know how widely and patiently one must search to find simple pieces of such distinguished pedigree.

In designing and building this chaste mahogany group, we kept in mind the limited size of most present-day dining rooms, and also the special requirements of the combination dining room and living room.

We believe this group is priced lower than any other equally fine 18th Century mahogany furniture of authentic pedigree of design.

JURY TO REVEAL STAND TODAY ON POLICE INQUIRY

Judge and Prosecutor Are Still Disagreed.

The disagreement between Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court and Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller over methods of procedure in the investigation of the police department continued yesterday. Today the members of the special grand jury will reveal their attitude in the dispute.

The disagreement arose out of the request of Mr. Mueller that Judge McGoorty sign a series of subpœnas duces tecum calling for the bank records of Acting Police Commissioner Alcock and forty other police officials. This move was the sequel to the examination last week of the bank accounts of seventeen captains.

Mr. Mueller was confident yesterday that the grand jury would approve the course he suggested, but if it does not, he said, he will abandon the investigation.

Judge's Stand on Case.

Judge McGoorty, who took the position that suspicion would unjustly be cast upon Alcock, his three chief aids and the thirty-seven police captains if their bank accounts are subjected to grand jury inspection, declared that there is still much for the jury to do without examining the records of the bank deposits of the police officials.

"The special grand jury has been a great benefit," said Judge McGoorty. "I hope it continues its investigations. It has weeks of work without examining the bank accounts of the officials and captains.

"Whatever the jurors decide upon tomorrow will represent the will of the people, but I do not believe they hold the opinion of Mr. Mueller. I hope to avoid unnecessary embarrassment to any one unless it is on reasonable grounds. Unless the special grand jury insists that these subpœnas be issued they shall not be issued."

On Monday, when he denied Mr. Mueller's petition, Judge McGoorty said that if the jury asked for the subpœnas he would take the request under consideration.

Insists on Bank Inquiry.

Mr. Mueller said yesterday that the revelations of huge deposits by a number of the seventeen captains whose names were in the first series of subpœnas convinced him of the advisability of continuing his investigation along the same lines. He insisted that the bank accounts of Alcock, Deputy Commissioner James B. Sexton, Chief of Detectives John Norton and Deputy Chief Lawrence Rafferty also be continued.

"Unless we can go into the bank records of all the captains and all the officials we will do nothing more regarding the seventeen captains," Mr. Mueller said. "Those seventeen names were selected at random, and there was no intention to discriminate against them, which is what we would be doing if we exempt Alcock and the others from the same inquiry."

Annoyer of Small Girl Is Fined $100 by Judge

Leo Srokowski, 30 years old, 1324 North Homan avenue, charged with annoying a small girl whom he had enticed into the basement of the Swift school at Thorndale and Winthrop avenues, was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Edelman in the Town Hall court. Before passing sentence the judge asked if there were any persons present who had called him anonymously to request that he free Srokowski. None responded, and the judge said that if he found who made the calls they would all be sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 28.—The former kaiser, who once considered lese majesty as one of the gravest offenses in Germany, has demanded that the German republic punish Provincial Judge Reichenback of Silesia, who "dared" to place a penciled question mark behind the former emperor's signature on a document submitted to the court. The former kaiser signed it "Wilhelm, I. R.", meaning "imperator rex."

The former kaiser forwarded the document for insertion in the landed property register. Judge Reichenbach declined the paper, declaring that the former kaiser had no right to embody in an official document anything indicating his claim to the throne, and that a new one must be submitted. The judge penciled an exclamation mark and a question mark after Wilhelm's "imperator rex."

The exiled emperor filed a new document as required by the republican official, but also instructed a lawyer to seek punishment for the judge.

8 Women, 1 Man Killed in Sugar Factory Blast

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MAGDEBURG, April 28.—Eight women and one man were killed today in an explosion in a saccharine factory near here today. A new vermin killer with a phosphorus base was being mixed by women under the supervision of a man when the blast occurred.

YODELING DOG IS DISCOVERED IN VENEZUELA

Also a Fish That Has Two Mouths.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—A group of Syracuse university scientists returned today from four months in the jungles and mountains of Venezuela, bringing with them thousands of rarities in fauna and flora and a story of the discovery of traces of the lost Andean man who flourished long before the reign of the Incas.

P. H. STRUTHERS. [Associated Press Photo.]

The expedition was under the leadership of Dr. Parke H. Struthers, zoologist, and its members hacked their way through almost impenetrable forests, forded raging streams and crossed the mountain range at freezing altitudes.

When the Red Line steamship Caracas halted at quarantine the explorers told of the capture of a mountain dog whose bark is a yodel; a strange fish with two mouths, one to eat with and one to use as a "brake" when swimming in mountain torrents; dozens of odd monkeys, parrots, wild pigs, macaws, love birds and a multitude of other specimens of bird, animal and reptile life.

Find Trace of Lost Tribe.

The most important discovery was evidence that the mountain country of Venezuela was once under the sway, ages ago, of a superior type of man long since vanished. It was a type of man probably as intelligent as the Incas of Peru, and the Inca civilization has astonished scientists. At La Asulita, thirty miles from Lake Maracaibo, Dr. Sidnam Poole, ethnologist, discovered the relics of two tribes of Indians. He recovered a number of terra cotta and stone ornaments and idols. The tribes, known as the Timotes and Chamas, had developed great skill in sculptures, Dr. Poole said. The expedition established its base at Merida and did most of its work in the state of Merida.

The yodeling dog was captured while the scientists were making a trip over the highest automobile road in the world—across the Andes from Merida to San Cristobal. At the point where the strange animal was found the road reached a height of 13,583 feet.

The Two-Mouthed Fish.

The tribe of fish with two mouths was discovered in the Maracaibo river and the torrents which pour into it. They brought back a number of the fish, which are known as "ganoids." The fish has two mouths because it lives in streams that rush pellmell down mountain sides at fifty miles an hour. It is about a foot long and nature has equipped it so that it can use one mouth to feed with while the other mouth is clinging to a rock.

RUMP LEGISLATURE IN MISSISSIPPI IS ROUTED BY GOVERNOR

Jackson, Miss., April 28.—(AP)—Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo, veteran of a score of spectacular political battles, marked up another victory today after breaking up a "rump" session of the legislature, called in defiance of his wishes.

The assemblymen, meeting on their own initiative, admitted their inability to act in the absence of a gubernatorial call, capitulated to the governor's demand for an advance promise that they will not attempt to investigate or impeach anybody, should the governor call them legally together, and adjourned without discussing the emergency financial measures they had hoped to consider.

A resolution asking the governor to call a special session and promising him it would be restricted to emergency state financing "with no further matters to be considered," unanimously was adopted by the 108 members who attended the rump meeting.

Even in view of this capitulation, however, Gov. Bilbo indicated the promise was not what he had asked for, and that he might insist upon his original proposition—that the legislature sign a specific pledge dictated by him, definitely banning investigations and impeachments from the proposed session.

The situation was admittedly in his hands, as the unofficial legislature adjourned late today after only a few hours of existence.

KIRKLAND'S NEW MURDER TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

Sure He'll Be Cleared of Girl's Death.

Valparaiso, Ind., April 28.—[Special.]—The second trial of Virgil Kirkland, accused of the rape and murder of his Gary high school sweetheart, Arlene Draves, begins tomorrow before the same judge and in the same courtroom where a jury two months ago found him guilty on a verdict carrying life imprisonment.

VIRGIL KIRKLAND.

Confident of acquittal on the eve of his trial as he had been before and during the first, Kirkland tonight was eager for the start of the court proceedings. A venire of 59 men and one woman, Mrs. Ella Shelburne, member of the local W. C. T. U., has been drawn, and Judge Grant Crumpacker announced that selection of a jury will begin promptly at 9:30 a. m.

O'Hara Quits Case.

Except for the withdrawal of Attorney Barratt O'Hara of Chicago from the defense counsel and the addition of Deputy Prosecutor Floyd Vance of Lake county to the prosecution staff, the legal lineup remains the same as at the first trial.

The 20 year old defendant will be represented by O'Hara's associate, Ronald C. Oldham of Chicago; John C. Crumpacker of Valparaiso, son of the presiding judge, and Oscar B. Thiel of Gary. Chief Deputy Prosecutor John Underwood of Gary will again direct the state's case.

Whereas selection of a jury in the first trial required only two days, state and defense lawyers anticipate that in the present instance a week or more may be required to complete the panel of twelve men. It was expected that Mrs. Shelburne would, in view of her prohibition sympathies, be promptly challenged.

Charged with Murder by Rape.

The forthcoming trial differs from the first in one important instance. Kirkland was originally brought before the bar on an indictment containing two counts of murder by assault and two of murder by rape. The jury found him guilty of murder by assault, a verdict which Judge Crumpacker found unsustained by the evidence.

Narrowing the issue, Deputy Prosecutor Underwood drew up a new indictment from which the counts of murder by assault were stricken. Under Indiana law a conviction of murder by rape carries a mandatory death penalty.

TELL OF SEARCH FOR MOTIVE IN LINGLE MURDER

Hear Many Theories; Legal Proof Lacking.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

CHAPTER XXV.

Why was Alfred Lingle murdered? Who hired Leo Brothers to kill him?

Up to this point, this story of the Lingle murder case has been built up of facts. Facts established the guilt of Buster Brothers beyond any honest doubt.

But in discussing the motive for the killing of THE TRIBUNE reporter all the facts are not available. There are theories, and these theories are supported by some facts, but when it comes to the proof of the motive the facts at hand are not sufficient to build up a positive case.

Motive Not Legal Essential.

It should be stated at the outset that the law does not in any case make the motive a requisite for conviction in criminal cases. Identification of a criminal caught or seen in his act is sufficient for conviction. It ought to be self-evident that if witnesses actually see a man commit murder that man is guilty and should be punished, whether the state can prove a motive for his act or not. At any rate, that is the law.

Leo Brothers knows why he killed Lingle, but he has not told. Others know the motive also, and perhaps they know it better even than Brothers, for they were the conspirators and he their tool.

Of course, if Assistant State's Attorney Charles Rathbun and Chief Investigator Pat Roche could have proved the motive for the murder they would have done so in the trial of Brothers. No one could have tried harder than they did to produce proof of the motive.

Only Theories Available.

They had theories, but theories have no place in a court of law, which is governed strictly by facts. Rathbun and Roche realized that proof of a motive would have strengthened the case against Brothers, that if in addition to the positive identification of the gangster by eight witnesses to the murder they could have shown a reason for Brothers to commit the crime, the defendant could never have escaped the penalty of death.

From some sources—the same sources which spread the false propaganda in behalf of the murderer, Brothers—came veiled hints that the state, and THE TRIBUNE, feared to expose the motive because beneath it lay a terrible scandal.

This was more poppycock.

This story will relate what the authorities learned of the "why" in Lingle's death, and it should be kept in mind that when all the facts concerning the motive are learned, another story may be told, but herein is the best information obtained up to now.

Names Are Recalled.

Several names which have figured in earlier chapters of the Lingle story should be reidentified at this time.

There is Jack Zuta, the bawdy house keeper, financier of the north side gang of Chicago, with his crafty mind always seeking new illicit profits for the gang. He was murdered on Aug. 1.

There is Ted Newberry, the north side gangster who operated in the booze end of the gang's rackets, and who at the last turned on Zuta and enlisted in the ranks of Scarface Al Capone, becoming the north side lieutenant of Capone.

There is Julian ["Potatoes"] Kaufman, who bossed the gambling racket of the north siders and was the head man of the Sheridan Wave Gambling club, and there is Joey Josephs, the partner of Kaufman.

Wide Search for Motive.

Last, but certainly not the least, is Grover Dullard, that little fellow who was so clever at organizing gambling houses, who worked at the Sheridan Wave, and who parked a snubnosed revolver such as killed Lingle in a cigar store in the loop, every day for a month before the murder. Grover Dullard was ambitious.

Roche and Rathbun and their men traveled from Montreal to Havana, and from east to west, in their efforts to find proof for the motive of the Lingle murder. They went to the gambling capitals of the continent for proof. They questioned hundreds of men and women.

Among the men to whom they talked was Potatoes Kaufman. This gangster was arrested in New York on Jan. 15, three weeks after the capture of Leo Brothers, by New York officers and detectives from Roche's staff. He was held secretly in a New York hotel, and he was interviewed on the following day by Rathbun and Roche, who had hastened to New York for the purpose, and by a representative of THE TRIBUNE.

Kaufman said he would tell freely what he knew about Lingle and about the Sheridan Wave club, although he refused to tell it in the presence of a stenographer. He said he had no objection to talking frankly because he had left the Chicago rackets for good and never expected to go back.

Kaufman's Story of Gambling.

The gangster was first led into a discussion of the Sheridan Wave club. He said it had been running for about four years when it was closed in June, 1929. It operated under protection, Kaufman said, until the election of State's Attorney Swanson in 1928, and then an injunction was obtained to restrain the police and the state's attorney from conducting raids.

In April, 1929, William F. Russell, then police commissioner, undertook a campaign against gambling houses which operated under court injunctions, and sent detectives into the places, including the Sheridan Wave, to obtain evidence upon which the injunctions could be dissolved. As a result, the Sheridan Wave was closed in June.

"I went to Europe," said Kaufman, "and I got back a couple of months later. I don't know just when it was, but some time afterward Zuta sent for me. Bugs Moran was with him."

This conversation must have been held shortly after a treaty of peace had been signed, in the latter part of 1929, by which the bitter differences of the north side gang and the Capone forces were mended. The north siders had suffered most, seven of their men having been killed in the St. Valentine's day massacre alone. So at this time, peace had been declared, even though it was a peace of only a few months, and the strife soon broke out again, gorier than ever.

"We've been through a long and bloody war," Zuta told Kaufman, according to the gangster's account. "We've got to get even on the money we spent, and we want to be partners with you and get the Sheridan Wave open again."

REPORTS LINGLE MEETING

"I was standing on a corner one day, talking with Jake Lingle. I'd known Jake for 15 years."

"Did Lingle ever 'fix' anybody for you?" interrupted Rathbun.

"No, he never did."

"Was he ever a partner of yours—I mean, did he have a cut in any of your places?"

"Never. I never knew Jake to have a cut in anything, booze or gambling or anything else."

"Go ahead."

"Well, I was saying that Jake and me were standing on a corner, and Jack Zuta came along. He says: 'Hello, fellas,' and I said, 'Hello,' but Jake looked at Zuta and says in his biting way: 'Don't speak to me, you lousy pimp,' and Zuta kind of sheepishly walked away. I knew Jake had always hated Zuta and the Aiellos, but I told him he oughtn't to talk that way to Zuta. Jake said, 'The hell with 'em.'"

FOE OF LINGLE

Jack Zuta, slain since the Lingle murder. Lingle is known to have defied him and it is known he considered Lingle an obstacle to his plans. A connection has been traced between Leo Brothers and the Zuta gang.

Another Call from Zuta.

"Then in March, 1930, Zuta sent for me again and asked me why I didn't straighten him out with Lingle, and I said I'd try, but I never did. I knew there wasn't any use. Zuta seemed to think that Lingle was stopping them from opening the Sheridan Wave.

"I saw Jake and told him the north side was trying to open up the Wave again and he told me that Russell had shut down all the gambling in town and that Russell wouldn't let Zuta or nobody else run.

"Then Grover Dullard got into the picture. He'd been running the crap tables at the Sheridan Wave, and I never thought he amounted to much, but he started shooting his mouth off as if he was a big shot, or wanted to be.

"Dullard began hanging around with Moran, and after that when I'd meet Bugs he'd act different toward me, as though Grover was putting in knocks on me.

"Then Dullard went around saying he could open the Sheridan Wave, that he didn't need me, and he says: 'Who is this guy Lingle, anyway? I can take care of him.'

Leaves Chicago in April.

"It looked pretty hot to me, so I left Chicago. That was in April, about the 1st of April, 1930. I haven't been back since."

"Just why did you leave?" Kaufman was asked.

"I was afraid they'd try to force me to go in with them and open up the joint. I knew Zuta and that mob were blaming Jake, and he was my friend and they'd try to put it on me."

Kaufman was asked whether John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, former state legislator and political fixer, had any connection with the plans to reopen the gambling club. It will be recalled that McLaughlin was questioned on the day of Lingle's murder, because he had threatened the reporter for the latter's refusal to aid McLaughlin in opening up gambling joints.

"McLaughlin did get in the Waveland picture," Kaufman said. "A couple of the north side fellows thought they could get the okay from Swanson, and they took McLaughlin and went down to see some one in the state's attorney's office, but they never got anywhere. I don't think McLaughlin had any connection."

Fits Previous Information.

Kaufman claimed that he knew no more. He had left Chicago two months before Lingle was killed, he said, and he never had learned what further efforts were made by the north side gangsters to get their gambling joint operating. There was no way of knowing whether Kaufman was telling the truth. Of course, he would never testify in the case.

The ganster verified that he knew Pat Hogan, hoodlum pal of Leo Brothers.

The information obtained from Kaufman seemed to fit in well with previous information gained in Chicago. John Hagan, the under cover man who had worked among the gangs of Chicago, had reported that Grover Dullard had set himself up as a "big shot" and that he had boasted to other gamblers and hoodlums that he would see to it that Lingle didn't interfere with the opening of the Sheridan Wave.

Pat Hogan, in his weeks of chummy contact with Hagan, had told the under cover man that "Grover," as he always referred to Dullard, had taken it upon himself to see that Lingle was "taken care of."

From all the facts and reports in the possession of the investigators it appeared reasonable that Dullard and Zuta had arranged with Hogan and Hogan's pal, Brothers, to kill Lingle.

Link Slayer to Gang.

Brothers had told the investigators that he obtained his job as bouncer at the Green Mill through Hogan, but from the promoters of the cabaret it was learned that Ted Newberry, then a leading light of the north side gang, had put Brothers in the place.

Thus Brothers was identified as connected with the north side gang, through Newberry, and Hogan was well known to many of the leaders of that gang. Brothers had already committed at least one murder, the one which had sent him fleeing from St. Louis into hiding in Chicago, and he was not known to the Chicago police as a gangster.

All these facts were known to Pat Roche when he said, on the night the announcement of Brothers' capture was made:

"Brothers was the best hoodlum in the United States for the Lingle job."

Later Brothers was found under the protection of Benny Butler, a gangster in the mob of Danny Stanton, the south side beer runner who had allied himself with the Capone gang. This provides additional ground for theorizing. Butler, by the way, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident.

Charge Stanton Killed Zuta.

Danny Stanton is accused of the murder of Jack Zuta, and the revolver found in his car was used in the killing, according to the positive findings of Col. Calvin Goddard, the ballistics expert.

Roche and Rathbun received apparently reliable information that Ted Newberry also took part in the murder of Zuta, and there have been reports that witnesses to that crime have identified pictures of Newberry as one of the murderers.

Newberry, as has been related, deserted the north side gang, and he did so partly because of hatred for Jack Zuta, according to the reports, which have it that he joined in the murder of Zuta, with Danny Stanton and other gunmen of the Capone gang.

From this it may be deduced that Newberry had later arranged for his pal Leo Brothers to be taken under the protecting wing of the Stanton gang.

This situation, with Brothers in the hands of Capone followers, also gave credence to the proposal made by Capone, through his agent, to deliver the murderer of Lingle, dead, to Rathbun and Roche. Certainly Capone must have known through Stanton of Brothers and his crime, and it now becomes obvious that Capone could not have turned Brothers up alive because Brothers had become associated with his own gangsters. But to give him up dead would not have been a serious breach of the Capone code.

FUGITIVE

Grover Dullard, gangster, who boasted he would "take care of Lingle." He was sought by the investigators, but without result. A note signed "Grover" and addressed to a friend contained a plea for money and a statement he was broke. He is still being hunted.

"Got the Right Guy."

As a matter of fact, there were many rumbles from the gangs of Chicago after Brothers was captured, and they were all to one tune:

"They've got the right guy."

It should be readily apparent that none of this information was in the form of proof which could be submitted to the jury in the trial of Leo Brothers. Neither could it be considered sufficient for indictments to be voted against any of the conspirators. There were no eyewitnesses to accuse them as there were to accuse Brothers.

HUNT FOR DULLARD

The most energetic search for evidence to prove the motive was made, and perhaps the leading feature of the search was the effort to capture Grover Dullard.

It may be remembered that Dullard was arrested, with other members of the north side gang, in one of their headquarters at 520 North Michigan avenue, on June 30. But at this time none of the information accusing him, except that he had parked a snubnosed pistol in the loop daily, was available, and he was released.

When Dullard was wanted so badly there were reports at first that he was in New York, and for weeks detectives were kept in that city, working with the New York officials, in the hope of catching the gambler. Then it was reported Dullard had fled to Montreal, and had found work in a gambling house there. So the detectives were sent to Montreal, but they returned empty-handed. Kaufman, in New York, said he had not seen Dullard since he left Chicago.

Then on Feb. 1 a tip was received that Dullard was in Havana, working in one of the casinos there. Roche telephoned to men he knew in Havana, and they verified that Dullard was in the Cuban capital.

Cuban Search Fails.

Roche and THE TRIBUNE reporter were on the next train for Miami, and from there they flew across the Florida straits and the Caribbean to Havana. Then Roche's informants said they had thought Dullard was there, but that they had been unable to find him. Nevertheless, the Chicagoans spent several days, exploring the gambling houses of the city and visiting the race track to scan the crowds of turf fans. They saw many hoodlums, but not Dullard.

Finally the aid of the Cuban police was enlisted and they made a check of all the steamship and airplane arrivals and departures, going back to July 1. There was no trace of Dullard.

While they were in the southland Roche and his companion visited the gambling houses of Miami, guided by Michael Glenn, chief of police of Miami Beach, an intimate friend of Roche since their days together in government service. No Dullard.

Then to New Orleans and the scanning of more thousands of faces in gambling dives and at the race tracks. The search was in vain.

Find Note in Raid.

All this time a close surveillance had been kept on George [Dode] Hurley, gambler pal of Dullard, who remained in Chicago. Shortly after Roche's return to Chicago on Feb. 18, he was informed that Hurley was operating a roulette layout in an apartment at 747 Cass street. The place was raided, and a crooked roulette wheel was found in the keeping of two minor gamblers. They admitted that Hurley was operating the place, but he was not in at the time.

In the pocket of one of the keepers was a letter, sealed, and on the outside of the envelope was written: "For Harry." Roche tore the letter open and found a note inside which read:

"Harry: I am absolutely broke and I can't raise a cent from anybody, and I'm forced to ask you if you can let me have that 1500. I'm counting on you to help me. GROVER."

The chase for Grover had led from one end of the continent to the other, and here was evidence that Dullard was in Chicago. The gambler insisted he had received the letter from Hurley, and that he didn't know "Harry" except by that name and by sight. He expected to see "Harry" down at "The Corner," Clark and Randolph streets, and planned to give him the letter. He denied knowing who had written the letter.

Hurley Is Questioned.

Hurley was captured the next day and after long hours of questioning he admitted he had received the letter from Grover Dullard several weeks before when he had met Dullard at Diversey boulevard and Clark street. He had not seen Dullard since, Hurley claimed, and he declared that if he had received the $1,500 from "Harry" he would have given it to a brother of Dullard, who Dullard had said would relay the money to him. Hurley could not be shaken from this story, and finally was released.

Then reports were received that Dullard was in Moline at the home of a relative and for days detectives camped around this home but without spying their man. Countless other expeditions in Chicago and to other cities were led in the hope of capturing Dullard, but he is still at large and still sought.

Even into the days of Brothers' trial, the investigators continued their efforts to establish a motive for his act. While the jury was being selected, two of Roche's detectives, Louis Cappareili and Michael Casey, arrested Joey Josephs, the partner of Potatoes Kaufman, and questioned him for hours. He protested he had been the veriest small timer in the north side gang, and that the leaders had never taken him into their confidence when discussing plans. Nothing concerning the Lingle murder could be learned from him.

A BLOW TO GANGS

There have been arguments in some quarters, based on the oft repeated lament of Brothers' lawyers that they had no funds to conduct his defense, that if Brothers was guilty his gangster associates and the others involved in the crime would have aided him.

Although Brothers' defense must have had funds, how much only his own lawyers know, the facts show that there were at times four or five defense lawyers in the case. One was Harry Cantwell, who came here from St. Louis and put up at a loop hotel. Brothers' family came here from St. Louis. The defense went out of town in their search for evidence and to interview state witnesses. All this did not indicate a poverty stricken defense.

But granting that Brothers had little money, how could his gangster associates aid him? Jack Zuta was dead. Grover Dullard was a harried fugitive and penniless. Hogan was living from hand to mouth, hoping to make a haul in new crimes, but he made none. Danny Stanton and his gang had troubles of their own, and lawyers' bills to pay, and anyway this crime apparently had been none of their business.

The Fee for the Crime.

Brothers probably got $500 for his crime. It is not known to the state investigators what he got. But they had evidence that when he was in funds Brothers was a wild spender and squandered what money he had on a wild night's debauchery. There was information that as an additional reward for his crime Brothers had been promised a good job in the Sheridan Wave gambling club.

But the Sheridan Wave never reopened. How bitterly mistaken the conspirators were if they had hoped, with the death of Lingle, they might recoup their lost fortunes! It should be pointed out that it was Commissioner Russell, the intimate friend of Jake Lingle, who closed the Sheridan Wave and kept it closed.

Russell has told the investigators that never had Lingle interceded with him for any protection to be given the Sheridan Wave or any other gambling joint, and this should answer the rumors which have been broadcast in the other newspapers of Chicago that Lingle had agreed, for a fee, to see that the Sheridan Wave might be reopened.

The end of this story has come. It is not the end of the Lingle investigation. Perhaps some day Brothers, losing hope that he can cheat the fourteen year penitentiary sentence, will crack and tell the story. Perhaps the proof of the motive may come from elsewhere.

The murder of Lingle is avenged by the conviction of the murderer Brothers, and in years hence this crime, the crime of a century, may be reckoned as the starting place from which the fall of Chicago gangdom shall date.

O, FOR 10 YEAR RECESS! MICHEL TELLS SENATE

Points to 1,600 Bills, "Mostly Useless."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.] A legislative holiday of ten years, which should form a closed season on lawmaking in Illinois was advocated in the senate tonight by Senator Thomas P. Michel [Rep., Peoria], one of the liberal leaders.

The Michel outburst against too many laws came during a debate over the bill to require an application of silver nitrate to the eyes of newborn babies to prevent blindness from ophthalmia neonatorum. The senate voted down an amendment to exempt the offspring of parents who objected to such treatment on religious grounds.

People Can't Keep Up.

"The country is suffering from too much legislation," cried Senator Michel during the controversy. "The statute books are so filled with laws which most people don't know anything about that half the folks in the state are felons or criminals or malefactors without knowing it.

"We've got too many laws now. I'd be in favor of a bill to adjourn the Illinois legislature for ten years and I urge the lawmaking except of an emergency nature during that period. It would be a great relief to common folks. We've got too many bills in the legislature and we've got too many statutes on the books.

"One of the most constructive reforms which could be advanced in the state is a program for a closed season on law making and for a pruning of the statute books, which would toss out a lot of junk. We're being legislated to death."

1,600 Bills Introduced.

To give point to the Michel outburst, the house today passed the 1,000 mark in number of bills introduced, while the senate crossed the 600 line. With more than 1,600 bills now in the hopper, only 29 bills have been enacted into law, and one which passed both houses was vetoed, the prohibition repealer.

With four months gone, some leaders express the view that the scant number of bills passed is perhaps one of the best things about this session.

The babies' eyes bill, which has already passed the house, provides that any physician, midwife, nurse or parent who assists or is in charge at the birth of any child shall instill into each eye of the child, within one hour after birth, a one per cent solution of silver nitrate, or some equally effective prophylactic. Penalties are provided.

Religious Exemptions Defeated.

Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Chicago] put in an amendment to exempt babies of parents who do not desire the silver treatment on account of religious grounds.

Senator Harry G. Wright [Rep., De Kalb] opposed the amendment.

"This is not for medical treatment, but is purely preventive," he said. "It is as important as good milk and pure water for babies.

"Some 32 states now have this law. Wisconsin in eight years has not had a single case of blindness from this disease. Illinois has sixteen times as many cases as New York, which has such a bill. In Chicago there are 72 babies totally blind from this cause. Their care will cost the state $687,000."

The amendment was voted down, 27 to 12, and the bill was advanced to third reading.

ELLINORE CARROLL.
[Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

Urbana, Ill., April 28.—An election to name a May queen on the University of Illinois campus this afternoon was declared void as the result of too much politics. The committee decided to destroy the ballots without counting them and have set Thursday afternoon as the time for the holding of another election. Three Chicago co-eds, Stella McLeish, 3020 West 39th street; Grace Endohr, 5806 Newark avenue, and Ellinore Carroll, 5244 Lakewood avenue, were the candidates of this afternoon's election. The May queen will be crowned during the Mother's day festivities May 9.

CREW OF BURNING TANKER RESCUED IN MID-ATLANTIC

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Rescue in mid-ocean of the crew of the burning Swedish tanker Castor by the British freighter Ousebridge was related today in wireless messages to the American export line from the Excalibur, the line's new passenger vessel.

The rescue was effected at 3:21 a. m. The first S O S was broadcast by the Castor at 2 a. m. The Castor, if not too seriously damaged, will be towed to the Azores.

The crew of the Castor was forced to take to lifeboats which were in imminent danger of catching fire. The blaze started in the engine room and spread rapidly.

URGE USE OF NEW LAKE FRONT LAND AS PLANE FIELD

Business Men Put Plan to Lincoln Park Board.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

A group of north side business men yesterday urged the commissioners of Lincoln park to convert the new section of made land opposite Montrose avenue into a lake front airport so that Chicago may have a landing field in its front yard during the World's Fair.

The delegation, led by Victor J. Curto, head of the aviation committee of the Central Uptown Business Men's association, and Maj. R. W. Schroeder, Chicago aviation pioneer, submitted a survey to the commissioners showing that the Montrose site offers Chicago its only opportunity to test the plan of a lake front airport without great expense to the taxpayers.

Want Field for Fair.

"The visitors who come to the World's Fair by airplane should be able to fly over the fair grounds and land in our front yard instead of in our back yard," Maj. Schroeder said. "They should be able to board an airplane at a terminal within ten minutes' ride of the loop instead of at an inaccessible airport an hour away."

Mr. Curto pointed out that the site could be converted into a landing field at negligible expense and in such a way that the land would not be permanently altered.

"We urge this plan as a trial of the lake front airport plan, rather than as a permanent project," said Mr. Curto. "If we miss this chance we will never have another. It would cost millions to build an island airport and that would be a costly experiment. Whatever the commissioners plan to do with the Montrose site it will take two years to landscape the area and in that time the land could be advantageously used as an airport."

Wright Opposed to Plan.

While the commissioners promised to take the project under advisement, President Warren Wright viewed the plan with disfavor.

"The novelty of airplanes is wearing off," he told Maj. Schroeder. "There are not as many people interested in flying as there were last year and in previous years. You won't have many people patronizing your airport this summer."

Maj. Schroeder pointed out that 500,000 people visited Curtiss field last year and that greater numbers were expected at all flying fields this year.

Long awaited improvement of the Chicago airport was started yesterday when workmen began the construction of a 100 foot concrete apron to border the south and east boundaries of the field. This will provide taxiing runways for planes. Today the construction of the new $75,000 administration building at Cicero avenue and 63d street will be started.

A total of $450,000 will be spent in this work and in the leveling of 120 acres adjoining the present airport, which will double the size of the field.

ALDERMEN GET WIDER POWERS IN NEW RULES

Under the rules of the new city council the members of the committees have greater powers than formerly, according to an interpretation given yesterday by Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the committee on rules.

One important change, he said, is the provision that the membership of any committee can recommend to the council the ouster of its chairman, vice chairman or of any member. As seven members constitute a quorum, four of the seven, if only that number were present, could institute ouster proceedings. The ouster must be confirmed by a majority vote of the council.

Other new rules provide that five members of a committee can call a committee meeting if the chairman refuses to do so, provided that the vice chairman can preside in the absence of the chairman, and authorize the city clerk to keep a record of the attendance of members at the committee meetings.

HUSBAND, SHOT BY WIFE, DIES.

Clarence Stephens, 31 years old, a bus driver, died yesterday at the Ravenswood hospital from bullet wounds received last Thursday when he was shot by his wife, Vera, in their home at 1610 Wilson avenue. She was arrested yesterday and held for the inquest today.

CHICAGO REALTY MEN FIGHT STATE INCOME TAX BILL

Deluge Legislators with Protests on Measure.

Members of the state legislature within the last week have been deluged with protests from Chicago real estate operators against the Lantz bill for a state income tax, H. H. Haylett, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, revealed yesterday. The bill already has passed the senate and is now before the house.

A stack of several hundred copies of letters urging defeat of the measure, was produced by Mr. Haylett as evidence that the real estate interests in Chicago oppose the measure in its present form. Haylett said that each Chicago legislator had received at least fifty such communications in response to an appeal sent to members of the board by the advisory council on April 22.

Another message to legislators, this one by Mark Levy, president of the board, explaining why real estate owners will not benefit by the Lantz bill, was in the mails yesterday.

Burden on City Residents.

"The tax as it is proposed would fall most heavily upon residents in urban centers through the operation of the super-brackets, while the farmer obtains most of his living expenses from the farm with a comparatively small taxable cash income, if any," Mr. Levy points out.

"We maintain that the proceeds of the tax should go back to the counties of origin through the distributive school fund and be applied to reduce the educational expenses, which now constitute a large percentage of the tax rate. We further affirm that unless property tax payers should be allowed an offset aginst their income tax instead of merely deducting the property tax as a business expense in computing their net income, this proposed income tax will, in effect, become simply another tax.

"It is my desire to urge on behalf of our organization and its members your utmost endeavor to defeat the bill in its present form."

Board Opposes "Tax Strike."

The real estate board officials agreed that the policies of the new city administration as outlined by Mayor Cermak, particularly with reference to economy and consolidation of the local taxing bodies, should help solve the tax problem.

The board, Mr. Haylett said, has no connection with the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers which is urging property owners not to pay their 1929 tax bills.

"We understand that the 1929 tax money already has been spent and we are not in sympathy with any kind of a taxpayers' strike," Mr. Haylett said.

Another criticism of the activities of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers came yesterday from Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], who formerly was secretary of the association. It was revealed that both Hodes and Benjamin F. Lindheimer, newly appointed president of the board of local improvements, one of the sponsors of the association, have severed their relations with it.

U. of C. Students to Give Uncle Tom's Cabin Tonight

The Dramatic association of the University of Chicago will present its version of Harriett Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in Mandel hall on the university campus tonight. The rôle of Simon Legree will be taken by Fritz Leiber Jr., son of the Shakesperean actor. Pat Magee will play the part of Uncle Tom, Sara Jane Leckrone will be Little Eva, and Topsy will be played by Mildred Marqurson.

SPRAGUE PUSHES CERMAK PROGRAM FOR NEW STREETS

Demands Terminal Action by Railroads.

Commissioner of Public Works Sprague started yesterday to translate into action Mayor Cermak's inaugural demand for "vigorous constructive efforts" to put through the new streets made possible by the river straightening and to bring about the construction of a unified railway terminal in the area affected.

The commissioner announced that he has called upon Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], new chairman of the council railway terminals committee, proposing the committee's immediate cooperation in pushing ahead the south side development plan. At the same time he served notice on the railroads that the Cermak administration expects action from them.

Demands Railroads Act.

"The river straightening job is done," Commissioner Sprague declared. "The sole purpose of this great project was to break open the south side of the loop and to make way for a solution of the terminal problem.

"In my opinion it is almost criminal that the taxpayers have paid for straightening of the river and have not received the resultant benefits. The railroad have played horse long enough. They must get on with their terminal development or we shall use every power we have to make them do so. The city also must do its share by going forward as rapidly as possible with the street openings. We shall waste no time in getting under way, and we are going to have results."

Commissioner Sprague proposed as an initial step in the street program the opening of Franklin street parallel to the straightened river from Harrison street to the intersection of 22d street, Princeton avenue, and Archer avenue.

Important Step, He Says.

This improvement prior to the eventual cutting through of La Salle, Clark, and Dearborn streets and the terminal construction has been studied and received the favorable consideration of Chicago plan commission engineers, according to Eugene Taylor, manager of the commission. Its importance, Mr. Taylor explained, lies in the fact that it would produce at once a traffic artery from the loop to the south and southwest sides.

Tentative plans for the Franklin street project call for construction of a street 108 feet wide, 100 feet east of the east bank of the river. It also includes the opening of Market street from Harrison street to Van Buren street to furnish a connecting link with Wacker drive.

"It seems to me that Franklin street would be a good one on which to start," said Commissioner Sprague. "Once we forced that one through it would give up a lever with which to pry open the others. The railroads would then have to fall in line."

Discuss Congress Street Plans.

The opening of Congress street, another important project adjacent to but not directly connected with the river straightening area streets, was the subject of a conference yesterday in the office of Edward J. Noonan, engineer for the council railway terminals committee. Present were Mr. Noonan, Joseph K. Brittain, chairman of the terminals committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Philip F. W. Peck and W. A. Dudley, president and managing director of the Greater Central District association.

It was agreed that further studies of the Congress street project should be made and that property owners along the street should be consulted as to the concessions they would be willing to make to the city in the sale of their property.

Both the Franklin and Congress street improvements are expected to be taken up shortly by the council committee which, at the same time, will go over the entire railway terminal and river straightening situation with a view to carrying out Mayor Cermak's program.

Bill Provides Voters Pick Presidential Delegates

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield], who fought against passage of the bill to repeal the presidential primaries, today introduced a measure to provide for the election of delegates at large to national conventions by the people instead of by conventions. It also appeared likely that the Searcy bill to shift primary elections from April to August would not be pushed, as this would mean two primaries, one in April and one in August.

BLAMES DEMOCRATS FOR DELAYING COOK TAX RELIEF BILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Democratic obstructionism was charged by three Republican representatives today as the reason the Schnackenberg bills to abolish the Cook county board of assessors—a tax reform measure—are being postponed. Consideration of the bills was delayed again for a week today by the house subcommittee.

These are the bills advocated two weeks ago by Attorney Silas H. Strawn and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago. Mr. Strawn has said since that he does not believe the Chicago bankers will buy more tax anticipation warrants until they are signed.

Today the subcommittee, composed of four Republicans and three Democrats, held another meeting.

The three Democrats, James P. Boyle, Chicago; Thomas J. O'Brien, Chicago, and Michael F. Hennebry, Wilmington, were for postponement for a week. Leo D. Crowley [Rep., Peoria] voted with them.

The three other Republicans—Schnackenberg, David I. Swanson, Chicago, and Luther B. Bratton, Kankakee—voted to pass the bills back to the revenue committee with a favorable recommendation.

2 CHICAGO PARK SYSTEMS ASK TO INCREASE POWER

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Two Chicago park systems asked legislation today to grant them a wide enlargement of their powers.

EDW. M. OVERLAND

Representative M. L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago], a south park commissioner, introduced a bill to give the commissioners power "to lease, improve and develop park lands," and Representative Edward M. Overland [Rep., Chicago] asked that the west park board be granted permission to issue $2,500,000 in bonds without a referendum.

Use Fair Building as Office.

Mr. Igoe revealed that the prime motive of his bill dealt with the request of the Chicago Association of Commerce to rent the travel and transportation building of the 1933 World's Fair, south of Soldier field, for use as a convention hall before and after the fair. The exposition is being built on south park property.

"The board itself also wishes to use the fair's administration building for a downtown office when the exposition people have finished with it," Igoe said. He indicated that overtures have been made for the establishment of an underground garage at Monroe street in Grant park to take the place of the present open parking station.

It is possible, said Mr. Igoe, that George F. Harding, wealthy political leader, may ask the board for permission to erect a museum in the south park area for his art collection.

House Passes Mission Bill.

The west park system would use the $2,500,000 bond issue for the construction of parks, driveways, airplane landing fields, boulevard drives, and recreation facilities, according to the bill presented by Mr. Overland.

The house today passed the Schnackenberg measure to allow the reestablishment in Jackson park, Chicago, of the Mission of La Rabida, a sanitarium for children convalescing from heart disease.

CLOSE SHOOTING INQUEST.

A coroner's jury yesterday decided that Edward Fitzgerald, 33 years old, 7856 South Union avenue, who was shot and killed outside a saloon at 7356 South Peoria street, on April 21, was murdered by unidentified persons.

✣ Yeast, Eaten Daily ✣ Corrects Intestinal Fatigue, Noted Doctor Finds. ✣ Health Rewards You! ✣

THINK OF IT—a simple food that replaces harmful pills! Try it in milk.

DR. FABRICIUS, head of the famous Diakonissen Hospital in Vienna, tells how yeast "tones up" sluggish intestines.

© 1931, Standard Brands Incorporated

—explains famous Austrian hospital head.
Read Dr. JOSEF FABRICIUS' full statement about this remarkable food that keeps people well!

You know you cannot cure Intestinal Fatigue that way. Permanent relief from internal sluggishness demands a gentler, more sensible course of action.

For this extremely unpleasant trouble means a weakening of vital internal organs. The delicate mechanism of your intestines must be "toned up". . . strengthened to carry away the daily accumulation of poison-breeding wastes.

It's very simple to accomplish this, today. Here is the method famous physicians advise, in the words of Professor Doctor Josef Fabricius, the celebrated Austrian medical teacher, physician and hospital head.

"For preventing and curing constipation," Dr. Fabricius states, "physicians all over the world are securing the best possible results from fresh yeast. Its regular daily use will strengthen the muscular action of the intestines . . . promote thorough elimination . . . regulate digestion."

Isn't that expert medical opinion worth acting upon? Then why not make up your mind to discover what eating Fleischmann's Yeast will do for you?

Just add it to your regular diet, like any other food—three cakes a day, before meals, or between meals and at bedtime.

Eaten this way, fresh yeast attacks the clogging waste material in the intestines—softens it—helps your body clear it away gently and naturally.

Then, as your system is cleansed of poisons, your appetite and digestion respond. Pimples and headaches disappear. You are no longer so susceptible to sore throats and colds.

So get these benefits by starting to eat Fleischmann's Yeast today! Every cake, you know, is rich in three vitamins which your ordinary diet seldom adequately provides—vitamins B and G and the "sunshine" vitamin D.

Just eat Fleischmann's Yeast any way you like. Most people prefer it plain. Or try it in a third of a glass of water (hot or cold), or in milk. You can get it—Fleischmann's Yeast in the familiar foil wrapper with the yellow label—at any grocery, and at restaurants and soda fountains throughout the city.

Remember, it's important to ask your grocer for Fleischmann's fresh Yeast (with the yellow label) . . . the only yeast that contains the Sunshine Vitamin D! Every cake is "irradiated" to give it this added element so important for sun-starved indoor workers. It is rich in Vitamins B and G, too.

BUSCH SEEKS TO AMEND HIGHWAY EXTENSION BILLS

Objects to State Control of Streets in Chicago.

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Francis X. Busch, Mayor Cermak's corporation counsel, was here today asking the state administration to agree to an amendment of house bills 269 and 270, which authorize the state to take over municipal streets that are extensions or continuations of state highways.

FRANCIS X. BUSCH.

The bills were sponsored by Gov. Emmerson to defeat a measure fathered by the Illinois League of Municipalities which would distribute the gasoline tax revenue 1 cent to the state, 1 cent to the counties, and 1 cent to cities and villages. The state now gets 2 cents, the counties 1 cent, and the municipalities, including Chicago, which pays almost half the fuel excise collected in the state, get nothing.

Raises Objections to Bills.

These administration measures have been supported as acts enabling the state to improve the weakest links in the Illinois highway system, the routes into and through cities. However, there are lawyers who contend that the bills, in their present form, would enable the state to rebuild village streets, but would not enable the state to pay more than an inconsequential portion of the more expensive improvements such as are needed in the larger cities of the state.

Corporation Counsel Busch raised another objection to the bills, pointing out they would give the state authority to take control of any city street it might select for state highway traffic, policing the street and regulating its traffic lights and stop signs, as well as maintaining its pavement surface. The bills, he said, would also authorize the state to abandon as a state highway any street it saw fit.

Busch Talks with Governor.

"I'm suggesting," said Mr. Busch, "that the consent of municipalities should be required when the state takes over or abandons a street as a highway artery. Chicago, at least, does not want to give Springfield this unlimited power."

The corporation counsel talked to state highway officials and to Gov. Emmerson. Without disclosing the substance of these conferences, Mr. Busch said he was unable to obtain an agreement to send the bills, now awaiting third reading in the house, back to second reading, where they could be amended.

BURKE ARRIVES AT MARQUETTE FOR LIFE TERM

Marquette, Mich., April 28.—(AP)—Fred Burke, notorious gunman, was brought to the Michigan branch prison at Marquette at 7:47 o'clock [E. S. T.] tonight. Burke, sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor, was brought here from St. Joseph, in the extreme southwestern part of Michigan, in an armored car, under heavy guard.

DEFEAT OF BILLS AIMED TO BOOST TAXES IS URGED

Federation Warns Against Soaring Levies.

Defeat of more than a score of bills pending at Springfield which would permit new and additional tax levies was recommended yesterday by the Civic federation. A bulletin issued by the federation warned that the increased taxes already in sight between now and 1933 will soar even higher should these measures be enacted.

CLAYTON MARKS.

"Legislators should vigorously oppose all tax increases, direct or indirect, for which there is not a clear, unmistakable, and immediate necessity," stated the bulletin, which was signed by Clayton Mark, president of the federation. "All unsound amendments to public employé pension acts should be defeated, as these ultimately increase taxes."

Several of the bills singled out for condemnation by the bulletin would directly boost the tax rates of local governments, while others would provide special tax rates for a variety of purposes, ranging from airports to county maps.

List Tax Increase Bills.

A tabulation of the tax increase measures, showing the number, subject, threatened tax increase on each $100 of assessed valuation, and status of each, was presented by the federation, as follows:

Senate bill 373—To create municipal utility districts. No limit to increase. Committee on corporations and municipalities.

House bill 688—Same as senate bill 373. Committee on utilities.

Senate bill 81—In school districts outside of Chicago would permit levy of taxes for bonds outside of maximum rate. Increase from 7 to 57 cents. Passed senate; third reading in house; amended to require local referendum.

Senate bill 106—Increases maximum county corporate rate from 25 to 40 cents. Increase 15 cents. Committee on county government.

Proposal Excludes Chicago.

Senate bill 114—Municipal airports. Increase 10 cents. Third reading; amended to require referendum and exclude Chicago.

Senate bill 23—Increases House of Correction pensions. Increase 1-10 cent. Committee on corporations and municipalities.

Senate bill 453—Similar to senate bill 93. Same status.

Senate bill 141—Increases Chicago city pensions. No increase until 1933. Passed senate; third reading in house.

H. B. 117—Free text book tax outside of Chicago. Increase 4 cents. Third reading.

H. B. 118—Increases public benefit taxes in cities of 2,500 to 200,000 inhabitants. Increase 40 cents. Committee on municipalities.

H. B. 482—Reorganizes Chicago firemen's pension. Increase 7 cents. Third reading.

For School Tax Boost.

H. B. 657—Permits tax increases for downstate schools. Increase 2 cents. Committee on municipalities.

S. B. 268—Same as H. B. 657.

The bulletin attacked as especially objectionable the bills to create utility districts and to levy a tax for airports.

Among pending bills which would indirectly or later on boost taxes, listed separately by the bulletin, were senate bills 374, 268, 416, 156, and 214 and house bills 654 and 940.

Game Wardens' Budget Cut $24,000 by Illinois House

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—After listening for an hour to attacks on the administration of the state department of conservation and its director, Ralph F. Bradford, the house of representatives today cut $24,000 from the $1,135,600 biennial department appropriation.

R. H. BRADFORD.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

This represented only a fraction of the reduction asked by Representative Truman A. Snell [Dem., Carlinville], who led the fight to abolish most of the appropriation for game wardens, and sliced out the budget for travel, operation, repairs, equipment, and maintenance of game farms.

"There isn't one game warden in ten who earns his salt," Snell told the house. "They do not work, so why should they be kept on? This department doesn't give the sportsmen of the state a run for their money."

Defended by Tice.

"If you do away with wardens," objected Homer J. Tice [Rep., Greenview], chairman of the appropriations committee, "you will take all protection away from the game."

Snell moved to amend the bill by cutting a total of $726,500 from the appropriation, but Tice's motion to table the amendment won majority support. Representative John M. Lee [Dem., Chicago] then presented an amendment to reduce the $34,000 item for repairs and equipment to $60,000, and this passed without debate.

State Fair Under Attack.

Another bill presented by Mr. Tice to establish a free gate at the state fair lost after Snell, Representative John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon], and others had charged that it was actuated by "a political scheme" and that "the pets" were already going to the fair free of charge.

A vote on the free gate proposal showed 72 "yeas" to 45 "nays." The bill needed a majority of the 153 votes in the house, or 77, to pass.

Follow These Simple Rules:

1. Each evening for 42 consecutive evenings (not including Saturdays) W-G-N will broadcast 3 songs of yesterday—"Tune Tangles." On each day following the broadcast the Chicago Tribune will print a "Tune Tangle" Crossword Puzzle. Each puzzle will contain the title of one of the songs broadcast the preceding evening. You are invited to listen to the broadcast, solve the Tune Tangle Crossword in the next day's Tribune and name the song.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved and neatest complete sets of answers in accordance with these rules. NOTE: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 42 Tune Tangles completely to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. The prizes are as follows:

1st Prize		$1,000.00
2nd Prize		500.00
3rd Prize		250.00
Next 2 Prizes,	$100.00 each	200.00

Next 310 Prizes,	5.00 each	1,550.00
430 Prizes, Totaling		$5,000.00

4. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employees of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

5. Tune Tangle Crosswords are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Tune Tangles," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight, 15 days after Puzzle No. 42 has been printed.

6. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Postoffice Department. Contestants may submit as many sets of puzzles as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

7. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

8. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

LABOR LAUNCHES NATIONAL DRIVE FOR BEER, WINE

Call 2,000,000 Members in War to Ease Dry Law

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28.—[Special.]—Delegates to labor's conference for modification of the Volstead act at their closing sessions today unanimously approved committee reports seeking to align organized labor's full membership of more than 2,000,000 actively behind the drive for dry law modification to permit the return of light wines and beer.

The modification committee hereafter will be known also as "labor's liberty legion," upon recommendation of the committee on officers' reports, which declared that "the paramount need of our times is for revival of faith in liberty and democracy and the marshaling of a great legion of defenders of freedom against covert and insidious assaults, in the long list of which the Volstead act is perhaps the most vicious."

Calling upon national and international unions, state and city labor groups, and local unions of every craft, the finance committee asked "support for the work intrusted to this organization by authority of the American Federation of Labor's executive council." Nation-wide meetings will be held when modification bills come before the judiciary committees of the house and senate in the next session of congress.

The two day conference, Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York said at a dinner of delegates tonight, "serves as a notice to the political parties that, if they will not take the leadership on the question of prohibition, public opinion will find other means of self-expression."

"The public," he continued, "has already fully determined to face the issue without timidity and without equivocation."

City Employes Planning Yearly Dance for May 23

The Municipal Employes' society will hold its fourteenth annual dancing party in the ballroom of Navy pier on May 23. Plans will be formulated at a meeting of the executive committee in the Press club this evening. Charles L. Bennet, president of the society, and Philip Steele, chairman of the executive board, are directing the committee on arrangements. Mayor Cermak is to be invited.

Shot as He Talks to Wife of Another Man; May Die

Howard Rawlings, 27 years old, 4641 Sheridan road, last night was shot and probably fatally wounded as he sat in a lunchroom talking to Mrs. Betty Vallos, 27 years old, a waitress. He was taken to the Henrotin hospital. The police are looking for Peter Vallos, Betty's estranged husband, who is said to reside at 401 Irving Park boulevard. Mrs. Vallos was held.

MERE THREAT TO WRECK DIRIGIBLE RULED NO CRIME

Ohio Syndicalism Law Found Invalid.

Akron, O., April 28.—(AP)—Freedom of speech was redefended tonight in a new judicial ruling which held that the Ohio criminal syndicalism law is contrary to the state and federal constitutions.

PAUL F. KASSAY. [Acme Photo.]

The decision was given here today by Common Pleas Judge Walter B. Wanamaker when he dismissed an indictment against Paul F. Kassay, which charged Kassay violated the syndicalism law by "verbally justifying" allegedly planned attempts to wreck the navy dirigible Akron, under construction here.

Prosecution attorneys in the Kassay case were not content with Judge Wanamaker's decision and planned to appeal the ruling.

Told of Plans to Wreck Aircraft.

The indictment against Kassay accused him of having told an agent of the department of justice that he planned to leave out rivets from the framework of the Zeppelin so it would be wrecked in some future flight, but there was no accusation in the indictment that any damage had been committed.

Judge Wanamaker's ruling, which was the first made on the syndicalism law, said "mere talk, in and of itself alone, unattendant with evil consequences that might reasonably be expected to flow thereform, cannot be made by law a crime in Ohio."

Judge Is War Veteran.

Judge Wanamaker is a war veteran and was the first American aviator to be shot down behind the German lines. He has been an active member of the American Legion. His ruling said in part:

"There is no question but that the state of Ohio has the constitutional right to prohibit advocacy of doctrines for the purpose and with the intent of having those doctrines used, but it had not the right to prohibit the liberty of speech to the extent that mere doctrines, as such, cannot be exchanged and used and considered in the exchange of ideas on the public forum.

"Freedom of speech is an inherent right of free people, not but what it may be abused, but abuse itself must contemplate an evil to flow from it, and that its use as such was for the purpose of constituting evil."

Kassay, the defendant in the present case, was arrested March 19 and held in custody until March 26, when $20,000 bond was supplied.

After his arrest the communist organization in Cleveland came to his defense, although they denied him as a member.

ITALY ARRESTS 'NEWSIES' SELLING VATICAN PAPERS

ROME, April 28.—(AP)—The government's immediate reaction today to the pope's letter published in yesterday's Osservatore Romano, in which he warned that the Fascist régime must follow the teachings of the church, was to arrest the news vendors who shouted the contents of the paper on the streets. The paper itself, which often is used to disseminate official announcements from the vatican, was not suspended, but the newsboys who cried "Pope's open letter" received suspended sentences of six days each and a warning that in future they must sell the Osservatore Romano without calling attention to its contents.

LIQUOR WASHES UP ON SANDS OF MICHIGAN SHORE

Monroe, Mich., April 28.—[Special.]—The shore of Lake Erie in Monroe county is only a few miles from Ontario, and when times are good it is infested with rum runners. Occasionally fear of capture causes the contraband carriers to dump their loads overboard. If they misjudge the depth of the water and later are unable to find their cargoes they just charge it off. Yesterday and Monday a strong west wind blew the water several hundred yards off shore, and when the natives woke up in the morning they found a great variety of beer, whisky, wine, and ale scattered over the beach. The next day the water went out still further and still more contraband was uncovered.

RUSSIA AGREES TO BUY $26,150,000 GOODS IN ITALY

Rome to Purchase Raw Material Under Pact.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

ROME, April 28.—Under the terms of a new commercial accord signed here yesterday between Russia and Italy, the soviets agree to purchase $13,690,000 worth of Italian manufactured goods during the present year. The accord, which amounts to practically a contract, calls actually for $13,205,000, but the extra $2,615,000 is made up of goods to be furnished to the soviets under a similar accord signed last August which provided for purchases amounting to $10,480,000. Russia already has purchased $7,845,000 worth of material under this agreement.

This means that between August, 1930, and the end of this year Russia has contracted to buy $26,150,000 worth of Italian manufactures, which, it is expected, will go far toward equalizing the commercial balance between these two countries. Figures for last year are not available, but some idea of the significance of the present accord may be gained from a comparison with 1929, when Russia sent $17,782,000 worth of goods to Italy and took $3,661,000 worth of Italian goods.

Italy Buys Raw Material.

Italy's purchases in Russia are largely raw materials and wheat. During ten months of last year Italy bought 170,000 tons of Russian wheat, valued at $7,060,500. Under the new accord these wheat purchases will be enlarged.

Russia, under the agreement, agrees to buy fifteen categories of Italian products and manufactures, including ships, fertilizers, railway building materials, metallurgical and mining and industrial machinery, electrical apparatus, cables, automobile chassis, tractor spare parts, aviation material, chemical and dye products, metals and wire.

It was also announced that a commission of Italian manufacturers will soon go to Russia to study the principal Russian industrial centers.

Government Guarantees Credits.

Of much importance in the new accord is the quota of guarantees which the Italian state gives to the Italian manufacturers of goods sold to the soviets. The Italian government guarantees credits up to 75 per cent of the amount exported. Credits of 25 months are granted the Russians for all goods except ships, for which the credits carry over a longer period.

Requests for state guarantee of these Russian credits, it is stipulated, must be presented by each individual exporter through the Italian National Export institute. The accord is renewable for another year, unless denounced.

At the same time that Italy's trade with Russia is about to be so greatly augmented, recent figures show that American trade with Italy has undergone a great decrease. Last year American exports to Italy dropped to 100 million dollars from 153 millions in 1929. At the same time Italian exports to the United States were 117 million dollars in 1929 and only 79 millions in 1930.

NYE COMMITTEE TO HEAD INQUIRY INTO CANNON ACCOUNTS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—The case of Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, accused by Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] of violating the federal corrupt practices act, will be taken up by the senate committee investigating campaign funds a week from tomorrow, Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], committee chairman, announced today.

REPRESENTATIVE G. H. TINKHAM.

The announcement was made following a conference participated in by Senator Nye and Senators Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] and Porter H. Dale [Rep., Vt.], other committee members. Bishop Cannon is not expected to appear, as he recently notified the committee he would be engaged until May 11. Senator Nye said that the bishop would not be subpoenaed for the meeting May 4 but indicated that he would be called at a later date.

Bishop Cannon last week questioned the constitutionality of the Glass resolution under which the committee proposes to examine the bishop's expenditures in connection with the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia in 1928.

SPAIN'S REPUBLIC STRUGGLES WITH JOBLESS CRISIS

Hungry Crowds Invade Stores in Seville.

MADRID, April 28.—(AP)—Several of the many problems which the new Spanish republican government is facing began forcing themselves forward today. Included among them are unemployment, reconciliation of the Catalonia demand for regional independence with the unity of the republic, and reduction of the personnel of government departments.

The last of these measures is considered necessary for economy and a safe budget. But the government's leaders are realizing that to achieve it, it will be necessary to create more unemployment, when already many thousands are without jobs throughout Spain.

Jobless Invade Food Stores.

Crowds of hungry jobless invaded some stores in Seville today, demanding food. Many frightened storekeepers closed their shops. The group of unemployed staged a demonstration in front of the city hall, demanding work. No one was injured. Unemployment is especially prevalent throughout Andalusia.

Together with these troubles came the word from the other end of Spain that Col. Francisco Macia, at Barcelona, in spite of his "love feast" on Sunday with President Alcala Zamora, was serving notice that Catalonia would never relinquish her demand for complete regional independence, without interference from or subjection to the central government at Madrid.

At present everything seems to depend on how much the national assembly to be elected in June will attempt to limit Catalan independence.

SIGNS BILL DELAYING INTEREST DATES ON DELINQUENT TAXES

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson today signed senate bill 253, which postpones the date on which delinquent 1929 and 1930 Cook county taxes begin to bear interest.

Introduced by Senator Patrick J. Carroll [Dem., Chicago], the bill provides that the time limit on which the 1929 taxes shall begin to bear interest is extended from April 1 to May 15, 1931, and the date upon which such delinquent taxes for 1930 shall begin to bear interest from Dec. 1, 1931, to Jan. 1, 1932.

It contained an emergency clause which puts extensions into effect immediately.

The senate took favorable action late in the day on H. B. 387, which sets back tax sales three months, postponing them from the June to the September terms of the county courts. It was recalled from committee and the tracks laid for its passage.

SICK MAN POSING AS MISSIONARY IS AN EX-CONVICT

Cleveland, O., April 28.—(AP)—A man who posed as a missionary, police said, tonight was disclosed as a former convict. He is Ralph H. Thurber who, for the last week, has been in a hospital claiming to be suffering from a strange malady.

Thurber admitted today, the officers said, that he had a prison record. Police asserted he had served prison terms for forgery in both Ohio and California and had had other brushes with the law during the time he claimed he had done religious work in the orient.

Word from Lockport, N. Y., was that Thurber's mother had left her home there for "somewhere in Ohio." Hospital authorities had received no word from her tonight. Lockport officials said the woman's son had been shell shocked on the battlefields of France 13 years ago and was subject to hallucinations.

No Stranger to Publicity.

Lockport, N. Y., April 28.—(AP)—Ralph Thurber, in a Cleveland hospital claiming to be a victim of a rare disease, is no stranger to nation-wide publicity. In March, 1929, while in a British prison, Thurber caused a sensation by a confession that he had participated in the plot to bomb Wall street, which on Sept. 16, 1920, resulted in the death of 30 persons. Investigation revealed that he had been serving a term in San Quentin prison, California, at the time of the bombing.

Thurber is well known here. Prior to the entrance of the United States into the world war he enlisted in the Canadian army and saw service overseas. He was discharged after being shell shocked and returned to America. Later he enlisted in the United States marines and while on furlough here was a Liberty loan speaker.

Mrs. Susan Thurber, his mother, was not at home today. Neighbors said she had gone to Ohio, probably to visit her son.

RUSSIA CANCELS CONTRACT WITH CHICAGO CONCERN

Soviets Plan to Complete Building Project.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, April 8.—[By mail.]—Contracts for the construction of the largest cement making plant in the world, a giant grain elevator, flour mill and storehouse, let by the soviet government to the McDonald Engineering company of Chicago, are being liquidated, the bolsheviks claiming that the American concern did not execute its undertakings satisfactorily.

The Russians propose to carry on the construction themselves, and have hired several engineers and experts which the McDonald firm sent to Russia about a year ago when the project was started. J. J. Carter of the McDonald company is here, negotiating for a settlement and expects to be able to leave next month.

American Experts Called.

About 25 American specialists were brought to Russia by the Chicago firm, and it was planned to summon 15 more for the cement plant, which was to have been begun at Briansk, near Moscow, last summer, but was delayed. Plans called for an initial capacity of 20,000 barrels per day. The cost of construction was about $30,000,000.

Work was started on the elevator, flour mill and storage plant at Semipalatinsk in Kazaksian last year. This contract was for about $1,500,000. The capacity of the elevators exceeded 20,000 bushels of wheat. Transportation broke down, however, and the Russians were unable to deliver material on time and the work was held up.

When it was seen that the entire project could not be carried out as scheduled, Mr. Carter went to Semipalatinsk, and instructed that work with all material available be concentrated on completing the elevator, rather than continuing all three buildings, with winter coming on and the mercury frequently dropping to 65 degrees below zero in this region.

Engineer Defends Action.

The elevator was completed, but nothing installed in it because the Russians failed to obtain credits in America for the machinery. The soviet authorities complained at the tactics of abandoning work on the flour mill and warehouse, and insisted that this interfered with the five year plan provisions. Mr. Carter contended that an unroofed and uncompleted plant would suffer serious damages if left that way through the extreme cold of the winter, and defended his action in rushing the elevator to completion and getting a roof on it before winter set in.

The contract, however, was canceled and the soviet organization announced its intention of proceeding with the work itself, using the plans prepared by the McDonald company. It made tempting offers to several of the McDonald men, and is reported to have offered Mr. Carter a salary of $50,000 per year if he would undertake to handle the job for them direct, and leave McDonald. Mr. Carter declined the offer, but several of his men accepted the terms.

A section of wall about 45 feet long on a cement plant being erected near Briansk on plans prepared by the McDonald company collapsed recently and efforts were made by soviet authorities to blame this on the Chicago concern.

An Engineering Error.

Mr. Carter, however, pointed out that his plans had undergone considerable alterations after they had been submitted to the Russian engineers handling the work, and, furthermore, that he had pointed out the danger of attempting to pour concrete in freezing weather, which was largely responsible for the accident. The wall collapsed at night, when work was stopped, and no one was injured.

Investigation into the matter was turned over to the G. P. U., the secret police, for a full report, and this organization sought to stampede Mr. Carter and several of his engineers into a special court for an inquiry. Mr. Carter declined to make any statement, explaining that he required time to investigate the accident himself, to check over the plans, and, if necessary, to have legal representation before committing himself. When the G. P. U. sought to force several of the McDonald engineers to testify Mr. Carter refused to permit them to, and in the end had his own way.

'CHICAGO SHOULD BE DESTROYED,' BRITISH DEBATING UNION VOTES

CAMBRIDGE, England, April 28.—(AP)—The Cambridge union, famous debating society, tonight passed a motion, "Delenda Est Chicago" (that Chicago should be destroyed). The vote was 171 to 143.

The principal speaker against the motion was Edgar Wallace, who said he attributed most of the evils of local government in Chicago to political jobbery—a fact which he declared is now being realized by the mass of the people.

Quoting reports that Jack [Lega] Diamond was not shot by gangsters but by farmers, Wallace said: "The lynch law will eventually wipe out those deplorable men who sit in the seat of government."

AIRPLANES BOMB MADEIRA REBELS; WRECK WIRELESS

Both Sides Claim Victory in Battle for Island.

LISBON, April 28.—(AP)—Both sides claimed victory tonight in the conflict between the rebel junta at Funchal, Madeira, and the government expeditionary force which went from here to put down the rebellion.

Following an ultimatum to the rebels, threatening an attack on Funchal by government forces unless the rebellion was ended early tonight, a battle was reported in which the government gunboat Ibo, after having been fired upon by the rebel batteries, returned the fire. The rebel batteries were declared to have been silenced and the rebel positions on shore abandoned.

Rebels Claim City in Festival.

The revolutionary government, however, issued a bulletin after the battle declaring the city was in festival, with the population acclaiming Gen. Souza Dias, rebel leader.

The rebel garrison tonight offered the government forces a new set of conditions under which it would surrender. The offer was made through the bishop of Funchal. Admiral Correia, minister of war, who is leading the government forces, refused to accept.

Tonight's battle, government reports said, was preceded by a bombardment from the air. Seaplanes flew over the Fort of St. John the Baptist and bombed the Funchal wireless station. The pilots reported that the installation was entirely wrecked. The fortifications also were bombed, but the extent of the damage was not learned.

The rebels in their bulletin gave a new version of yesterday's military operations, in which the government claimed to have attacked and destroyed the wireless station at Canicel. The rebels said the Portuguese warship Carvalho Arujo had offered to join the rebel cause and was permitted to approach shore, with orders to anchor in front of Machico and disembark the soldiers at a spot protected by rebel artillery. Hidden by a morning fog, the bulletin continued, another gunboat began to fire, making the disembarkation impossible.

Later, the announcement said, Portuguese forces landed and were energetically repelled by a small military force encamped there. The rebels claimed the loyal forces suffered great loss of life and lost 100 prisoners. During the artillery duel, they said, the wireless station was hit several times, but should be in working order in two or three days. This report was entirely at variance with previous news of the revolt reaching here.

Students Revolt in Lisbon.

The red flag of revolution waved over the Lisbon school of medicine today for two hours while students and police engaged in a fray. Three students were seriously injured and a score of others suffered minor wounds.

The mêlée started when striking students, supported by a number of civilians, conducted a noisy demonstration outside the ministry of education. When police and guards arrived the youths retreated to the school and locked themselves in, expressing defiance of the authority and singing the "Internationale." Police used revolvers to regain control of the situation. Firemen climbed on the roof and hauled down the red emblem.

Report Warships Disabled.

MADRID, April 28.—(AP)—Reports from Lisbon late tonight said the cruiser Vasco da Gama, in use by the government forces attempting to put down the revolt at Funchal, had been withdrawn from active service. A shell was said to have exploded on the ship's deck, putting it out of action and wounding five sailors.

FORWARD, CHICAGO.

Mayor Cermak's inaugural message to the city council was an able presentation of the major problems with which our city government is confronted. It was a pledge of determined effort for their solution, backed by a constructive program. It was an appeal to the council, to officials, and to the good citizenship of Chicago to share and support this effort.

That appeal will not fail. Chicago stands erect again and is entering upon a new epoch of growth. Mayor Cermak is giving the leadership our civic affairs have needed. He is showing the will and the ability to establish administrative efficiency and responsibility, to put able and honest men at the strategic posts, to face courageously the problems of retrenchment and taxation. He proposes to draw upon disinterested, specially equipped, and nonpartisan citizens for aid in the solution of municipal problems, and he promises constant cooperation with city officials and committees of the council in the working out of their problems.

The citizenship of Chicago may well be inspired by this beginning. The spirit of our people will rise to it. Leadership in business and finance, in industry and commerce, and in the large civic activities which are our pride will go out with a lightened heart, with new confidence to meet opportunity. The past history of Chicago's triumph over difficulties, of Chicago's unsurpassed courage, initiative, and energy comes out of the darkness of depression and throws its light on our path. The spirit of Chicago has never been conquered by misfortune. It is the conquering spirit still.

We have set about the putting of our public affairs in order. We have got our feet once more on solid ground. We shall go forward now to restored prosperity, to greater progress, to higher achievements. The city has unsurpassed resources, the chief of which are our situation at the heart of a great continent, with its growing population, and the energy and fighting heart of its people. Our banking institutions are sound and ably directed. Our commercial and industrial directorship is vigorous and resourceful. Our transportation and distributing facilities are unsurpassed in extent and variety, and they are expanding steadily. These are the elements of our material greatness, and upon them the future of the city rests secure.

The only thing we need today is the fighting mood. The go sign has flashed. Let's go. Chicago can lead the march back to national prosperity. It has shown the way before. It can and will show the way again. The hour of doubt and hesitation is over. The leadership of the city in business, in finance, in all the activities of Chicago, faces the wide doors of opportunity swinging open before it. A better day is not coming—it is here.

The tasks we have to accomplish are many and difficult. They call for the best in us, but they will be done with a will, and the reward is rich and certain. We are set for another era of prosperity, of progress in government, in business, in social and civic betterment. The home owners, the workers, the directors of enterprise, are an army marching in a great advance. What they need now, and all they need, is courage and determination and confidence in victory. They are our birthright from an inspiring past. They belong to us now, and with them we are going forward to new and greater achievements than our past has ever known.

Chicago is one of the world's great dynamos of energy and intelligence. Its huge wheels have been on the dead center of depression, but they are moving again, and speed and power will grow irresistibly. Nowhere in the world is there greater assurance of progress and prosperity, of the broadening betterment of the whole community, of productive labor and its substantial rewards, of better living and ever widening opportunity. We are on the threshold of a new and, we believe, a sounder and more enduring prosperity.

A REAL ECONOMY.

The inspector general of the army, Maj. Gen. Drum, brings up an old problem in his annual report, the waste in army expenditure through the retention of unnecessary army posts. This is analagous to the similar waste in the navy through the retention of unnecessary navy yards.

Both evils have the same cause and neither is the fault respectively of the army and navy departments. They are the result of local selfishness and wire pulling in congress. No locality with an obsolete post or yard is willing to give it up. It means government money for the community, and there is also the element of an ill-advised local pride. Before the war the army was scattered over 47 army posts, most of them established in the west when the Indian was a menace to frontier settlement. The army repeatedly tried to close them out, not only because they were a waste of public money, but by scattering the forces made it impossible to organize a modern army. Many reports upon this evil were presented to congress, but unavailingly. Politics and pork were stronger than the appeals of economy or military efficiency. During the late war an advance was accomplished by the elimination of many of these posts, but as Gen. Drum points out a thorough job was not done. We still have unnecessary posts, in places where they are no longer needed. This results in continued waste of money and in the dispersion of troops which ought to be brought together in larger units for training under modern conditions of warfare and for effective organization on strategic lines.

Considerable bodies of troops should be kept in the neighborhood of larger centers of population and this justifies retention of posts like Fort Sheridan, which might be abandoned for reasons of mere military organization. But apart from such clear exceptions, the army should be authorized to rid itself of obsolete posts and concentrate as a modern army.

Now that the urge for reduction in national expenditure is strong, the hope of abolishing obsolete posts and navy yards is stronger. Both the army and navy have been subjected to drastic reductions which weaken their efficiency for our defense. Here are reductions which will save money while increasing efficiency, and a fire should be lit under congress to induce it to act in the general interest of the nation.

FARMERS WHO MAKE A GOOD LIVING.

Mr. Paul Potter, THE TRIBUNE's agricultural editor, has been making a survey of farming conditions in southern and central Wisconsin. His findings must be disappointing to professional croakers. There have been times when Wisconsin farmers made more money, but he finds that the better managers and harder workers are doing well despite the prevailing depression in the prices of agricultural products of almost all kinds.

For example, a breeder of blooded sheep has employed his 238 acres at Sun Prairie in fattening lambs from the western ranges for market. In all he has handled 14,000 of them and expects to average a profit of 60 cents a head. Some farmers are feeding their stock in part on pea vines and pea pods which hitherto have been a waste product of the canneries in Wisconsin. With grain feeds at 70 per cent of their pre-war value and animal products at substantially the pre-war level, there is a wide margin for profit open to the man who will take advantage of it.

The agricultural industry in many sections of this country is the victim of its political friends. They have groaned, lamented, and legislated year in and year out until they have succeeded in crippling the marketing processes and convincing many farmers that their future is hopeless. Far from improving matters, the politicians have made them far worse. The costly failure of the farm board is the perfect flower of a decade of misconceived agitation.

The fact is that the farmers for whose lot most of the tears were shed were precisely those who deserved the smallest measure of sympathy. It is impossible to spend more than a few months a year in the business of growing wheat. It would be strange, indeed, if a man with moderate capital could earn a substantial living if all he did was plant and harvest wheat. No one else can do it while idling for eight or ten months. The ordinary farmer who does nothing but raise wheat can expect to make a good living only if there is an enormous demand or a dangerous undersupply of wheat in the world; that situation existed during the war years but it has not existed since. Ordinarily there is a rough equality in the rewards which the world gives to men per hour of labor. The wheat farmer has no claim to special consideration above the plumber, the delicatessen store proprietor, the tailor, and the diversified farmer, all of whom would laugh at the notion that they could earn a decent living in a three-month year.

Mr. Potter's dispatches show clearly that the farmers with energy and initiative, who are willing to work around the calendar, can make a living. It is time that more were said about that and less about the farmers' miserable lot. There is a living to be made in the fertile lands of the central west by those with the will to earn it; but years of political agitation have undermined confidence and morale to the point where many farmers who might succeed are discouraged from making the effort.

ELECTRIFICATION IN GREAT BRITAIN.

A committee of experts, after an investigation lasting seventeen months, has recommended the electrification of all the principal British railroads. The committee estimates that the cost will approximate 2 billion dollars and fifteen years or more will be required to complete the transformation. In the opinion of the commission, the expenditure will be justified directly by savings in the costs of operation and indirectly by providing employment and cheaper power to all classes of consumers.

Britain is already far ahead of the United States in railroad electrification and is therefore in a position to evaluate its results with considerable accuracy. If electrification will yield a profit on the investment in the British isles, it will yield a profit, also, in this country. It is true that the density of population is greater in England than in the United States, but in the more populous areas here conditions are fairly comparable to those in England. The Pennsylvania railroad is going ahead with its electrification of the line between New York and Washington. Whatever profit is to be derived from that expenditure ought to be found in equal or greater measure in electrifying between Chicago and Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit, or Chicago and St. Louis, for example.

The Other Side

IT'S NOT UNCLE SAM'S JOB.

[Kansas City Star.]

The banana and lumber interests made their investments in Nicaragua knowing the unsettled conditions, but willing to take the risks for the sake of high profits. The United States is not under obligations to police the entire country for the benefit of the small interests involved. They may fairly be expected to organize their own constabulary in conjunction with the Nicaraguan government to protect plantations in the interior while the United States devotes itself to protecting Americans in coast cities that can readily be reached by landing parties.

As long as America maintains marines throughout Nicaragua the government there simply makes no effort to police the country. It waits for us to do it. When similar trouble started in the Coolidge administration the President sent 5,000 or 6,000 marines to preserve order. That is what the lumber and banana plantations want. But such a policy is expensive and gets nowhere. When the Nicaraguan government and the American interests in the country learn they must maintain order by their own efforts, Nicaragua will be on the way to stable conditions.

SPRING CLEANING.

THE time for spring cleaning is here. This statement is intended to settle just one question, and that is time. It takes for granted that there should be cleaning at least once a year, and also that spring is the season for it.

If we look over the world we find that nowhere is there a dirty people who are a healthy people, and, conversely, the clean people are the healthy people. The curve for health and the gradation of cleanliness come near to running parallel.

When we study the relative health of nations we find that the Hollanders are right at the top. The study does not make it plain why this is, and then finally we wonder, is it not because they are clean? Their reputation for cleanliness is even better established than is their renown for having low death rates. The cities, as a rule, are cleaner than the villages, in this country, at least. And we find that the cities have the lower death rates. The cities with reputations for cleanliness generally boast of good health also.

If the comparison is made by centuries we find that health improves as cleanliness does. The dark and dirty ages are those with the high death rates. London in the plague year was an unspeakably filthy place.

In explaining the fallen death rate from consumption, we agree that improved standards of living have been the largest single factor. A higher standard of cleanliness is an important part of this higher standard of living. We know that the principal reason for the great decrease in typhoid fever is the fact that men are more cleanly than they were. They will not drink water unless it is clean.

We know that ship fever, typhus, plague, and cholera cannot seem to make any headway among our people during the last half century. Some of us do not know that it is because we are too clean.

Somehow the springtime has always been regarded as the cleaning time. The bears in caves and birds in trees—all wild things know it and always have. And so does man.

There is another reason for saying "this is the time." It is the time because it has been so agreed on, and when men agree on a thing they stand by the agreement.

RINGWORM REMEDY.

Commercial acetic acid [known to the trade as No. 8], 1 part; spirits of camphor, 3 parts.

Mix and apply with a camel's hair brush, 2 or 3 times daily. A half ounce vial of above mixture is sufficient. I have recommended and used this remedy for almost 50 years, and if it has ever failed to cure I never heard of it.

FOR CANKER SORES.

Dip the sharpened point of a crystal of copper sulphate [blue stone] in water, and touch the sore spots several times daily. In my own case I have found that canker sores are caused by a diet too rich in sugar or pastry. The above treatment, with a change of diet, always effects a cure.

COVERED BY CITY LAW.

Mrs. M. E. writes: How soon after a child has recovered from whooping cough is it advisable to bring another child who has not had it to visit him?

REPLY.

Obey your city ordinance. That point is covered by it.

Whooping cough is very contagious just before the cough begins. It is quite contagious during the first two weeks after it begins. Count from the onset of coughing, not from the onset of whooping or of vomiting. It is mildly contagious for, say, two weeks longer. As a rule, the danger of infection after that is nothing.

If the visiting child is under two years of age measure these weeks with a 'coon skin and throw in the tail.

INITIATION CEREMONIES.

Chicago, April 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Our club is planning an initiation ceremony and wish you would tell us whether or not there is a law against "sidewalk" initiations. 2. We are also considering the forest preserves at 87th and Western avenue but, as we do not know much about forest preserve laws, do you think it would be advisable to hold it there? C. B.

1. We know of no such law.

2. Depends upon what you plan to do. We suggest that you take the matter up with the forest preserve commissioners if you feel that the activities would be such that objection might be raised.

CITIZENSHIP AND OTHER MATTERS

Chicago, April 20.—[Friend of the People.]—1. In 1899 I got my citizenship papers in Montana; married in Indiana same year; went to Sweden for a wedding trip, and a girl was born to us in Sweden. After a short time returned to America with the understanding my wife and child would come later. In a few months my wife went her way and left my girl with my sister, who raised her. In 1913 I went over and the girl came back with me to America and has been here ever since. 1. Is she a citizen of the United States? 2. Can she vote? 3. Can she travel to Europe on my citizenship paper? 4. Will she need her own papers? 5. What shall she do to get her own papers? C. G. S.

1. Yes.

2. That is a question for the election officials.

3. She should secure a passport from the state department.

4. No.

5. She may apply for a certificate of derivative citizenship through this office.

FRED SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director, U. S. Dept. of Labor.

PAYMENT OF DEBT.

Chicago, April 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am behind in my rent for five months. My landlord knew the circumstances and waited for the rent money. Now he has found out my husband doesn't work at all and he demands to be paid up by the end of the month. 1. Can the landlord collect after we move? 2. Can he garnishee my husband's wages after he gets a job? 3. If my husband was working and only made $12 a week, could he take that? V. P.

1. Yes, if he can find sufficient assets.

2. Yes.

3. The exemption is $15.00 a week.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WHAT BOOKS WOULD YOU READ IF YOU WERE KIDNAPED?

The St. Louis doctor who has been in the hands of kidnapers for a week says his captors gave him detective stories to read to while away the time. If we are ever kidnaped we trust that our abductors do not give us detective stories to read. Nothing could be more irritating while waiting for the police to do something about our own kidnaping than to read stories of how detectives unravel crime. While lying in the dreary cellar tied hand and foot and with a large rat perched on our knee we should hate to read about detectives taking finger prints and sleuthing up and down the street. And in the last chapter, when the detectives unravel the crime and everybody is happy, we wouldn't feel any better, for at about that moment the boss kidnaper would come in, push his heavy foot into our midrib and say, "Well, what about it, boob, when is yer friends going to kick in with the coin? Or do we have to bury yuh alive?"

While a great deal has been written about the best books to have along if one is shipwrecked on a desert island, very little attention has been paid to the more important subject of what books to read when kidnaped and held for ransom. Very few of us will have the pleasure of being shipwrecked on a desert island. Even if we thought it was a desert island we would soon hear jazz music from a radio that some native had set up in the top of a palm tree, and some lovable, dear old soul would come running around a rock to tell us the stock market had hit new lows that day.

Desert islands are very rare these days, but kidnaping is gradually becoming one of our basic industries. So the question of what books one would like to read while the family is making up its mind whether to let go a few thousand dollars and ransom us or spend the money on a new car is important.

Detective stories are out, as we said to begin with. Dr. Elliott's five foot book shelf might be good; we might lean it against the wall and climb up and try a getaway through the window. Best sellers wouldn't be any good. We'd know that by the time we got out they'd be at least a week old, and a best seller a week old is as dead as the Report of the New Brunswick Forest for 1859. Love stories would not make us happy while being held by kidnapers, for we would be bound to think that there wasn't much in this love business if the family couldn't scrape together a few measly thousand dollars to get us out of that cellar. But there you are! What books should one take along when kidnaped?

LITTLE LOST DREAM.

I dreamed a little dream, one day,
Then, frugally, laid it away.
"Some day," I said, "when I have time
I'll dress you in a little rhyme,
And take you walking in the street,
So all the world can say, 'How sweet!'"
But books, and friends, and food, and clothes,
And this, and that, and these, and those
So occupied me, I forgot
The little dream. And now—it's not!
I am so sad it had to go.
'Twas such a pretty dream to know.

"IT WILL DO NO HARM to emphasize the duty," says Cal. Coolidge in his colyum, "of the United States to protect its citizens in Nicaragua or any foreign country." It will not do a particle of harm, Calvin, nor from present indications will it do any particular good. However, Calvin, go ahead and emphasize. It gets you two dollars a word and doesn't hurt anybody.

RECRUDESCENCE.

Life has declared an amnesty with me,
A sudden, golden glory of release,
Once more within your arms, oh Mother Sea,
I have attained the only worldly peace;
The blood of rising and of setting suns
Has been transfused within earth-hardened veins,
An over-deep disgust with all that runs
Has been washed out by moonlight and by rains.

And so I have come back again to you,
Never to leave you more, my only love,
You, in your gorgeous gown of palace blue,
Singing a pæan to the gods above;
Land has but yielded to me discontent,
Here shall I live in peace and wonderment.

IT'S TIME TO TAKE HOLD

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 29, 1915.

BERLIN. — Defeat of the allied forces which landed on the Gallipoli peninsula to cooperate with the Franco-British fleet in an effort to destroy the Dardanelles is described in a message from Constantinople. The Turks tell of 8,000 soldiers reported driven to sea and claim 12,000 British and French were captured.

LONDON.—The British war office issued a statement declaring that in the face of continual opposition the allied troops have established themselves across the end of the Gallipoli peninsula and are making steady advances. The statement makes no reference to the reported surrender of allied troops.

VERONA.—Railway service on the Austrian side of the frontier virtually has been suspended for ordinary purposes. All lines are being used to carry troops to the Italian frontier.

LONDON.—Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the continent, in an announcement concerning the German attempt to break through the allied lines around Ypres and along the Yser canal said: "Our operations in conjunction with the French have stopped the German attack."

PARIS.—The French cruiser Leon Gambetta was torpedoed and sunk in ten minutes by an Austrian submarine in the Strait of Otranto leading to the Adriatic sea. The official report says that all officers on board perished at their posts. The total lives lost numbered 552.

CHICAGO. — Funeral services for Miss Esther Falkenstein, pioneer settlement worker and head of the Esther Falkenstein home, who died at St. Mary's hospital on April 27, and who was known to practically every clubwoman in Cook county, will be held at the settlement house, 1917 North Richmond street, tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be at Rosehill.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 29, 1901.

OMAHA.—James Callahan was declared not guilty of participation in the kidnaping of Edward A. Cudahy Jr., and the reading of the verdict was followed by a scathing denunciation of the jurors by Judge Baker, in whose court the case was tried. The judge insisted the evidence given at the trial did not warrant acquittal. A withdrawal of the reward offered for the capture of Pat Crowe is likely to follow the finding of the jury in Callahan's case.

PARIS.—The Temps, in a leading article, bitterly attacks the American policy in the Philippines, which, it says, is based on the theory that in a war with savages almost anything is justifiable.

CHICAGO.—Because he was unable to support his family on $900 a year—a salary that was allowed to lapse at times—the Rev. Frank C. Bruner, pastor of the Second Methodist church, Englewood, resigned and is preparing to become a lecturer in the hope that he may fare better financially.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 29, 1881.

BOMBAY.—The British evacuation of southern Afghanistan was completed yesterday without notable event.

ELGIN.—From six to twelve persons, mostly children, were drowned in a shocking accident here. A temporary ferry had been built across Fox river after the tremendous flood last week carried away the bridges and dam. On its second trip today the boat, on which twenty or thirty persons had been crowded, was snatched by the swift current and when the panicstricken children rushed to one side the rail broke and the craft careened over. Latest reports say that no fewer than twelve are dead.

WASHINGTON.—It is reported that Gen. Sheridan, the noted stump speaker, and recorder of deeds of this district, is to give place to Fred Douglass, present United States marshal. The disposition of Douglass has been a serious problem for the administration. Mr. Douglass is getting old. It is believed the duties of the new office will be more pleasant for him and the colored race will thus receive recognition by the administration.

SPRINGFIELD.—The senate passed a bill making general election days and Decoration day legal holidays.

A BRAVE DEED.

Chicago, April 26.—This afternoon, as we drove along the outer drive near 50th street, we saw from the excitement of a crowd on the rocks that a man was drowning in the lake. A motorcycle policeman dashed south with his siren blaring in search of a life preserver. The man was floundering around in a rough lake in grave danger.

A young man left his car and with his wife hurried to the edge of the rock, stripped to his underwear, and jumped into the rough, icy waters and brought the man to shore. The policeman had returned by this time with a life guard and a life preserver. With the aid of both he was brought in. The crowd surged after him, and the hero, his wife, the policeman, my four year old son, and I were left alone on the rocks. The wife gathered her husband's clothes together, and helped him into his overcoat. My small son and I followed, thrilled at his bravery and admiring him. By this time the victim had been revived and was rushed in a commandeered car to the hospital.

As our little procession reached the crowd there was not a bravo nor a hurrah nor hardly a glance for the shivering young father getting into his car, where his two young children were round eyed in excitement and pride for their brave daddy. I started to applaud, he drove away, and a few people joined me, but aside from that there was no notice of his brave deed.

May I send my thanks and praise to this unsung hero for his chivalrous deed, for his dauntless courage, and for the unforgettable lesson in bravery which it taught my small son (and his), and may I add a prayer for the group of American citizens who have become so indifferent that even such a sight leaves them unmoved?

ELIZABETH CALDWELL MULROY.

SATISFACTION FOR THE DRYS.

Mount Morris, Ill., April 26.—In a special dispatch to your paper on Friday the statement is made by a committee of the Michigan legislature, after an investigation of the recent raid on a fraternity house of the University of Michigan, that "all the persons interviewed were of the opinion from their own personal knowledge and general observation, that the use of liquor by the students is gradually decreasing. Conditions are materially better than they were five years ago."

If conditions in question at this university are typical of conditions at other universities—and why not?—then there is less drinking in our colleges and universities than five years ago. Yet the wets have aways insisted that there was a great deal more drinking. If the object of this dispatch was to question the wisdom of this raid, it certainly has established the fact, claimed by the drys all along, that there is less, instead of more, drinking than ever in our educational institutions.

Such news items are amusing as well as heartening to the drys.

H. E. ZIMMERMAN.

THE SUPERIOR SUBURBANITE.

Chicago, April 27.—Just one little dig, Mr. Editor, and then I'll quit. I refer to S. R. Chasm and the boys in the western suburb who would not be annexed to Chicago under any circumstances, but who desire to consolidate themselves in one big burg called "West End."

Your suburbs are not self-supporting communities, like Peoria or Rockford, but parasites, depending upon Chicago's existence for their existence, and if Chicago is such a terrible mess it stands in danger of going down into oblivion and carrying with it the suburbs, which live off of but not with it; therefore it is up to you suburbanites to combine with whatever good element there is in Chicago and create the preponderance of power necessary to keep the city on an even keel.

If, however, you cannot see it in this light, and you still desire to keep separate, when the country cousin from Kankakee comes to town in 1933 and you show him our wonderful fair, beaches, parks, drives, museums, stadiums, and what not, don't forget to point out to him explicitly that it is not your city you are showing him, but Chicago, and if he wants to see the attractions of your separate community show him both of them—clean alleys and Sunday pee wee golf. "Damnant quod non intelligunt."

ANTIPHON.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Riverside, Ill., April 26.—My two children were playing in front of their home with a large rubber ball, which rolled out into the street. I have tried very hard to teach them never to run out into the street, so rather than go and get the ball they both came in to me to tell me about it.

We live on the third floor of an apartment, and I went to the window to see where the ball was. I saw a car stop by the ball, and assumed the man was going to throw it back on the walk, and I was taken so by surprise I could not call out. He deliberately picked up the ball, got into his car, and drove off, and the woman sitting with him seemed very pleased that they had found something.

What effect will this have on my children's opinion of their elders? How can I tell them they must not take anything that does not belong to them, and will they leave the ball next time to call me or will they try to retrieve it themselves?

MRS. F. H. EDDY.

HOME INDUSTRIES.

Chicago, April 27.—Will you allow me a few lines in your great column to protest against a practice that has a lot to do with the unemployment situation in Chicago, and that is the practice of large corporations and others letting contracts for work to outside firms?

Posters are printed in some tank town and brought to Chicago with the play or event with the expectation that the people of Chicago, including printers, whose jobs are taken away from them, will patronize these events.

BARKER SLINKS OUT OF JAIL BY THE BACK DOOR

Deputy Must Explain His Conduct in Release.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Peter Jurasko, Jerome Reed, Henry Harrison, and Lester Fields, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Joseph Burke.

Fred Barry, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Philip Finnegan.

George [Red] Barker, public enemy, labor racketeer and gunman, who was released from the penitentiary by order of the Illinois Supreme court, slipped out of the county jail by the rear entrance yesterday after a $5,000 cash bond had been posted for him, pending a hearing of a writ of habeas corpus on May 5. As a result of the consideration shown to the gangster, it was announced from the office of Sheriff William D. Meyering that Deputy Sheriff Ed Wing will be called on for an explanation of why he was so solicitious for the gunman's welfare.

GEORGE BARKER.

Barker, dressed in a worn blue suit several sizes too large for him and showing the effects of his last four months in the penitentiary, was brought into the court of Judge John Prystalski. Because of the legal questions raised by Barker's attorneys the case was continued to May 5 to give Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott time to prepare for arguments.

Defense Attacks State Case.

The defense contends that the state, having once abandoned the prosecution of a gun toting charge against Barker, cannot now revive the case.

It was agreed that a $5,000 cash bond would be accepted in lieu of the $10,000 real estate bond. The reason for this, it was explained, was because the Supreme court, which freed Barker from the penitentiary on a habeas corpus writ, had set a $5,000 bond in the James [Fur] Sammons case some months ago. The cash was immediately posted.

It was noon when Deputy Wing started back to the jail with Barker after the court session. Warden David Moneypenny of the jail was out at lunch, as was Jack Gabriel, chief Criminal court bailiff.

Leaves Jail by Back Door.

At about this time Barker's wife drew up at the courthouse with a large automobile and the colored chauffeur. Deputy Wing waved her into the private jail automobile entrance. The gate was opened on his orders. Barker was taken out the back way and bundled into his automobile. Deputy Wing rode on the running board until the car was safely out on the street. He waved farewell to his former prisoner as he jumped from the car and it sped away.

Both Warden Moneypenny and Chief Bailiff Gabriel said they would demand explanations.

FOUND DEAD

ELANOR LANDERS.

Eleanor Landers, 25 years old, a divorcee, yesterday committed suicide by gas in the kitchen of her apartment at 1100 North La Salle street. She was clothed only in pajamas and was covered with a blanket, her head resting on a pillow. Friends said grief over the death of her mother two weeks ago probably was the motive. A month ago Miss Landers was arrested while acting as hostess in a speakeasy at 321 South Clark street.

HUNT GANGSTERS AS RICH KIDNAPED DOCTOR IS FREED

Police Believe St. Louisan Paid Despite Denial.

St. Louis, Mo., April 28.—(AP)—Search for three well known gangsters was started tonight by police in their effort to solve the mystery of the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley Jr., prominent physician, who was returned to his family today unharmed after a week's absence.

The gangsters were described as former members of the "Cuckoo" gang of St. Louis. Police advance the theory that ransom was paid despite denials by Dr. Kelley and men who acted as his wife's advisers during his absence.

The size of the ransom, if one was paid, remained speculative, but a letter written by Dr. Kelley to his wife while he was held captive said the first price was $250,000, but a compromise had been reached at $150,000.

Detectives held to a theory Dr. Kelley's abduction was the work of men skilled in that sort of violence. Dr. Kelley held a similar view, saying he believed his kidnapers were "scientific operators." Although he did not amplify the remark, reporters took him to mean experienced crooks.

Dr. Kelley described one of his abductors as well educated, probably a college graduate, and it was this identification that started police on a search for the three gangsters who were reported to have disappeared from their customary haunts about a week ago and had not been seen since.

Police said one of the men they are seeking is well educated. Another is sought by federal authorities on a serious charge, and one of the explanations offered was that he is in need of money for his defense and settled on Dr. Kelley as a likely wealthy victim.

Dr. Kelley was released early today near East St. Louis, Ill., to John T. Rogers, reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who said he was conducted to the physician by a man he met near his home after receiving an anonymous telephone call that a friend wanted to see him. Rogers said he had no idea why the physician was delivered to him, and Dr. Kelley likewise said he had no intimation why he suddenly was released after being held a prisoner for a week.

Mickey Mouse Originator Enjoins a Rival Rodent

Hollywood, Cal., April 28.—[Special.]—Walt Disney, cartoonist, and the Walt Disney Productions, Inc., corporate producer of Disney's "Mickey and Minnie Mouse," in animated talking movie cartoons, today secured a temporary injunction restraining Pathe Exchange, Inc., and the Van Beuren Movie corporation from putting a rival talking mouse on the screen. NAVY MAY BUILD UNLIMITED TYPE OF SMALL SHIPS

Well Adapted for Use in Caribbean.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Construction of a number of the 2,000 ton naval vessels left unlimited by the terms of the London naval treaty is now under consideration by the navy department, it was learned today. Plans for ships of this class are now under preparation by naval architects, and indications are that congress will be asked this winter to authorize the construction of several of these vessels.

Great Britain already has begun preparations to build a number of naval vessels in this class while members of the Japanese admiralty have recommended construction of this type of ship. Under the terms of the London treaty there is no ban on international competition in the building of naval surface combatant vessels exceeding 600 tons but not exceeding 2,000 tons, provided they do not mount a gun above 6.1 inches in caliber, mount no more than four guns above 3 inches in caliber, are not designed or fitted to launch torpedoes, and are not designed for a speed greater than twenty knots.

Used for Police Work.

If built by the United States the plan now is to substitute them for war vessels now assigned to the special service squadron that operates in Caribbean waters for the purpose of according protection to American lives and property. Operation of the smaller ships would prove much more economical than maintaining the larger second line vessels assigned to this duty. Consideration is also being given to substituting a vessel of this type for the cruiser flagship in Asiatic waters so this vessel could receive training with the fleet.

Vessels of the unlimited class are not to be counted in determining the naval tonnage of the London treaty powers.

Study Building Requirements.

The studies being made into the possibilities of the 2,000 ton unlimited warships is but one of numerous investigations now being made by the navy department which are certain to have a bearing on the characteristics of future American fighting ships. The general board is now engaged in working out a new naval construction program for transmittal to Secretary Adams in the next few days.

While the navy department is on record as favoring the 35,000 ton capital ship as the minimum size for American use, the characteristics of this type of vessel are being reviewed in advance of the league arms conference scheduled to be held at Geneva next February. Great Britain already has begun a drive to reduce the size of capital ships and the caliber of their turret guns at that parley.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Indiana—Fair in south, partly cloudy to cloudy in north portion, cooler in extreme north, slightly warmer in extreme south portion Wednesday; Thursday unsettled, somewhat warmer in extreme north portion.

Lower Michigan—Mostly cloudy and unsettled Wednesday and probably Thursday; cooler Wednesday in extreme south portion; not so cool Thursday.

Wisconsin—Fair to partly cloudy, cooler in southwest and extreme south portions on Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy and somewhat warmer.

FRENCH PROPOSE NAVY PACT WITH ITALY BE DROPPED

PARIS, April 28.—(AP)—Difficulty in arriving at an agreement on the exact meaning of the Italo-French naval limitation treaty today led to an unofficial proposal from quarters close to the ministry of marine that France drop the treaty with Italy and each country make unilateral statements as to her naval needs.

France would declare for a navy of 640,000 tons under the suggestion, all units being replaced upon reaching the age limit. An annual construction program of about 40,000 tons would be necessary until all superannuated ships are replaced.

Foreign Minister Briand's outline of difficulties of the Italo-French treaty before the council of ministers today is considered to have left the way more widely open for this proposal than previously.

The proposal for a unilateral statement argued that this would not disturb the London naval treaty as it would follow closely the construction and replacement allowed under its terms for the first years of the Franco-Italian agreement. It was suggested, however, in order to make the situation clear, to state the entire program for nine years, which would bring France to 1940 with the same tonnage of 640,000 as now, but without the superannuated units.

The unilateral statement should be informal, it was suggested, and should include a safeguard clause providing against Italy attempting to reach parity in fact. A simultaneous understanding with England regarding the number of submarines and the size of guns also would be considered desirable.

This is the first time since the London naval conference that there has been open talk of France ceasing efforts for an understanding with Italy on the subject.

Six Chain Stores Charged with Short Weight Sales

City Sealer Grein yesterday ordered court action taken against six branches of the Consumers Sanitary Coffee and Butter stores on charges of giving short weight on sales of apricots, potatoes and butter. The stores against which the complaints were ordered filed are at 439 West 115th street, 11231 Michigan avenue, 3014 Madison street, 4500 Lincoln street, 4973 Lake Park avenue and 5800 Montrose avenue. The actions are the first to be taken by the sealer against chain stores.

Your lawn and flowers aren't stubborn ...they're HUNGRY!

Feed them a Square Meal

A square meal for lawns and flowers is 4 lbs. of Vigoro per 100 sq. ft.

YOU'RE asking a great deal, you know. Smooth, velvety, rich green lawns—large, colorful, long-lasting flowers. It's more than you can rightly expect unless you do your part!

Plants, like human beings, must have the right kind of food and enough of it. Most soils are deficient in plant food because we fail to replenish the supply plants take out year after year.

Give your lawn and flowers the square meal for plants. Four pounds of Vigoro to every 100 square feet. Feed your shrubs, trees and vegetables, too. Results will amaze you!

Vigoro, the complete, balanced plant food, is easily applied in 3 simple steps: read directions; spread evenly; wet down or rake.

And the cost is less than 20 cents per 100 square feet!

Vigoro, clean and odorless, is the largest selling plant food. Already 3,000,000 have used it to achieve new gardening success.

Your garden supply dealer can tell you how much Vigoro you will need. Ask to see the new Vigoro Spreader, too. It makes the applying of Vigoro or grass seed a quicker, easier job.

Vigoro comes in 5 convenient sizes—100, 50, and 25 lb. bags, 5 lb. and 12 oz. packages. Order today. Or specify Vigoro to your landscape gardener or nurseryman. Be sure to buy Vigoro only in the original package.

Swift & Company

ANOTHER GARDEN FESTIVAL PROGRAM next Sunday, May 3, on the "Garden Hour." Hear a specially arranged medley of the old, familiar songs you love, presented by an ensemble of radio's finest artists—Gus Haenschen and his Orchestra, the Vigoro Male Quartet, and Muriel Wilson, soprano soloist. Sunday at 2:30, Daylight Time [1:30 Standard Time], over KYW.

How to Get Cash for Things You Don't Need

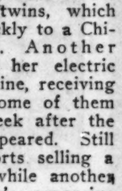
Among the True Want Ad Experiences sent to the Tribune during the recent competition there were hundreds of letters telling how women living at home, without opportunities to earn extra money, succeeded in doing so by selling home furnishings no longer needed.

Sells Automatic Cradle!

One reader, living in a near-by city, wrote that she had on hand an automatic cradle, built to accommodate twins, which she sold quickly to a Chicago woman. Another woman sold her electric sewing machine, receiving 40 replies, some of them coming a week after the want ad appeared. Still another reports selling a gas range, while another sold children's expensive toys!

Sold Refinished Furniture

Mrs. C. S., needing a few extra dollars, brought down from her attic a child's bed, a baby buggy, and several chairs. These she cleaned and painted carefully and found buyers for them through Tribune Want Ads.



Try It Yourself!

If you need extra money try this simple, inexpensive plan! More than likely you have many articles of furniture stored away, or even furniture now in use that you would like to sell. Chairs, tables, books, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, sewing machines, draperies, bric-a-brac, dishes, stoves, and many other articles can be sold.

Start an inventory of your storage spaces today. Bring out those unneeded articles, clean them up, add a bit of paint and polish where needed, and offer them for sale in the Home Furnishings column of the Tribune Want Ad Section.

'King's 'Orses' Not the Only Nags in Popular Favor!

About the time people have forgotten poor Dobbin, along comes a song writer with a ditty containing a horse laugh or two and the refrain is taken up with hoof-beats on the dance floor. Yet the horse is not entirely a specimen for the museum. At this season of the year hundreds of persons can be seen on the bridle paths of the city parks and along country lanes. The demand for gaited saddle horses is reflected through the offers that appear in the Horses, Harness and Wagons classification of the Tribune Want Ad Section. Here are a few offers from a recent issue of the Tribune:

SADDLE HORSE—3 GAITED, 5 YRS. old; good sized horse; beautiful, well mannered. Private party leaving city wishes to dispose of horse and saddle. Call Mr. Blank, Monday. Boulevard 0000.

15 HEAD 3 AND 5 GAITED SADdlers. Always on hand. $300 up. Blank Farm. Ph. Deerfield 000.

It Seems This Is About Pickles

MAN—TO WORK IN BASEMENT packing and piling pickles in barrels; must be able to give good references; permanent position. State experience and salary desired. Address T N 000, Tribune—Help Wanted—From Miscellaneous.

We never knew until we saw this want ad with what tender care pickles are handled! We thought pickles were dumped unceremoniously into barrels, but it is apparent that each pickle is piled with paternal patience. The question is, are pickle pilers paid per pickle? If so, how many pickles can a pickler piler pile?

Grace and Albert Converse Via "Personals"

For several weeks the editor has been watching with interest the messages of Grace and Albert, two Tribune Want Ad personalities, who have been "corresponding" with each other through the Personal column in the Tribune Want Ad Section.

First Albert had a birthday, and this want ad appeared:

ALBERT: BIRTHDAY GREETINGS and deepest love. Keep O. K., but message soon.—GRACE.

Then Albert returned the compliment with an Easter greeting. Apparently a pretty romance was budding, for Albert became anxious to see Grace, as this want ad indicates:

GRACE—MUCH LOVE ON EASTER; where are you? I have Tribune daily.—ALBERT.

The next day after this want ad appeared, Grace, learning that Albert was a daily reader of the Tribune, came back with this one:

ALBERT—ADDRESS 00 N. BLANK-st.—GRACE.

Bring Your Own Derrick!

British Humor Creeps Slyly Toward Reader

That's Why Mackail's Book Pleases.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"THE Square Circle," by Denis Mackail [Houghton Mifflin], is one of those hearty, long, rambling, charming English novels that haven't any special beginning or any special ending. According to the rapidity with which you read, it will give you two, three, or more delightful evenings.

DENIS MACKAIL.

What happens in the various houses around an English square, or in the streets of the square, or in the little park in its center is the material which Denis Mackail uses for 473 pages of amusing observation. Denis Mackail, in case you are among the many who do not know him, instead of the fortunate few who do, is the author of twelve previous volumes—all of them delightful.

Somehow he has never had the wide popularity that those of us who are devoted to his work think that he has deserved. His books are very English for one thing, not insular, but national in their humor, just the way that some of the most delightful jokes in any one's life are those that have a sort of private significance for the members of the family only. Every family has its catchwords, and its secret jibes at other members of the family. There always has been that kind of intimacy about Denis Mackail's humor.

From the first book of his that I ever read, which was, as I remember, "Romance to the Rescue," I always have felt as if I had been admitted to the secret lodge of the Mackails. I have preached him to those who claim that English humor isn't a patching to American humor, not always, I must admit, with complete success.

Now there comes "The Square Circle," sponsored by the Book of the Month club, and therefore assured of a large American sale. A great many people, instead of only a few, will be happy henceforth whenever the name of Denis Mackail is mentioned.

The most delightful part about "The Square Circle" is not the story, but the way it is told. It is not so much what Mr. Mackail says as the way he says it that makes him a find for readers. The stories of the various people who walk into and out of Tiverton square, or ride in in taxis and out in limousines, or get about on roller skates [for there are many children in the square] or are delivered in a basket from a stork's beak or are expelled out in a hearse—are the usual stories of pleasant people in comfortable circumstances of life, with less of tragedy than of ease. There is nothing tremendously moving about anything that happens to anybody. There is little poverty to break your heart with compassion or little extravagant happiness to break it with envy. Life is a calm affair, for the most part, in Tiverton square. But life in Tiverton square, as seen through the eyes of Denis Mackail, is a charming an affair it sort of seeps into the life of those who read about it. For instance, one says to oneself, "Miss Nicolette Martin and Mr. Marston Fawcett would break one's heart if one let oneself dwell upon the injustice of cruel fathers and fate, but if young people in love will be so namby-pamby it's better that they part. They would have starved together, and if neither of them had enough gumption to risk starvation together they certainly wouldn't have enjoyed it when it happened."

"Or," one consoles oneself at the thought of the incipient romance between Miss Carpenter and Mr. Bristow, and the impending unhappiness of Mrs. Bristow, "fate does wangle things for decent people and there's no use getting all hot and bothered about three pleasant people who look as if something dire might happen to them. It won't." And it doesn't.

The old maids are all proper old maids; the barristers perfect barristers; the solicitors as one would hope them to be; the granddaughters pretty and gay; the mothers charming and attractive, even when their pasts have been a bit shady; the actresses nicely naughty. Every one is amusing, as seen by the author, and even the heartbreaks are tempered with a smile.

The world of Tiverton square, and therefore the world at large (for Tiverton square is the world at multum in parvo), is "a little bit of all right," according to Mr. Mackail, and he certainly helps to make it so for his readers by providing them with two or three evenings of gay amusement.

That very quality of the story's going on and on, without any beginning that I spoke of in the first paragraph is one of the greatest charms of "The Square Circle." Life does that, just ambles somehow from day to day, and one can be either sentimental about it, get all steamed up over what happens at two-seventeen on April 29th, or one can look a little deeper and see that the tide ebbs and flows whether it is April 29 or Dec. 7. Then one enjoys an easy amusement at what the tide washes up—what it draws away with it may have its advantages over individual tense and tortured moments. Mr. Mackail is a humorist primarily, but in "The Square Circle" he is something of a philosopher.

I recommend "The Square Circle" for hospital cases, spring fever cases, and those suffering with acute indigestion of life.

Dr. Mackail's Elixir, for man or (human) beast, is guaranteed to kill boredom and cure all ailments of the disposition.

"You cannot read MY STORY without great admiration for the woman who wrote it. . . . Mrs. Rinehart's story is modern—dealing with modern conditions, ambitions and methods. It is filled with human interest."

Harry Hansen.

HOOVERS TO RECEIVE BOY, BLIZZARD HERO, AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—Bryan Untiedt, hero of the Colorado school bus tragedy last March, will arrive in Washington tomorrow to be the guest of President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House.

The 13 year old boy, who in an effort to save the lives of fellow students marooned in a snow bound bus removed his own outer clothing to keep his companions warm, will be at the White House with the king and queen of Siam. Their majesties will dine with President and Mrs. Hoover tomorrow night.

Even though Bryan may not dine at the formal state dinner he will be able to find a convenient door somewhere through which he can watch the ceremony and see all the gold braid.

No set plans have been made to entertain the boy. It was thought likely, however, that Mrs. Hoover would take him on a sightseeing tour of the city as she often takes other guests who come to the executive mansion.

The bus carried 21 children, five of whom froze to death after the driver, Carl Miller, had gone to seek aid. Among them was Untiedt's younger brother. In spite of this the boy, who had been placed in charge by Miller, continued his desperate efforts to keep the children from falling asleep and freezing.

Russian Talkie Presents Trial Under Soviets

"TRIAL OF THE SOVIET TRAITORS."
Russian film.
Presented at the Cinema theater.
THE CAST.
Personnel connected with the hearing of the eight men tried as traitors to the soviet government.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Russian news reel.

QUALITY: Authentic.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Good—considering conditions under which the scenes were made.

REMARKS: It is said that this picture was taken without the knowledge of anybody in the courtroom. You will agree with me, I think, in believing that statement erroneous.

One would have to be Russian—and intensely so—or else personally interested in some of the participants in the trial to find this film intriguing. It gives you a fair idea of Russian courtroom procedure, and the demonstrations of the mobs in the streets are rather dramatic; but most of the footage is occupied with different men—judge, attorneys, and accused, talking, talking, talking . . . !

The actual trial lasted thirteen days. As the news reel drags on you wonder if it, too . . . !

There are a number of explanatory titles in English at the beginning of the feature. Dialogue is all in Russian.

Art Students' Pageant Set for Tomorrow at Congress

An imaginary Montmartre, that of 1931, will be depicted by the Art Students' league of Chicago tomorrow evening at the Congress hotel, for the benefit of scholarships at the Art institute. This will be the thirty-seventh dance and pageant given by the students and it is sponsored by the trustees of the institute. While thus far lacking a Murger, to make it famous, Chicago should be better known as an art center than as a theater in which gangsters have staged their various performances, according to promoters of the pageant. Among those who will sing is Mlle. Tasia. Several radio stars also are expected to perform.

Jane Addams Predicts Wars Will End Soon

"In Your Generation," Y.W.C.A. Visitors Told.

The present generation may see the abolition of war. So Miss Jane Addams of Hull house told a conference of workers of the Young Women's Christian association last night at the Hotel Sherman. She was the principal speaker at a dinner attended by delegates from thirteen middle western states.

"The greatest problem in the world at the present moment is the abolition of war," Miss Addams said. "It is coming in your generation just as the abolition of slavery came in your grandmother's. The matter now is very largely one of public opinion."

Miss Addams, after describing the Y. W. C. A. as "one of the most forward looking and vigorous of national organizations for women," urged the delegates to "do all the serious reading you can on international peace." She reminded them that women the world over are petitioning the 1932 disarmament conference to lessen the amount of armament in the world.

At the afternoon session Mrs. Harrie R. Chamberlin of Toledo, O., national chairman of regional conferences, told how the Y. W. C. A. during times of unemployment attempts to keep up the moral courage of unemployed girls.

"If worst comes to worst, we help them financially, but where they have homes or places to stay we try to find things for them to do that will not only take their minds off their work, but will help them when they get jobs. In some cases, as in Toledo, we have free classes of all kinds for the girls to attend during their spare time. Many stenographers come and practice on our free typewriters to keep up their speed so that their efficiency will not be impaired through their forced layoff."

The sessions will continue through tomorrow made up mostly of discussion groups to determine if the Y. W. C. A. is doing all it can for women, or if any changes in its methods are needed. At the closing meeting Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey, wife of the dean of the University of Chicago chapel, will present a summary of the conference findings. Mrs. Gilkey is national president of the Y. W. C. A.

2,000,000 Teeth Need Filling, Doctor Says of Students

Of Chicago's 600,000 school children, 431,000 are suffering from dental defects and have a total of 2,000,000 teeth with cavities that should be filled.

These facts were laid before the Mouth Hygiene council of Chicago last night. The figures on the number of children were those of former Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel and on the number of defective teeth those of Dr. Benjamin S. Partridge, past president of the Chicago Dental society.

Another speaker, Dr. Michael M. Davis, director for medical services of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, pointed out that the city allots only 22 cents of a total cost of $150 annually to educate a child for preventive dentistry. All the experts urged that children be taught in the schools how to take care of their teeth, and that more attention be paid in the future to preventive dentistry.

Mrs. N. G. Symonds was elected president of the council, Robert M. Schiller, first vice president; Mrs. Kenis Brannock, second vice president; Robert B. Watson, secretary, and Mrs. Herbert E. Pratt, treasurer.

THE STAGE

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE Theater Guild, now the most important drama producing organization in the country, announces an expansion of its plans for "the road" next season. It has formed an affiliation with a group of New York managers by which the Guild's seasons in Chicago and other cities will be augmented. The most meritorious plays staged by these managers will be offered to the Guild's subscribers.

From a technical point of view, this is a stimulating piece of news. It means an expansion of the touring territory available for New York successes and an enlargement of playgoing opportunities in many cities. It implies a strengthening of the economic structure of the stage. Broadway managers have been mourning: "The road is dying." The Guild appears to be coming to the patient's rescue with the oxygen tank of its subscription system.

"John Golden, Gilbert Miller, Arthur Hopkins, Brock Pemberton and Chester Erskin [the latter now affiliated with the Erlanger interests] have agreed to cooperate in this project. Arrangements have been made with Mr. Golden for a tour of Rachel Crothers' 'As Husbands Go,' and with Mr. Miller for a tour of Philip Barry's 'Tomorrow and Tomorrow.' The other managers have assured the Guild that they will send plays on tour over the Guild's circuit whenever they have productions of a suitable character.

"No name for this collective group of managers has yet been chosen. It is being tentatively called the Theater Guild group, but a more suitable title is being sought. In this plan the managers will retain their identity, but the group name will be used with each production submitted to the Guild's audiences.

"The Theater Guild itself will continue to send its own productions on tour, and booking arrangements are now being made for next season. The Guild will maintain its own schedules, augmenting its program with the plays of other producers. The plan is being formed to extend beyond next season.

"In the past the Guild has sent some twenty of its dramatic productions on tour. They have been given in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Cincinnati and many other cities."

Noel Coward's latest play, "Post Mortem," recently was published in London, and his admirers are clamoring for its presentation on the stage. In spite of the fact that Mr. Coward says it was not written to be acted. It is a satirical study of post-war social conditions. Its central figure is a British veteran who, viewing life in 1930, finds that every one whom he knew before the war, except his mother, has changed for the worse. In an epilogue he wakes up in the trenches; says that he has had a bad dream of the future; and dies of wounds, with a cynical remark on his lips.

"The First Mrs. Fraser" had a première in Bucharest as well as in Chicago this week. Its story recalled to the Rumanians the domestic vagaries of their King Carol, and the cables carried lively accounts of their enjoyment of the play as an allegory of the national scandal. Queen Helene attended the performance, and cried with joy, apparently feeling that the audience was demonstrating its antipathy to Magda Lupescu, Carol's mistress.

Gov. La Follette to Talk.

Philip F. La Follette, governor of Wisconsin, will be the guest of honor and speaker at a dinner to be given by the Wisconsin Society of Chicago in the Palmer house next Friday evening. Miss Hilda Burke, Chicago Civic opera soprano, will sing.

MORE CHILDLESS MARRIAGES IN CITIES THAN AMONG FARMS

New York, April 28.—(AP)—There are almost twice as many childless marriages in cities as in rural districts, the Milbank memorial fund reported today after a survey of 69,620 marriages.

Among women between 40 and 49 years, 16 per cent of the city dwellers were found to be childless. The same age group among country women showed 9 per cent without offspring.

Investigators found childless marriages 2½ times as numerous among professional people in cities as among farm laborers. In the city group 18 per cent of the wives of professional men were childless, 16 per cent of the wives of business men, 15 per cent of the wives of skilled workers, and 14 per cent of the wives of unskilled workers.

Baby Welfare Society Marks 20 Years' Work

Mother, Aided as Infant, Brings Her Child.

TWENTY years ago a young mother, Mrs. Rose Tinerella, now of 1104 Sedgwick street, heard of the newly organized Infant Welfare society, and took her ailing baby, Emma, 3 weeks old, there for examination. Yesterday's the daughter's son, Michael, 13 months old, was among the 75 babies examined at the semi-weekly clinic at Seward park station, Sedgwick and Elm streets.

"Michael was sickly just like I was," explained the mother, eyeing her roly-poly son proudly. "I remembered how the Infant Welfare society had given me a good start in life, so I asked them to make my baby well. He's been coming to let the doctor and nurse look him over, almost ever since he was born. He's fat and healthy now."

While Michael chuckled good naturedly at the crowd gathered around to see his picture taken, the other babies waited for turns with the doctor, the nurse, and the nutritionist. To the visitor the station appeared to be crowded to the limit, but the intimation that the large number might be due to a special observance of National Baby Week was quickly corrected by one of the workers.

"We have 300 babies under 2 years enrolled in this station alone, and there are 22 stations over the city doing similar service," said Nurse Naomi Setterdahl, who is in charge of the station. "In addition to the 300 babies, 400 children from 2 to 6 years are kept in good health. Twice a week from 1 to 3 o'clock their mothers, or fathers, and sometimes even their brothers or sisters bring them for the regular examination. There are new entries continually and the work is ever increasing. We have had an especially heavy winter trying to keep babies well in spite of adverse home conditions due to unemployment."

Over at the nutritionist's desk a black eyed little girl with dark curls stood with he rhand in he mother's. The mother appeared to be tired and worn from too many family cares, but her eyes glistened as she waited for the little girl to answer Miss Margaret Bennett's questions.

"Have you been eating all those things you don't like, Mary?" asked Miss Bennett. The child nodded her head.

"Have you been taking your cod liver oil?" Again the nod.

"No she ain't," broke in her mother quickly. "But she's going to from now no."

"You'd be surprised," Miss Bennett added, "how many of these mothers try very hard to follow our diet rules for the children. We discuss with the mothers the children's health and food habits, then the nurse calls at the home. Sometimes we show the mother how to cook certain foods.

"This is an example of the daily menu in many a home," the nutritionist said, choosing a family record from a high stack on her desk. "This family had only coffee for breakfast, jelly, bread and coffee for lunch, and potatoes, dumplings and bread and butter for supper. Johnnie, 3 years old, a thin small child, showed the effects of that kind of diet."

Many defects are discovered during the physician's regular examination, according to Dr. R. G. Lommen, staff physician. Babies are brought to the station with colds which if neglected might turn to pneumonia. Heart cases, mild rickets, bad tonsils are discovered, children needing ultra-violet ray or open air treatment. Many of these cases are referred to a dispensary or hospital.

The La Grange center of the Infant Welfare Woman's auxiliary will give a tea this afternoon at the residence of the president, Mrs. Burne O. Sippy.

Hair Arrangement All Important with Newest Hats

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The line of the hat isn't the only thing you have to study to meet the emergencies created by the off-the-forehead fashion note. The hair line around the face is just as important.

Some women have a beautiful line at this particular section of heal anatomy. The hair may have that fine, clear, smooth line which permits of a completely exposed forehead and ears with hair drawn back tightly. Others may have to compromise with a bit of hair pulled out here and there to break an uninteresting flat line. Others are gifted by nature or its most excellent substitute, a good hairdresser, with just the right roll-back of a large, loose wave on the right or left side of the head, and, as is often the case with this good top line, a bit of hair brushed forward on the cheek creates a charming effect.

Another girl may be able to pull down toward her right and left temples one of those amusing little dandelion curls. Indeed, she may be able to add to the collection by placing another forward on the cheek just below the ear-tip.

Two or three large, loose waves, beginning at the middle of the brow, on the side, may be the kindliest line for another—the top of the head kept smooth and clear of undulations with the waving iron.

I saw a girl the other day wearing a far-back-perched tricorn, exposing above her young, smooth brow right in the center of her forehead a "widow's peak." It gave her brow line a most distinguished touch. Incidentally, I wonder where the phrase originated and how. Anyway, if you've got one concealed amid your hairs, bring it out now and wear it brazenly with your off-the-face hat.

Fellow Who Flirts, Year After Year, Courts Boredom

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One of our most famous psychologists is quoted recently as saying that "Bachelors and divorced husbands may have a gay time, but they frequently pay for this diversion in loss of health, in blackmail, and boredom. A jaded playboy gets no more thrill out of life than a bored husband."

"Spencer," admittedly 37, is the typical example of boredom which the so-called carefree bachelor eventually becomes. He tells me how he has been squiring girls around since he was a kid. Always said he'd never marry unless he could find a hundred per cent girl. Didn't want to find her until he was 30, at least.

By the time he was 30 he'd known so many girls he found them, according to his confession, all pretty much the same—flatterers, diggers, deceitful, nuisances and bores. However, the habit well established, girls kept on occupying his spare time from 30 to his present age.

Now, he says, "If he could only meet a real old fashioned one, etc., etc." That old fashioned girl strain is always the dying cry of the girl weary bachelor. He rarely fails to deliver it. It's the jaded playboy crying for his moon.

Speaking of a certain long divorced gentleman who enjoys his reputation of a nonmarrying kind, it was observed that he went everywhere, paid elaborate court to the most attractive girls, but along about going home time he was conspicuously absent from the picture. Asked about his "disappearing act" he admitted that he wouldn't take a chance on any possible situation that might entail blackmail, polite or crude.

So, his playing with girls must be done safely and publicly. Not a particularly pleasure giving frame of mind, you'll agree. This man's reputation is that of one who enjoys the gayest of times. Yet, he's admitted a pretty lonely spectacle by those in the know.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

CHICKWEED MARS LAWNS.

Serious infestations of lawns with chickweed is reported from sections around Chicago where the drought of last summer and fall burned out grass roots and permitted the weed pest to creep unopposed.

The chickweed will bear seed early this spring, according to R. B. Hull, landscape specialist at Purdue university. He claims the ability of the weed to make great quantities of seed quickly and almost throughout the entire growing season is what makes it a serious problem in the lawn.

Combatting it in small patches is possible by raking severely with a sharp toothed rake, repeating this frequently until all the weeds have been torn out. If the patches are small they can be torn out and resodded, otherwise reseeding with good quality grass seed is the most economical.

Ammonium sulphate can be dusted upon patches, left 24 hours and then it should be washed in with the hose. This kills chickweed. It also burns the grass somewhat, but the turf usually recovers quickly. Another chemical suggested is arsenate of lead. Five to eight pounds, mixed with a loam top dressing of sand and distributed over 1,000 square feet of lawn area is recommended. An early season application of this will tend to maintain an acid condition unfavorable to weed growth. Ammonium sulphate applied in broadcast fashion should be about five pounds to every 1,000 square feet and should be washed off the leaves of grass immediately with the garden hose or else applied just before a heavy shower.

Bad Habits of Youngsters Need Sensible Cures

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Sometimes the cure is worse than the disease. Some methods of curing what we call undesirable physical habits in children are more harmful to the child than the habit itself. Sucking the fingers, biting the finger nails, enuresis, masturbation—to mention a few—are surely habits which we don't want to have grow on a child, for many reasons. Some of the reasons are that they are inconvenient or unsightly or interfere with a child's or boy's or girl's free physical activity.

But, though we want the child to get rid of these habits, we must be sure that, in accomplishing it, we do not do him more harm than the habit does. The way in which this harm results is when fear is used as the means of curing. But I don't mean fear of punishment or of parents. I mean fear of certain consequences which are held up before the child.

When parents or others in charge of children want to make them stop some of these habits, first they concentrate on them as though they were the most important thing in the child's life. Then they often try to make a child feel a great sense of shame and a fear of what people will say. Or worst of all, and this concerns older children, they are sometimes made to fear that they may become insane.

Many times—not always—the habit is stopped, but the child is made to feel self-conscious or ashamed, which leads to a feeling of inferiority. Or he is made horribly fearful for his sanity.

So a harm of serious proportions is done to the child's mind and emotions infinitely more undesirable than the habit. There are many wise ways; don't arouse fear or shame.

Paris Creators Use Organdy for Evening

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Chanel is making more and better organdy evening gowns than ever for this summer. In fact, organdy predominates her new evening mode.

She shows flowered organdy and plain organdy, cross-barred organdy and organdy made still more transparent by hemstitched lines and patterns.

All the pastel tones are used, and crushed strawberry is featured. There are also many charming pure white frocks for sweet young things.

Chanel's use of organdy is specially important because it is indorsed by all the leading Paris creators.

Many of these cotton evening frocks are trimmed with lace, Valenciennes ruffles, and Venetian point incrustations being favorites. Venetian lace is, if anything, newer than Valenciennes and it occupies a noticeable place in new Paris styles for dressy occasions.

The Chanel evening frock, sketched, is of white organdy. Venetian point forms the star yoke incrusted in the puffed sleeves as well as in the bodice. The upper skirt is plain and fits snugly round the hips. Just below, there is another incrustation of the Venetian point and between each point three sun ray tucks give fullness to the lower skirt which is circular and further widened by inset godets of the Venetian point.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

SYNOPSIS.

Iris de Bertincourt lives in a remote section of Paris with her fifteen year old daughter, Clare. She and Maj. Alan Charnwood are desperately in love, but there are barriers to their immediate marriage. They are spending the last evening they will have together for several months, as Maj. Charnwood plans to leave next day for Africa. Clare is visiting in a school pal and is to be brought home by friends.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of enormous charm but utterly lacking in moral sense. Iris and he are cousins and the possible heirs of their Aunt Victoire, the comtesse de Castelmaurou. Iris plans to divorce her husband and marry Alan when he returns, but she is keeping her plans secret, as she wishes to avoid the interference of her tyrannical aunt, who has until recently ruled her life.

Iris receives a message telling her her aunt is on her way to see her. Alan leaves. The comtesse tells Iris that her husband's character has wholly changed and that he is desirous of resuming his duties as a husband and father. She asks Iris to think it over and give her answer at the end of the week. Just after the comtesse leaves, Iris hears a motor stop in front of the house and hears Clare's friends bidding her good night. When she opens the door for Clare she has disappeared.

Maj. Charnwood is just ready to leave his hotel when Iris reaches him. He hurries to her home. He suggests calling the friends who drove Clare home. They tell Iris they left Clare at her door. Alan accompanies Iris to notify the police.

INSTALLMENT IX.

AN INTERMINABLE NIGHT.

What did this silent telegraphy mean? Charnwood felt a shock down his spine, as though icy water had been poured over him.

"Thank God Iris missed that," he reflected uneasily.

Still, Clare might be home by now. They must drive back quickly and then. Half a dozen plausible excuses for her absence occurred to him, so that if it had not been for that interchange just witnessed he would have felt almost confident.

But the figure blocking the lighted doorway was Mathilde's, and her eyes surveying anxiously into the darkness told them the sickening truth.

Clare was still away.

An interminable night dragged by.

As on all such occasions, it was a long time before the situation could be accepted as real. Surely the thing was some huge blunder, a fantastic dream from which at any moment one would awaken to laugh with relief; but as the hours passed this illusion was stripped away.

One o'clock, two o'clock, three o'clock struck. In the street outside there was now not even an occasional football to draw Iris to the window. Yet still she wandered ceaselessly about the salon, not even hearing Charnwood when he besought her to sit down. Mathilde, keeping watch in the kitchen, came from time to time to the door and looked out, then returned, silent and perturbed.

What little conversation took place was jerky, disconnected—futile questions left unanswered, a broken sentence launched into vacancy. Again and again Charnwood fell back upon his one stronghold, the efficiency of the Paris police, but after a while his protestations sounded empty and inane. Moreover, in the back of his mind were those glances exchanged between the commissaire and his secretary which, as he recalled them, assumed a more and more sinister import.

outside came to extinguish the lamps and draw the curtains. Her action brought home the full measure of despair. Day had dawned, and Clare was still missing.

The gray light shone pitilessly on Iris' pallid face, out of which her blue eyes glared, strained and haggard. Even her beautiful ash blond hair seemed to have lost luster, the knot at the nape of her neck sagging in a heavy, dull mass. With pain at his heart Charnwood realized that this was the act of suffering which drains the lifeblood.

She shook her head like an automaton, but allowed him to lead her to the big chair by the fireplace, where she sank down indifferently.

At the stroke of seven Mathilde brought in a breakfast tray and set it on the stool between them. Crisp brown croissants, curling flakes of butter, fresh coffee sending up a fragrant invitation.

"Here, this will pull you together," Charnwood ventured, forcing her attention to the cup he had poured for her. "Come, you must drink it—I insist."

With a gesture of faint distaste she obeyed, and for a few seconds sipped the hot liquid. Then she set the cup down again and leaned back with closed eyes, while a trembling breath escaped her lips. From her drawn eyes he guessed that she was gropingly trying to collect her faculties.

"Tante Victoire will have to be told," she murmured with an effort. "But just yet, though, for she'll come at once, and you will have to go."

"You want me to help you interview the inspector?"

She nodded. "I would rather get that part over before my aunt arrives." She drew a weary hand across her forehead. "Strange for this to happen so soon after she had warned me."

"Warned you? Of what?"

"Of the danger of our living here. She has always opposed it, you know, and last night she declared it was positively unsafe. On Clare's account. It was almost as if she had had a premonition."

"That's nonsense," he pronounced, but for all that he frowned a little thoughtfully.

"Perhaps, but it's queer just the same." She stared in front of her, striving to detach the practical portion of her brains from its tormented confusion. "There's Helen, too. She will have to know, otherwise she'll be wondering why I don't turn up at the office."

"I will see Miss Roderick and explain. You can leave that and all other details to me. Now, though, we'd better get in touch with the commissaire and call him to send along his man."

Finishing his coffee at a gulp, he reached for the directory, but a ring at the bell forestalled him, and almost immediately Mathilde ushered in a thickset, middle aged officer, with intelligent brown eyes and big, rough hands.

"Inspector Maupin," announced the maid.

Iris sprang up.

"You've heard something?" she cried eagerly.

"No, madame," he returned in slight surprise. "Do you mean to say you have had no news?"

The disappointment was cruel.

"What news could there be?" Iris said with a despairing movement. "My daughter has completely disappeared, we cannot say how or why. Has she gone away of her own accord it might be different, but as it is——"

"Ah, precisely, madame!" he interrupted. "Are you quite certain it was not voluntary? No note left behind?"

She shook her head with impatience.

"No, no, you don't understand! She came back last night with friends, in their car. I heard her actually enter the gate. Whatever happened took place in the minute or two before I opened the door."

The inspector remained unimpressed.

"You have searched her room?" he inquired patiently.

"I did, madame," put in Mathilde from the doorway. "There is nothing there."

"Very good, madame. Perhaps you had better give me the exact sequence of events before we go any further."

In a business like fashion he seated himself and drew out a note book to jot down the information.

"Now, if you please," he remarked when the recital was finished, "I should like to put a few questions to you. To begin with, let me have a description of mademoiselle's clothing."

Iris complied. Clare had worn a frock of beige kasha, ornamented down the back with small metal buttons and piped with scarlet, a coat of the same material, and a small felt hat to match. Her shoes were brown with low heels and a strap across the instep, her stockings light beige.

"Thank you, madame. Next, where and with whom did she spend the evening?"

Iris told him.

"And this Madame Weber—she is some one you know well, a trustworthy person?"

"O, undoubtedly! While she is not an intimate friend, I can certainly vouch for her standing."

"You will pardon my question, but it is of some importance. You have no reason whatever to doubt her word, '"

"None," replied Iris emphatically.

"Kindly give me her address. I shall require a statement from her also from the chauffeur." He wrote down the street and number, continuing meanwhile, "And the school your daughter attends?"

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

It was our first night at a lakeside summer resort which had been recommended to us by a young couple who had spent two weeks there the previous summer. One advantage they had impressed on us was the lovely lake and the many boats at the disposal of the guests.

"Why," the young wife had said, "all you have to do is to go right out and take the boats and stay on the lake as long as you like!"

So this lovely evening as we sat admiring the various rowers, we decided we would like to go boating too.

Soon some people rowed to the shore and, climbing out of the boat, fastened it and started to walk away. That was our cue to take the boat. We climbed in and started to shove off. Just then the man who had vacated the boat turned around and spoke to us.

"It's all right if you use my boat," he said, "but come back soon, as we just came across the lake from our cottage to go to the store and we'd like to go back soon!"

It was a terrible moment and we certainly got out of that boat in a hurry.

Spring Fashions Responding to Warmer Days

BY THALIA ——.

THERE was a fine blossoming of spring clothes and spring spirits yesterday. Early morning walkers-out wore winter coats for their constitutionals, but returned home and got into lighter garb for luncheon engagements. Presently the ladies at the tea Mrs. Frank Hibbard gave for the Passavant hospital women's board were saying how warm it was and how dusty.

It was most pleasant at Mrs. Hibbard's, with everybody looking very nice and the sun and breezes pouring in through open windows. It was a talkative party, with the conversation ranging from admiring comments on the Hibbard apartment, which is rich and colorful in Italian and Spanish feeling, to Elsa Armour's engagement to W. Irving Osborne Jr. and the plans for the approaching Passavant benefit musical at the Bendix gallery next Tuesday eve.

Mrs. Francis J. Johnson told about the progress of the ticket sale for the benefit, saying that there are about a hundred tickets left and that the proceeds will be about $8,000, nearly enough to endow one free bed in the hospital.

The company included Mrs. Laurance Armour, who looked lovely and Lady Diana Mannerish in black and white crêpe, with a turban of soft white straw and a black patent leather purse, polka-dotted in white that matched her shoes; Mrs. Hibbard in blue and black plaid, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh all in brown, Mrs. William Yager in navy blue and white, Mrs. Harry Shearson, Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., Mrs. James Offield, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Lockwood Honore, Mrs. E. R. Fifield, Mrs. Charles King Corsant, Mrs. Gardiner Van Ness, Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Miss Muriel Winston in light brown tweed and brown felt hat, Mrs. Garfield King, and Mrs. Thomas Heneage.

Family's Absence Favors Display of Dramatic Talent.

Signs of the times—the dignified gentleman in the Tavern Fooleries who admitted he was glad his family was away because he didn't like to have them see him "be foolish" . . . the protraction of the contract bridge controversy about "hotsies," formerly known as "goulashes"—games almost have been broken up because of the argument between those who like to have passed hands or nongame-going hands redealt and those who don't . . . the gentlemen in formal attire on their way to a spring party with guns in their respective hip pockets for protection against good coast bandits . . . everybody talking about the number of wedding gifts they have to get this year.

And another thing!—The new roof of the big arena at Onwentsia is on now, and although it looks much the same as the old one that caved in during a heavy snowstorm, it is much stronger and more durable . . . Valeria Harris still leads the "channel swim" at the Woman's Athletic club and will soon have completed doing the hundred and one laps or so necessary to win . . . John Esmond recently presented the Black Horse troop with a good looking backgammon set, and it's installed in the troop's clubrooms. . . .

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's walking costume yesterday was a bottle green suit with a rather flared jacket edged and collared and cuffed in dark gray krimmer.

Relevancies—

If you tune in on W-G-N at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, you'll hear Mrs. Ralph Winston giving excerpts from the speech of Prof. Sumner H. Slichter on "How Can Government Safeguard Foods," under the auspices of the League of Women Voters.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift took their departure yesterday to sail in a few days for Europe to be gone until Aug. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Quincy White ["Sister" Everett] of 11 East Division street, announce the birth of a daughter at the Chicago Lying-in hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Hermon Beardsley Butler is to give a tea at her Winnetka residence tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. John H. Finley, who is here from New York for the Y. W. C. A. regional conference [she is chairman of the foreign division of the national board].

Spring calendar—The Needlework and Textile guild of the Art institute announced a talk on "Persian Embroideries and Textiles" by Miss Julie Michelet, the institute's representative at the recent Persian exhibit in London, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, followed by tea. . . . Mrs. Herbert S. Johnson is giving a "wrapping" tea on Friday afternoon for members of the committee for the Friendly Aid society's annual card party [May 12 at the Stevens], which means that the ladies will wrap the table favors. . . . The Cordon is giving a tea to open the summer exhibit on Friday afternoon. Mme. Hanna Butler is to sing, and Alice Gerstenberg and Judith Lowry of the Goodman's "Sacred Flame" company are to be special guests. . . . Hostesses for the opening of the spring exhibit of members artists of the Chicago Galleries association on Saturday afternoon are Mrs. Curtis B. Camp, Mrs. Paul Schulze, Mrs. L. L. Valentine, Mrs. William H. G. Logan, Mrs. William L. Jacoby, Mrs. Clifford C. Bradbury, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Raymond E. Durham, Mrs. E. M. Antrim, Mrs. Harry L. Engle, Mrs. Joseph H. Briggs, and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze. . . . Boxholders to date for the Florence Nightingale chorus 11th annual concert at the Blackstone on May 14 include Mrs. William W. Dixon, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. John Welling, Alfred E. Hamill, Miss Helen Drake, and Mrs. George R. Nichols.

Sally Fowler Engaged to Robert Franklin Priest.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fowler Hopkins of 515 Wrightwood avenue announced the engagement of their daughter, Sally, to Robert Franklin Priest, son of Mrs. Leslie Priest of 2739 North Marshfield avenue at a dinner given at the residence of Miss Hopkins' uncle, William Austin of 1245 Astor street. Miss Hopkins was graduated from Miss Madeira's school in Washington, D. C., and has been active in the Junior Friends of Art. Mr. Priest was graduated from Harvard, class of 1922, and did postgraduate work at University college, Oxford. The wedding is to take place in June.

Dr. and Mrs. James Eucherions Keefe of 3971 Ellis avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeannette, to Daniel Gerard Hereley, son of Mrs. Millard Bernard Hereley of 540 Briar place.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—President and Mrs. Hoover were the dinner guests tonight of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde at the Mayflower hotel. Dinner was served in the Chinese room and coffee in the pan-American room. The tablecloth was strewn with flowers.

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. R. P. Lamont will entertain a house party over the week-end for their daughter, Gertrude, whose marriage to Charles Eskridge Saltzman will take place Saturday. Miss Jane Trowbridge and Miss Helen Ewing, both of Lake Forest, Ill., will arrive Thursday and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Belknap son-in-law and daughter of Secretary and Mrs. Lamont, will come tomorrow. They are all in the wedding party.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

CHILD'S DRESS.

Paris sends a tricolor scheme in darling jumper dress for wee moderns of 2, 4, and 6 years. It is pale blue ground gingham overplaided in navy blue fine stripings. Plain navy bindings give emphasis to the white batiste French guimpe. The belt may be omitted if little daughter looks best in a dress that hangs free from the shoulders. Inverted plaits at each side of the front and the back give it a tailored air and provide ample fullness to the hem for freedom.

Pattern No. 3049 may be copied for the 4 year old youngster with 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material for the dress with ⅛ yard of 35 inch material for blouse and 2½ yards of binding.

Victor Higgins Gets Spirit of New Mexico

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

IT is exciting when you find a man well known for one kind of painting being tremendously strong in another branch. Victor Higgins has made a name for himself all over the country through his magnificent oils, his brilliant canvasses dealing with the landscape and peoples of New Mexico. In the Chester H. Johnson galleries, Fine Arts building, we find today a picturesque and vigorous showing of his water colors. These, too, deal with the hills and plains, the skies and trees about and around Taos, N. M.

There is something in the soil of that country, some mineral, iron or whatnot, that filters through the earth and is taken up by the roots of trees and other vegetation. It gives a distinct color tang to the simplest of trees. For example, the apple tree in New Mexico is a dull copper, trunk and leaves. In contrast to this there is the feathery cottonwood, the two in scene after scene play their dramatic parts.

Victor Higgins paints them thus in picture after picture, the same yet never the same. Behind them, or among them, are the adobe houses, colorful, a little mysterious. Beyond them rise the low ranges of hills, black sometimes, purple sometimes and sometimes a dull orange or gray. The sky fits over all like a silken hood, now faultlessly blue and now sailing white clouds through its depths, once with the ominous rumble of approaching thunder darkening its serenity.

To point instances: You will enjoy the delightful "Cañon Morado"; the trees and snow and red houses in "Hill Town Near Taos"; the green and snow of "Taos Creek"; the pink and blue hills, gay in their brightness, of "The Padre's House"; the snow and the blue of the "Frozen Stream"; the masculine simplicity, the evident vigor in "Quadrilateral Lines," a composition of trees.

The exhibit will continue another two weeks, to May 10, and is well worth seeing.

Food Talk.

Requests for vegetable luncheons, vegetable dinners, and menus for a whole week consisting of vegetables and fruits prove that a number of people are more vegetable conscious than they have once been. The only specification in these requests is that we omit from our menus meat, fish, and eggs, and include only a little cheese.

One can plan a diet using vegetables, cereals, fats, and fruits that will appeal to the palate and take care of the calories, minerals, and vitamins, but it is almost impossible to obtain an adequate diet without using some of the concentrated protein foods—meats, fish, eggs, and cheese. The adult body needs from 50 to 75 grams protein [depending upon the size] for the repair of tissue, and the infant and adolescent must have protein for growth as well as for repair. Every cell of the human body requires protein for its composition. Therefore, we need to be sure that we are getting sufficient protein. One should not protract his living on a diet made up entirely of vegetables without the advice of a physician.

The following menus, I believe, will take care of all the different requests we have had for vegetable menus. We are making use of nuts and milk, some cheese, and the legumes [beans, peas, and lentils] to supply the protein. Mushrooms appear several times because they add a flavor that is almost as satisfactory to most palates as meat. Six menus which avoid the above mentioned proteins follow:

Dinner — Buttered peas, broiled mushrooms on toast, baked potatoes, lettuce salad, pineapple cream pie, and coffee.

Breakfast—Grapefruit, wheat cakes, honey or jelly, coffee, and cream.

Luncheon—Peanut butter and banana sandwich, a salad made of tomato stuffed with broiled mushrooms, French dressing, and strawberry shortcake.

Dinner—Baked beans, escalloped tomatoes, cole slaw, and apple dumpeat cereal, currant muffins, butter, and coffee.

SLICED HAM HAWAIIAN.

1 center slice ham 1 inch thick
2 tbsp. brown sugar
1 cup pineapple juice
6 sliced pineapple
6 marshmallows

Cover the ham with cold water and heat quickly to the boiling point. Drain off the water. Sprinkle the ham with brown sugar and cook until browned nicely on both sides. Add pineapple juice, cover, and let cook about 20 minutes, when it will be tender. Uncover, lay 5 slices of pineapple, which have been sautéed in hot fat, on the ham, sprinkle with sugar, and put a marshallow in each hole. Place under the broiling flame long enough to brown marshmallows.

Yield: Five servings.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Several neighbors had called to see the new baby, and were standing around the basket. Little Bob was looking on.

One of the ladies asked, "Bob, may I take little sister along?"

"Yes," said Bob, "mother needs the clothes basket."

BRAZIL CRUSHES POLICE MUTINY IN CITY OF SAO PAULO

"Administrative reforms caused a movement of indiscipline among the police quartered in headquarters at Sao Paulo today. The movement, which was not political in character, was promptly checked without bloodshed. Banks and commercial houses were functioning normally."

The situation in Brazil has been tense for several weeks as a result of rumblings against the provisional government which came headed by Getulio Vargas, into power after last October's revolution, sweeping Washington Luis from the presidency.

Attack Two Decrees.

Newspapers, which were strong supporters of the revolution, have been criticizing the administration, although the minister of justice, Oswaldo Aranha, under date of March 19 issued an order of strict censorship on the press.

Newspapers criticized two decrees issued by the minister of labor, Lindolpho Collor, several weeks ago. One was a ban on importation of machinery for a year. It was claimed that this decree was antagonistic to the United States and England. The other decree was for the "nationalization of industry." It provided that two-thirds of the employés of all companies, including foreign enterprises, must be Brazilian born.

Shakes Up Chile's Cabinet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 28.—Following the collective resignation of the Chilean cabinet yesterday to permit President Carlos Ibanez more liberty of action in the development of government programs, the president rejected five resignations and accepted five others.

Among the accepted resignations were those of Manuel Barros Castanon, minister of foreign affairs; Rear Admiral von Schroeders, minister of navy; Humberto Arce, minister of justice; Luis Matte Larrain, minister of public works, and Alberto Edwards, minister of education.

Lawyer New Foreign Chief.

Antonio Planet, a lawyer, recently legal adviser to the Chilean embassy at Washington, has been appointed new foreign minister. He has also accepted the portfolio of the ministry of justice. Gustavo Lira, rector of Chile university, has been named minister of education, with Edecio Torreblanca receiving three portfolios, minister of property, agriculture, and public works. Admiral Hipolito Marbant is the new marine minister. The resignation of Dr. Puelma Laval, minister of social welfare, was refused and he will continue in office.

The government recently decided to lower official salaries by an average of 20 per cent to make ends meet and avoid a big deficit. The decision was a victory for youthful Finance Minister Castro Ruiz, who also induced President Ibanez to compel 75 per cent of the government employés to give up their motor cars, which will be auctioned off.

This was the second salary cut in the official economy program and it made a good impression because the army and navy was included.

EXPLORER DEAD IN AFRICAN FLOOD, BROTHER HEARS

Los Angeles, Cal., April 28.—[Special.]—Dr. Arthur Torrance, University of Southern California, scientist and leader of a medical expedition into the Belgian Congo, is believed to have been drowned last week in a cloudburst that hit the expedition's African camp.

Word was carried to Buta, a small town on the fringe of the African wilderness, by native runners and radioed here to Capt. Victor J. Torrance, the scientist's brother.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Bill Cissell day, staged by Bill himself yesterday, proved the very thing needed to reestablish the White Sox as winners. As a warmup for a grand clout Cissell doubled twice to figure in two scoring episodes and then when the count was tied and time growing short he exploded a homer by which the South Siders whipped Detroit's Tigers, 6 to 5. The round trip wallop also enabled the lengthy Pat Caraway to record his second triumph of the campaign.

Given steady support afield, Caraway would have required no home run heroics to enable him to accomplish his purpose. Shaky bits of fly chasing in the second put him in a spot from which he didn't emerge until two visitors had crossed the plate. He was additionally annoyed by a boot which produced another run in the third, leaving him in arrears by 3 to 0, but after this everything ran along smoothly except in the seventh, when the Tigers actually earned two tallies that knotted the argument.

Cissell's Big Day.

Cissell's achievements in the order in which he reeled them off were as follows: In the fourth, which marked the first time the Sox made even a dent against Vic Sorrell's pitching, Bill came up with two men on base and chased them across by doubling. He was back for another trial in the sixth and this time doubled to set in motion a three run rally which provided the home troops with a temporary two run lead. Then when Bill appeared again in the seventh old George Uhle was pitching and two were deposed. Bill lined the ball into the lower tier in left and the lone run was all that Caraway required.

Watwood's inability to cope with fly balls which were dancing around in the wind made it possible for the Tigers to grab hold of their pair of runs in the second. Alexander opened the attack with a liner which Watwood should have grabbed but didn't. It held for a double. After McManus' decision, Doljack produced a similar two bagger, Alex scoring. Owen filed out, and when Hayworth shot a legitimate single to right center, Doljack counted. Sorrell also hit safely, but Caraway put a stop to the disturbance by fanning H. Walker.

Indians Get Another.

Possibility of accomplishing a double play was the cause of Appling making the visitors a present of one run in the third. Koenig walked with one out and the ungainly but effective Alexander shoved him to third on a single to right. McManus bounced to short and with speed a double play might have been perpetrated. Appling tried to apply the speed, but didn't come up with the ball, so both Alexander and McManus were safe and Koenig jogged over the plate. Doljack then fanned, and Alex was doubled trying to steal third.

Not having produced a hit in three

BOXING BY INJUNCTION.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN Corporation of Illinois is badly advised, in our opinion, if it seeks by injunction to prevent the proposed Sharkey-Carnera bout in Brooklyn on June 10.

This subsidiary of the New York corporation is promoting the Schmeling-Stribling bout in Cleveland on July 3. It claims a contract whereby Carnera agrees to meet that winner and to engage in no other important engagement before September. No doubt it has such a contract. Possibly, even probably, its contract is valid and may be enforced, even though it involve a rumpus with the New York boxing commission, which has sanctioned the Sharkey-Carnera meeting.

That's not our point. Of course, a contract's a contract, but not always so in boxing. But we dislike to see sport get tangled up in litigation. It's been our observation that sport usually comes out second best when it asks learned jurists to pass upon its moot questions.

Apart from all legal considerations, however, let's look at this Carnera affair from another angle. Primo has not shown that he is a great pugilist. Some evidence has been to the contrary. Whether he would make a good opponent for either Schmeling or Stribling is open to question, although he has met the Georgian twice in bouts abroad which terminated in fouls, each man winning one of the bouts.

Now, if Carnera loses to Sharkey he will not, it is true, be a drawing card against the July 3 winner. If, on the other hand, he topples the Bostonian, he is an ever greater card for a future match. But Carnera at present is so much of a question mark that his tieup to meet the Schmeling-Stribling winner appears more like matchmaking than an effort to determine the logical champion.

Furthermore, application for an injunction will impress most observers as more an effort to embarrass a rival syndicate promoting the Sharkey-Carnera bout than an effort to protect contractual rights.

We suppose it's nothing to get excited about, and we're not excited, but simply so averse to legal actions in sport that we cannot refrain from expressing an opinion.

A Poem for You.

I love you, I love you, I love you;
I've told you so dozens of times:
I love you. . . . I'd do anything for you—

You fill me with wonder and longing,
In you lies my paradise,
And, Sweetheart, I'm yours for the asking,
But I can't write an ode to your eyes.

I love you, I love you, I love you,
Love everything that you do;
But, Darling, I can't, though you ask it,
Write a bit of a poem about you!

Lewis Wins in Hurry; Speaks a Nice Piece

Ed [Strangler] Lewis, champion of one faction in wrestling, came back to the Coliseum last night to demonstrate that he is capable of taking control of the situation once more, James Londos willing. The Strangler disposed of one Jean Le Deaux in straight falls of the feature number of the bill presented by Promoters Joe Coffey and James Mullen. The performance was executed with amazing speed, the first fall requiring eight minutes and 36 seconds and the final only 43 seconds. Lewis used his personally designed headlock to achieve both falls.

Last night's show attracted 3,107. They paid $6,170 to see a mixture of the new and old versions of the grappling pastime.

Speaks a Nice Piece.

Lewis spoke a very nice piece at the conclusion of his match, referring to his distinguished rival as Mr. Londos, but whether he shall be able to arrange an engagement with James remains doubtful, in view of the fact that the Curley-White-Londos party appears to be doing an excellent business with its portion of the title.

Lewis and Lou Talaber, who once served a term as middleweight champion, gave a demonstration of the old school of wrestling in last night's show, while Hank Bruder, captain of the 1930 Northwestern university football team, and Zack Malakov, the motorbike constable, provided the modern installment.

Lewis displayed great efficiency in making Le Deaux hold still, but he skipped nary an "oof" whenever the Frenchman did manage to embarrass him by ramming his head into the Strangler's neck and chest.

Malakov, Talaber Draw.

Bruder pinned George Schwab with a body scissors and an arm hold in 11:22, whereat the customers set up a booing, since it appeared that George's head and shoulders were outside the ring. Hank did everything but call signals in charging into Georg's middle, causing the German no small amount of pain at such newfangled tactics.

Gus Sonnenberg, who is recognized as vice president of the Lewis organization, and Karl Zbyzsko, a nephew of Stanislaus and Wladek, tugged and scuffed and grunted to no avail for thirty minutes during which a portion of Karl's left ear nearly became separated from him.

GOLDEN GLOVES SQUAD TO START WORK SATURDAY

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Glove team of 14 boys will start training Saturday at the Illinois Athletic club. Two of the eight champions who will meet the French titleholders at Soldiers' field the night of May 12 are from New York. The other champions and all of the alternates, were members of Chicago's intercity squad.

Six alternates were named so the United States will not lack for a worthy fighter in event any of the eight champions is forced to withdraw.

CHAMPIONS.

112 pounds—Leo Rodak.
118 pounds—Nick Scialaba.
126 pounds—Don Gonzales.
135 pounds—Scotty Sylvano.
147 pounds—Phil Dardell.
160 pounds—Fred Caserio.
175 pounds—Jack Kranz.
Heavyweight—Justin Sirotis.

ALTERNATES.

112 and 118 pounds—George Goodman.
126 pounds—Tony Muscarello.
135 pounds—George Holden.
147 pounds—George Keenan.
160 and 175 pounds—Tony Sutton.
Heavyweight—Adam Smith.

The six alternates on the international squad fought against New York, and all except George Keenan, the Chicago welterweight champion, were victorious. Tony Sutton, the 175 pound alternate when Chicago defeated New York, weighed in at 162 pounds that night. He can make the middleweight limit easily. The same is true of George Goodman, who weighed only two pounds over the flyweight limit of 112 when he whipped the New York alternate bantamweight.

Three Win C. A. A. U. Titles.

Scialaba, Holden and Sutton won Central A. A. U. boxing championships last week and now are fighting in the national A. A. U. tournament at New York. Don Gonzales of Cleveland, the featherweight champion of the Northeastern Ohio A. A. U., is in the same tournament. If any of the boys are injured, the international squad will be readjusted accordingly.

In the event all of the boys come through the training period without injury the six alternates will fight May 12 before the first international bout is staged. This will insure a boxing program of from three to three and one-half hours if all of the bouts go the limit.

Opponents for the preliminary bouts will be chosen from those who competed in the sectional or out of town Golden Gloves tournament.

Frenchmen Land Tuesday.

The French squad, which lands in New York next Tuesday, will come immediately to Chicago, traveling on the Broadway Limited. They will be quartered at the Medinah Athletic club.

Construction of the ringside section of 22,000 seats was begun yesterday at Soldiers' field. There are 4,000 $2 and $1 tickets left. These are reserved and in the event rain or cold weather forces the fights indoor at the Chicago Stadium, May 12, the holders are assured they will see the bouts.

All tickets will be mailed out next Tuesday. The printers have been working several days on the tickets, printing the Soldiers' field location on each. Previously the tickets were run through the presses with the usual seating arrangement of the Chicago Stadium. The second printing must be done by hand. This has caused the delay since the architects completed the seating plans for Soldiers' field.

Cubs Hope to Resume Their Labors Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 28.—Our Cubs tonight earnestly are contemplating the return to their chosen profession, that of playing baseball for hire. There is every indication that they will participate in a contest tomorrow afternoon with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Cubs have been doing a heap of loafing, beginning with their last day in Chicago, continuing two days in Pittsburgh, and after two games in Pittsburgh and a game here Sunday, resuming rest for two more days. Even so, the Reds in the last six days, have rested more than the Cubs, having played but one game out of six encounters scheduled for here and St. Louis.

Manager Hornsby has spent most of the last 48 hours of baseball inactivity laying plans for the impending four game series with the champion Cardinals, which opens in St. Louis Thursday. Rogers has prophesied that the Cubs will win the season series by a goodly margin, although the Cards so far have won two out of three games played.

Baecht Given Chance.

In accordance with his desire to shoot the works against the champs in the coming set, Hornsby says he will give Ed Baecht, the mammoth right hander from Grafton, Ill., his first start in the game tomorrow.

Although Ed hasn't pitched a ball in competition since the National league season opened, Hornsby says he thinks the young man who won 26 games for Los Angeles last year, will subdue the Reds impressively. Bush and Blake will be warmed up, ready to step in if Big Ed shows signs of nervousness and succumbs to his one weakness, which is a tendency to lose control, the manager said.

If Baecht gets by, Hornsby added, he'll have Smith, Malone, Sweetland and Root available in the order named for starts in the St. Louis series, with Bush and Blake standing by for right hand emergencies and Jake May on the fire for relief when strategy requires a switch to a lefthander.

Encouraged by Pittsburgh Work.

Incidentally, Sweetland won his ascendancy to the rank of starting pitcher through his relief work in Hornsby's personal home run carnival in Pittsburgh last Friday. The former Philly relieved Blake after Traynor had driven in three runs with a homer to bring the score to 5 to 0 against the Cubs. Les walked Mosolf and Suhr as a starter, but he then got the side out without further run making. He settled down and held the advantage gained by his boss' homer spree.

LEADER MAKES GLOOMY SPEECH ON PROSPECTS

But Keeps Tongue in His Cheek.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 28.—This is a very modest troupe of amateur fist fighters which is sailing for the United States tomorrow night to fight the composite champion team of Golden Gloves scrappers from New York and Chicago. Monsieur le Docteur Charles Sebenq, Paris physician and official of the French boxing federation, who will accompany the team, insists that his boys are very demure and only the least of a never-to-be-sufficiently-apologized-for lot.

M. le Docteur states that owing to the preoccupation of his countrymen with le cyclism, le Rugby, le football, le tennis, les reparations, and other more urgent considerations, "les amateurs du boxe" have been neglected by the general public of France, and that therefore his team is composed more of lucky opportunists than legitimate champions.

Tactics Seem Familiar.

It is noticed, however, that whenever Monsieur le Croaker talks in this manner about his gladiators he elevates his chin, lowers the shutters on his large brown jewels of eyes, and twizzles his cigaret in his lips in a certain suspicious manner reminiscent of the more gulleful moods of the late Leo P. Flynn.

In his most gulleful mood the late Mr. Flynn once took one of his young men up to Fall River to fight a very poisonous local character and prayed on the sympathies of the party of the other part to such effect that the party of the other part came out boxing in a most elaborate and humane manner. Thereupon Mr. Flynn's athlete maliciously unscrewed a girder from the roof of the hall, took a pants pocket swing, and busted his adversary with what Mr. Eugene Field described as one "goshalmighty lick."

Mr. Flynn, of course, proffered his apologies, but any time somebody picks up an anvil by the snout and pats you with it on the skull, no matter how desolate he may feel about this inadvertance, you are almost certain to feel a little bit worse.

It's Well to Be Cautious.

Without meaning to doubt the good docteur's sincerity, it is just as well, nevertheless, to approach the strangers with caution, and it is just as well also to remember that the French have never had their pockets picked at conferences diplomatiques, n'est ce pas?

Eugene Criqui, a mutilated war veteran, wearing a segment of sheep's rib in his jaw, went to New York after the war and with one wandering, apparently casual swipe, dispatched through the foggy light of the Polo grounds at night, flicked the great American featherweight champion boxer, Johnny Kilbane, on his whiskers and sat him in the resin to win the title.

It had been said that Criqui's jaw would crumble from so much as an unkind remark, but Kilbane became a totally erstwhile professional before he could begin his conversational service.

Think of Wilhelm II.

More will be learned of the French boxers' abilities when they begin to practice in the gymnasium on the steamship France, but until the international meet is won or lost, as the case may be, it will be safer to remember that Wilhelm II. also took the French for pushovers. Wilhelm has been a woodchopper for a dozen years. Lincoln ennobled wood chopping as a beginning, but it is no way to wind up.

AMATEUR SPORT REVIVAL

BY DON MAXWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 28.—On the eve of the French amateur boxing team's departure for the international bouts at Chicago, L'Intransigeant announces plans for Golden Gloves competition in France.

L'Intransigeant, one of the most influential and widely circulated newspapers in Paris, gives THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE credit for the reawakening of interest in amateur boxing in France.

"The departure for Chicago tomorrow of the French team of amateur boxers is something calculated to make us rejoice," L'Intransigeant says. "Amateur boxing was in a state of lethargy and little was being done to draw it out of this state. The first attempt of any efficacy is of American origin. It is to THE TRIBUNE that we are indebted. It, perhaps, would have been more flattering for us if we had not needed this encouragement."

Team Assembles Today.

Following the publication of this article the boxing writer of L'Intransigeant announced his newspaper's hope to model Golden Gloves tournaments in France next year after the meets conducted by THE TRIBUNE and the New York Daily News.

The ten boxers of the French team are to assemble at noon tomorrow at the Mollard, an unpretentious but old restaurant near the Gare St. Lazare, from which the special boat train for Havre steams out at 5:15 p. m.

3 A. M. WORKOUTS ROUSE SLEEPY EYED CLOCKERS

Coughlin Horses, High Foot in Fast Drills.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The sleepy old clockers who roll out of bed along about 3 o'clock in the morning and line up with the railbirds were startled at the Aurora course early yesterday when a couple of big free running chestnuts began galloping around the track.

We know they were startled, for we were right along side of old Jim Farley, the split second expert from New Orleans, and at our right elbow was Clocker Overton, the Kentuckian.

"I don't mean Hot Foot. The horse is High Foot," said Clocker Overton. And sure enough it was High Foot. This big chestnut cost his backers thousands last spring when he flopped so disgracefully in the Kentucky Derby. You would know it was High Foot, for Dick Nash, his owner, and a party of friends were over in the infield watching High Foot move along. He pulled up at the end of a rather easy two mile gallop without a sign of the limp which put him on the shelf long before last year's racing ended.

"Here comes the First Ward," Clocker Farley shouted over to Clocker Overton a few minutes later when another big chestnut got into stride on the back stretch and began his journey around the race course. "Must be Coughlin's Roguish Eye," continued Farley. "Nope, it's Karl Eitel," said Farley, who had noticed a peculiar marking on the horse's right foot.

High Foot and Karl Eitel may not do much racing at Aurora. They both galloped soundly yesterday but neither appeared ready for a hard racing effort. But if these fellows should show some of the form they once flashed, all will not be milk and honey when the invaders from New York, Kentucky and Maryland begin to stream into Chicago later in the season seeking our rich turf prizes.

Sometimes a good horse that goes wrong early in his career comes back a season or two later and shows his greatness. But it doesn't happen often. "They don't come back." You have heard it a thousand times in every branch of sport.

What About That Arlington Mile?

The Chicago sportsmen who in the short space of a couple of seasons have made the Arlington Park racing season one of the most notable in America are speculating on miles being run out of the chute and over the new Herts course in better than 1:35 during the coming Arlington season, which opens June 29 and continues throughout the month of July.

But what horse is going to run that mile in better than 1:35?

How will they get horses like Jack High, Boojum, Lady Broadcast, Chestnut Oak, Valenciennes, Balko, Surf Board, Gallant Knight, Twenty Grand, Pigeon Hole, Blue Larkspur and other flyers which might turn in such a scorching mile into a contest unless it is a stake race? Some horse might run the eight furlongs in better than 1:35 in an overnight handicap. Lady Broadcast established the track record last year in such an event, her mark being 1:36 3-5. Valenciennes was another to run the distance in better than 1:36. But to get a mile in less than 1:35 a horse will have to be pointed for such a race.

A stake race at a mile with all the fastest horses in training striving for the prize might result in the fastest mile ever run over an American race course. The American record against the watch is Roamer's 1:34 4-5, made at Saratoga in August, 1918.

Will Equipoise Be Ready?

Fred Hopkins declares his charge, Equipoise, the Kentucky Derby future book favorite, is O. K. and ready to fill his engagement in the Preakness.

One wonders how strong you can rely on Trainer Hopkins' judgment. For he must have been of the opinion that Equipoise was O. K. when he saddled him for the Chesapeake stakes at Havre de Grace last Saturday. Yet Equipoise was a sick horse and ran a disgraceful last all the way in the Chesapeake.

Will Trainer Hopkins know more about Equipoise in the Preakness to be run one week from Saturday? Some times horses that have been raced as much as Equipoise lose their desire to win.

But look at Zev's performance back in 1923. He ran disgracefully in the Preakness. A week later he made a holy show of his field in the Kentucky Derby.

INDIANAPOLIS STARS TO DRIVE SPEED CARS HERE

Indianapolis speedway stars will appear in Chicago this summer in a race meeting under the rules and with the sanction of the American Automobile association contest board, of which Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, world war ace, is chairman.

The first race probably will be held shortly after the Memorial day 500 mile race at Indianapolis, according to B. Ward Beam, eastern promoter, who has secured Roby speedway, 108th and Indianapolis avenue, for the season. Roby will be the scene of several big meets, alternating dates with the board tracks of Pittsburgh and Akron, and the dirt tracks of Cleveland and Toledo.

The A. A. A. has inspected the Roby plant and made numerous recommendations which will bring it up to the standard of safety for drivers and spectators required by the association. The track will be resurfaced, safety fences erected, and the whole plant overhauled.

SMITTY—WAITING FOR A RING

WHAT ELSE DID THE DETECTIVE SAY TO YOU, PAL?
HE SAID NOT TO WORRY, THAT THEY'D GET THE CAR THAT RAN OVER HERBY—HE WAS A HIT-AND RUN DRIVER, HE SAID
I HOPE THEY DO GET HIM—HE RAN OVER MY LITTLE BROTHER
SAY SMITTY—I KNOW HOW YOU'RE FEELING—YOU DON'T HAVE TO HANG AROUND THE OFFICE
BUT I GOTTA HANG AROUND THE PHONE, BOSS—THEY'RE GONNA CALL ME FROM THE HOSPITAL AND LET ME KNOW HOW MY BROTHER IS

Cissell's Bat Produces 6-5 Sox Victory

innings, the Sox surprised everybody when they stepped up and clubbed across a pair of runs in the fourth. Simons was the instigator of this revolt against Sorrell. He lined into the right field corner for two bases. Reynolds hit to right and Doljack failed to pick the ball out of the sun. Reynolds went as far as second and Simons to third. Watwood's fly was of no help, but Cissell rammed a two bagger along the right field line and the two waiting runners went home. Appling prolonged the happy event by walking but Kamm broke it up by grounding into a double play.

The Cannonading Begins.

Reynolds and Simons flopped in a pinch when two were on bases in the fifth but all was forgiven after the blast that scored three markers for the Pale Hose in the sixth. The cannonading began with one out on Cissell's double against the left field bricks. He dashed home on Appling's singel over first. Kamm lined to the wall in left and the ball took such a healthy rebound that Willie was able to reach third, Appling scoring. Kamm hiked over the plate while Tate was beating out a single on which McManus made a great stop. Tate was forced on a bunt by Caraway, who galloped to third on Blue's single. Simons then popped out the inning.

A pinch hitter was responsible for the fuss that enabled the Tigers to score two and bring a 5 to 5 deadlock in the seventh. The ancient Joe Dugan batted for Sorrell and singled to left. Gehringer swung for H. Walker but flied into Reynolds' hands. G. Walker took free passage and Koenig double to left. This scored Dugan and planted G. Walker on third. He hiked in on a fly ball after Alexander had been purposely passed. A moment or so later Cissell's homer off Uhle put the Sox back in front and that's where they stayed.

Tommy Thomas will be back this afternoon to give his arm another test. Lefty Whitehall probably will function for the Tigers. In that event Boss Bush will put Bob Fothergill, right hand hitter, in left field.

PURDUE PITCHER FANS NINE, BUT INDIANA WINS, 3-1

La Fayette, Ind., April 28.—[Special.]—Purdue's wabbly infield donated a 3 to 1 victory to Indiana here today as the Boilermakers opened their Big Ten baseball season. John Palo, veteran southpaw, pitched a brilliant game for the Boilermakers and accounted for three hits, one a double, on his own account, but five costly errors kept him in constant trouble. Palo struck out nine men, most of them in the pinches.

Veller, Indiana's ace, started the game, but was relieved at the end of the second inning after Purdue had made three hits account for their single run. Gatti, who relieved him, kept Purdue's hits well scattered for the remainder of the game.

Students of Boston U. Honor Mickey Cochrane

Boston, Mass., April 28.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane, Philadelphia Athletics' catcher and Boston university's most important contribution to baseball, today was presented with a desk set by the 600 members of the Boston university reserve officers' training corps, in which he served as a student. The presentation was made by Dean Everett W. Lord after the corps drilled and passed in review before Cochrane, Manager Connie Mack, and several of Cochrane's teammates.

Notre Dame and Purple to Clash on Diamond Today

Northwestern and Notre Dame will resume baseball rivalry at Roycemore field in Evanston today. The contest will be the first of a two game series, the second of which will be played at South Bend May 19.

Notre Dame has beaten Wisconsin and Iowa this spring. Northwestern has three conference victories to its credit and has lost one game, that to Illinois in the opening clash of the season.

Johnny Kruft, sophomore star, will start on the mound for the Purple. He pitched effectively against Minnesota last Friday, striking out ten men. Buck Fyfe, who held the Gophers to two hits Saturday, will be available for relief duty. Either Palt or Mannix, the former a left hander, and the latter a right hander, will hurl for the visitors.

Lee Hanley, Wildcat center fielder, is leading his mates in batting with a .526 average for four Big Ten games played this season. He has made 10 hits in 19 times at bat. Capt. Larry Oliphant is second with .357 and Phil Seghi, sophomore second baseman, is third with .333.

Northwestern will meet Ohio at Evanston Saturday afternoon in the second game to be played this week. The lineup:

CLEVELAND RING REFEREE SHOT IN ROBBER HUNT

Galion, O., April 28.—(AP)—Matt Brock, 45, Cleveland fight referee, was critically wounded by Glenn Funk, 20, suspected robber, today when Funk attempted to escape a police posse. Funk was wounded and captured.

Mansfield and Galion police had cornered Funk, who was sought for the wounding and robbing of Ray King, 20, Zanesville, manager of a Mansfield wall paper store, a few hours before.

Brock, who came here to referee a boxing exhibition, was standing near the police when Funk fired at them in an attempt to shoot his way to freedom. A bullet struck Brock in the left groin. Physicians expressed fear that it had been deflected into the abdomen.

Stadium Signs Lawless for Thompson Go

Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., was signed yesterday by Nate Lewis, matchmaker for the Chicago Stadium, to meet Jack Thompson, welterweight champion of the world, in a ten round bout here May 8. Thompson's title will not be at stake.

Lawless was given a referee's decision over Thompson six weeks before the Negro defeated Tommy Freeman at Cleveland for the championship, and prior to that he also won an overweight bout with Freeman.

For this fight the Stadium has scaled the house on a $1, $2, and $3 basis. If the 21,000 Stadium seats are sold, the gross will be aproximately $40,000.

Barney Ross will appear on the same card. His opponent has not been selected. Three eights and two 4 rounders will support the Thompson-Lawless fight.

GRIMES PITCHES CARDINALS BACK TO TIE FOR LEAD

Bottomley's Homer Helps Beat Pirates, 8-2.

St. Louis, Mo., April 28.—(AP)—Burleigh Grimes scattered Pittsburgh's six hits and St. Louis won, 8 to 2, today, thereby going into a tie with Chicago for first place in the National league.

Meanwhile the St. Louisians hammered away at the offerings of Charley Root, southpaw, who was replaced in the sixth by Spencer, who gave way to Grant in the eighth.

Phillips opened the Pittsburgh scoring with a home run in the second, but Bottomley did a better job of it by bringing in two ahead of him when he completed a base circuit in the fifth. Score:

Senators Tie Yanks, 7 to 7, in 14 Innings

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—Washington and the New York Yankees battled 14 innings to a 7-7 tie before darkness halted their play here today. Sherid and Gomez pitched for the Yankees, while Jones, Marberry, and Fischer worked on the mound for the Senators.

The Yankees went into the ninth inning with a 5 to 4 lead and then scored two more runs to apparently insure victory. However, the Senators retaliated with three runs to tie the score in their half of the ninth.

This was the second extra-inning game played in this series, the Senators having won, 9 to 8, in twelve innings yesterday. Score:

Chicago Fighters Battle to Victory in N. A. A. U. Meet

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The weak and inept were swept aside and the battle scarred survivors were two steps short of title fame tonight when the second round of the National Amateur Athletic union boxing championships was decided at Madison Square Garden.

From 5 o'clock in the afternoon until far into the night boxers from twenty states, the Hawaiian islands, and Canada battled for places in the quarter finals of eight classes. A crowd of 8,000 saw the bouts.

Three Chicagoans, two of them members of the Golden Gloves championship team, remained in the running. Nick Scialaba advanced in the 118 pound class by winning a three round decision from Robert Olivas of Reno, Cal. Tony Sutton, Chicago, was a survivor in the light heavyweight class. Don Gonzales of Cleveland, O., who also is a member of the Chicago Golden Gloves team, won a three round decision from Jiro Jato, Japanese member of the Hawaiian team. Davy Day, Chicago 126 pounder, scored his second victory in two days by defeating Mike Tardugno of Washington, D. C. Eddy Zivic of Pittsburgh was forced to go an extra round to win the decision over Ernest Tonnielli of Chicago.

N. Y. Boys Show Punch.

As the night wore on the teams representing Boston, New York, Cleveland and Chicago climbed into control.

In three out of four straight victories in the smaller classes the New Yorkers scored knockouts, while the Boston aggregation, made up of New England champions, stamped itself as the most capable squad, man for man, in the tourney that is being held outside of Boston for the first time in 26 years.

The New Englanders did not lose a man in the heavyweight, bantamweight, feather, and lightweight milling, and the star of the squad, Dick Madden, was not called into action, as the light heavyweights took a night off.

Half way through the night the heavyweights, needing only four bouts along with byes to qualify eight men for the quarter finals tomorrow night, were turned loose and sent the Garden into an uproar by turning in four spectacular battles, none of which lasted past the second round. Jack Pallet of Cleveland, the only defending champion in the tourney, drew a bye and was not called into action.

A 36 Second K. O.

Sharkey Bout Fails to Get Title Stamp

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera will fight 15 rounds at Ebbets' field, Brooklyn, June 10, legal entanglements and weather permitting, but it will not be for the New York state athletic commission's heavyweight championship of the world.

The commission today approved the proposed meeting but withheld title recognition.

The explanation given by Chairman James A. Farley was that no request had been made for title recognition. He said that the matter might be considered at a later date, leaving the way open for the commission to designate the winner as champion if it is desired.

Garden Threatens Suit.

James J. Johnson, promoter of the fight, now has only to worry about the threatened suit by Madison Square Garden, a subsidiary of which holds a contract with Carnera calling for him to meet the winner of the Schmeling-Young Stribling fight, scheduled for Cleveland, July 3.

The Garden already has notified all the interested parties it intends to seek legal protection of its contract, which it says, contains a clause barring Carnera from fighting for any one else.

"The commission is not concerned with any action that may be brought by the Garden," Farley said. "We do not become involved in situations where promoters hold contracts on only one-half of a match."

Denies Playing Politics.

The commission chairman also spoke heatedly concerning the published charge that politics had entered into the case and that Carnera had been reinstated and the match given to Johnson because of the latter's Tammany Hall connections.

Farley said the Garden was told last winter that if it would match Carnera and Sharkey the commission would reinstate the huge Italian hero and approve the match as for the heavyweight championship.

The commission issued an ultimatum to Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, ordering him to accept one of three challenges to his title, on file with the commission, or take the consequences, which would mean suspension. The three challenges are from Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, Joe Banovic of Binghamton, and Billy Jones of Philadelphia.

A cabled challenge for Tony Canzoneri's lightweight crown was received from Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight, who is en route to New York.

Herrmann Is Laid to Rest at Cincinnati

Cincinnati, O., April 28.—(AP)—August Garry Herrmann, whose baseball diplomacy cemented lasting friendship between the National and American leagues in 1903, was buried today.

John A. Heydler, president of the National league; John K. Tener, former governor of Pennsylvania and one time head of the older major circuit; Charles Stoneham, president of the New York Giants; William Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs; Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds; Dan Howley, Reds manager, and several Chicago and Cincinnati players were among baseball men who attended the funeral.

Funeral services were held in the Elks temple, of which organization Herrmann was a past grand exalted ruler. Bruce A. Campbell, East St. Louis, another past grand exalted ruler, delivered the fraternal eulogy. A Masonic Scottish rite ring service also was conducted.

The Rev. Hugo Eisenlohr, pastor of the First Protestant St. John's church, presided over religious services. Burial was in Vine street cemetery.

BILLY PETROLLE POSTPONES BOUT WITH M'LARNIN

The ten round match between Billy Petrolle and Jimmy McLarnin, scheduled for Madison Square Garden, New York, May 8, was indefinitely postponed last night because of Petrolle's illness with influenza.

Petrolle was stricken Monday and was forced to bed at his home in Duluth, Minn., his manager, Jack Hurley, announced here yesterday. Hurley advised Matchmaker Tom McArdle at New York, who said he would attempt to advance the Victorio Campolo-Tommy Loughran match from May 15 to May 8 as a substitute.

Fight Decisions

FLY CASTERS TO COMPETE SUNDAY AT LINCOLN PARK

Champions to Show Skill in Opening Meet.

BY BOB BECKER.

Tournament bait and fly casters in Chicagoland will swing into action this week with the first of a series of contests which will be climaxed in August when the national casting tournament is held in Washington park. The sport of "target shooting" with a whippy bamboo rod is one that has grown rapidly in the last few years in scores of cities throughout the United States. Inasmuch as this pastime is not only good fun but also helps the fishermen master the fine points of rod and reel work, beginners at fly or bait casting will find it helpful to spend some time at a casting pool.

Next Sunday the Lincoln Park Casting club of Chicago, which has its pool at Fullerton avenue and the drive, will hold the opening tournament of the season. The fly events will be held in the morning and the bait events in the afternoon.

Public Is Invited.

The public is invited to watch these contests and fishermen who want to get some lessons from the experts in this club will be taught without charge. The Chicago and Illinois casting clubs which have pools in Washington and Garfield parks also keep open house to visitors and are always ready to help beginners.

At Lincoln park Sunday a number of champions will be seen in action either in the morning or in the afternoon. Among those who will compete are: Edward Sutter of the Chicago Fly Casting club, the 1930 Illinois all round champion; Howard Chatt, Washington Park Casting club, the Illinois all round champion in 1929; Gordon Erickson of the Chicago Fly Casting club, champion in the wet fly event for 1930; Edward J. Davis of the Lincoln park club, who holds the national ⅝ ounce accuracy bait championship for the year and who will defend his title in this event Sunday; F. R. Steel, the Chicagoan who won the national championship in the dry fly in 1929 and the Illinois championship in 1930, and Bob Clarkson, who at present is the all round accuracy bait champion of the United States and holder of the world's record in the ⅝ ounce accuracy plug event.

Decide Title in August.

From now until the national championships in August will be a busy time for the tournament casters of Chicago, as much time will be put in practicing for the August contests which virtually represent a "world series" championship in the casting field.

Their colors form a symphony of all that's ultra-smart in patterns and design and they are specially woven wetproof without the use of rubber or wax, to put them in tune with your desire for an all-round topcoat that's fine rain or shine.

But it's not the most expensive. For all their hand-tailoring and sturdy, all-wool cheviots, the new low price for this Spring is $55.

Scotch Mist* golf caps, $4.

"YOU MUST KEEP YOUTH!"

LEW AYRES
Universal

"What type do I most admire?" asks Lew Ayres. "The type doesn't matter much—if she has that radiant charm I can't resist—youth.

"The lovely stage and screen stars know how vital to their charm youth is, and how to keep it. Hundreds of other women seem to know their complexion secret!"

JEANETTE LOFF

They use Lux Toilet Soap—and have for years. At their request, this fragrant, very white soap is in theaters everywhere—is official in all film studios.

Of the countless Hollywood, Broadway, European stars who use this soap, some have the skin that is inclined to dryness; some the skin that tends to be oily; some the in-between skin.

CARMEL MYERS

Whatever your type may be, you, too, will find Lux Toilet Soap perfect! The caress of delicate French soap, just 10c.

JOSEPH F. KELLY RITES FRIDAY; AD EXECUTIVE

Funeral services for Joseph F. Kelly, for many years a Chicago advertising executive, will be held at St. Joseph's church, Orleans and Hill streets, at 10 a. m. Friday. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Kelly, who was 59 years old, died suddenly in Atlantic City, N. J., on Monday. He came to Chicago from Philadelphia in 1912 and was connected with the Chicago Evening American until 1915, when he became associate advertising manager of the Chicago Daily News, a position he held until 1921. In that year he became a partner in the firm of Woodward & Kelly, publishers' representatives. Since Jan. 1, 1930, Mr. Kelly had resided in Cleveland, where he was advertising director of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MRS. KINLEY DIES IN CHINA; WIFE OF EDUCATOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 28.—Mrs. David Kinley, wife of a former president of the University of Illinois, died in the isolation hospital here early this morning following an attack of smallpox which she contracted in Peiping more than a week ago. Mr. Kinley will return to the United States immediately.

Death overtook Mrs. Kinley while she was accompanying her husband, who was acting as an "ambassador" for the Chicago Century of Progress exposition in 1933, on a tour of the orient. They arrived at Tokio on April 1 after a visit to Hawaii en route. The Kinleys stayed in Tokio ten days and then left for northern China.

Mrs. Kinley, the former Kate Ruth Neal of Mount Vernon, O., married Dr. Kinley on June 22, 1897, three years after the former president was made full professor of economics and dean of the graduate school of the University of Illinois. Two children survive, Janet Fraser Gregg, wife of John Robert Gregg of New York, and Harriet Louise Brooks, wife of Frederick A. Brooks of Chicago.

MRS. P. N. MOORE, WOMEN'S CLUBS LEADER, DIES

St. Louis, Mo., April 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Philip North Moore, 78, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs from 1908 to 1912, died at her home here late today from heart disease after three days illness. Her husband, a noted mining engineer, died in January, 1930.

Mrs. Moore had held offices in many organizations, including the presidency of the National Council of Women from 1916 to 1925, the executive committee of the League of Nations Nonpartisan association, and the superior jury of awards of the Louisiana Purchase exposition in 1904.

As secretary of the women's defense committee during the world war period, which handled much important correspondence and included the heads of twelve women's organizations, Mrs. Moore was nationally known in musical circles.

BEWARE OF THESE SYMPTOMS

HEADACHES. Dizziness. Loss of appetite and energy. These are the warning-signs of constipation.

When your system is clogged-up, poisons spread over the body and undermine health.

But you can overcome this condition safely and pleasantly. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. Guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking. ALL-BRAN supplies iron, as well, for the blood.

At all grocers, in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

U. S. STEEL FINDS HUGE SURPLUS COMES IN HANDY

Draws on It to Pay Regular Dividend.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The vast surplus piled up by the United States Steel corporation in prosperous years again has stood it in good stead. The directors yesterday maintained the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the common stock by dipping into that surplus to the extent of nearly $15,000,000. This recourse was made necessary by the fact that earnings for the first quarter of this year were the smallest since the third quarter of 1921, when the previous depression was in force.

That United States Steel can well afford to return to its stockholders in lean times some of the excess profits accumulated in prosperous periods is evident from its financial position. At the end of 1930 the corporation had a total surplus of $741,782,000, while its cash and marketable securities totaled $197,807,000. And even in last year's depression it more than earned its dividends.

Net Is $6,765,057.

Total earnings of United States Steel for the first quarter of this year were $10,464,836, compared with $23,083,791 in the last quarter of 1930 and with $40,615,397 in the first quarter of 1930. The current earnings were the smallest since the third quarter of 1921, when about $18,900,000 was earned.

Net income for the first quarter of this year was $6,765,057, which was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to only 5 cents a share on 8,687,427 common shares. Net income for the last quarter of 1930 was $10,080,352, or 69 cents a share, and for the first quarter of 1930 net income was $34,-991,868, or $3.44 a share.

The earnings statement came as a distinct disappointment to New York and Chicago financial circles, which had expectedd 25 to 50 cents a share would be earned on the common stock. However, there was mild consolation in the fact that total earnings rose from $6,118,411 in January to $6,155,-641 in February and to $7,190,877 in March. And while it was necessary for U. S. Steel to take $14,703,241 from surplus in order to pay dividends, it was recalled that it had surplus earnings of $18,891,675 in 1930, bad as that year was.

Two Reduce Dividends.

Two other steel companies reduced their dividends yesterday. The Inland Steel company declared a quarterly payment of 62½ cents, placing the stock on a $2.50 annual basis, compared with $4 previously paid. The Jones & Laughlin Steel company declared a quarterly payment of 50 cents, placing the common stock on a $2 annual basis, compared with $4 previously paid.

Inland Steel reported first quarter earnings of $633,873, or 52 cents a share, compared with $2,721,318, or $2.72 a share in the first quarter of 1930. Jones & Laughlin reported a net loss of $190,982 for the first quarter, compared with a net profit of $3,555,009, or $4.83 a share for the first quarter of 1930.

REVENUE FREIGHT LOADINGS FOR WEEK GAIN 22,068 CARS

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—Revenue freight loading for the week ended April 18 was announced today by the American Railway association as totaling 760,002 cars. This was an increase of 22,068 cars over the preceding week but was 132,704 cars under the corresponding week last year.

Oil Output Climbs.

New York, April 28.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 600 barrels in the week ended April 25, totaling 2,422,600 barrels, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 600 barrels to 1,894,500 barrels.

I. C. ON $4 BASIS

Another big railroad, the Illinois Central, reduced its dividend yesterday. In line with expectations, the directors declared a quarterly payment of $1 a share on the common stock, thereby placing it on a $4 annual basis, compared with $7 previously paid. This was the first reduction in 14 years and the lowest rate in 30 years. The rate was raised from $5 to $6 in 1901, increased to $7 in 1905, and varied from $5 to $6.50 during the war years.

Earnings of the Illinois Central, in common with other carriers, have declined sharply. Net railway operating income for March was $583,510, a decline of $1,487,493 from March, 1930, while the figure for the first quarter of this year was $1,096,852, a decline of $4,260,338 from the first quarter of 1930.

Studebaker Outlook.

One ray of cheer was a statement by A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, coincident with the declaration of the 30 cents quarterly dividend. He said the company probably will earn its dividend for the full year of 1931 and will come close to this during the first six months of this year, so the dividend is safe and will be maintained over the balance of the year.

March sales of Studebaker cars exceeded those of any month since September, 1929, Mr. Erskine said, adding that he expects April sales will be still better and that the outlook for the second quarter indicates a substantial gain in the company's business.

Armour & Co. Install Five Day Week at Kansas City

Kansas City, Kas., April 28.—(AP)—Armour & Co. officials today announced a 5 day week working schedule for the packing plant's 3,400 employes. They described the new program as an experiment, having in view economy and betterment of employment conditions.

Dry Weather Again Affects Grain Market

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While grain traders apparently have little hopes of the maintenance of bulges, at the same time they are not disposed to press the short side with wheat prices around the lowest level of the season. Sufficient short covering developed yesterday to bring about a fair upturn after an early dip, and the finish was at intermediate figures with new crop months ¼@¾c higher, July being 61¼c; September, 61c to 61⅛c, and December, 64⅝c to 64¾c. May was somewhat firmer at 81⅝c.

Continued dry weather in the American and Canadian northwest, which has been practically ignored by the trade for some days, was a factor in helping sustain values, and also had some effect on sentiment, which was somewhat less bullish. Reports that France had increased the amount of foreign wheat that millers were permitted to grind to 25 per cent, compared with 5 per cent earlier in the month, led to some buying and imparted a better undertone to Liverpool, as did the prospect Germany would lower the import duty.

Winnipeg at Premium.

As a result of the developments abroad it is expected that Europe will come into the market as a larger buyer of cash wheat, and this was reflected in the relative strength at Winnipeg, which closed ⅞@1¼c higher, with July at 62, the latter going to ⅞c over Chicago at the last, probably the largest premium in a number of months. Export sales of Canadian wheat for the day were estimated at 400,000 bu.

A better demand for cash wheat was reported abroad and Liverpool advanced 1@1¼d, with July at 66¾c. Houses with southwestern connections were fair sellers of the July delivery in the Chicago market and the northwest sold September, presumably reflecting spreading operations with Winnipeg. Russia is not regarded as likely to be a factor in the international wheat market the balance of the current crop season, and offerings from that country abroad are reported light.

Liquidation in Corn.

Liquidation was on again in May corn but it was orderly, and while priced dipped around 1c early to within a fraction of the lowest figures of the previous day, the close was on a rally of ¾c from the low point with nearly futures finishing ⅝@⅞c lower, while the December was ⅛c higher. May closed at 54⅝c to 54¾c; July, 56⅞c to 57c; September, 57½c to 57⅝c, and December, 51¼c to 51⅞c.

Shipping demand for cash oats was again in evidence, with sales of 136,-000 bu, and charters were made for 190,000 bu to Georgian Bay. Futures were somewhat firmer with a letup in the heavy selling of late and the finish was unchanged to ⅛c higher, with May, 26½c; July, 27¼c, and September, 28¾c.

Nominate Paul H. Davis to Head Chicago Stock Mart

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Paul H. Davis, head of the La Salle street brokerage firm bearing his name, has been nominated for the presidency of the Chicago Stock exchange to succeed R. Arthur Wood who will retire upon completion of his fourth term in June. Nomination is considered equivalent to election. The formal balloting by members will take place June 1.

PAUL H. DAVIS.

Mr. Davis who is 42 years old has been head of his own brokerage house since 1916. He has been a member of the exchange since 1920 and has served on the governing committee since 1926. At the present time he is vice president of the exchange.

Committee Picks Eight.

The nominating committee, headed by Gilbert Gross, which selected Mr. Davis, also picked eight nominees for the governing committee. Five of the nominees are now members of the governing board. The other three, Wentworth P. Mackenzie, Thomas F. Furness and Charles Swift, are named for the first time. Harold E. Foreman was renominated for treasurer.

The nominating committee for the coming year is composed of the following: Frederick N. Webster, chairman; Walter S. Aagaard, Earl D. Boorman, Louis C. Seaverns and R. Arthur Wood.

STOCKS UNEASY HERE

The Chicago market continued unsettled yesterday as dividend reductions were announced by two more large companies. The remote possibility that the United States Steel corporation rate might be reduced cast a shadow over the market and it was not until after the close that news of the favorable action was received.

The selling uncovered no particularly weak spots. Cities Service, however, broke to a new low on heavy liquidation.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Hartman corporation yesterday the proposition to reduce the outstanding B stock by retiring 64,879 shares of treasury stock was approved.

STEEL CO. KEEPS EATON ON BOARD; SEE SETTLEMENT

Youngstown, O., April 28.—(AP)—Cyrus S. Eaton and his associates who opposed the billion dollar Bethlehem Steel-Youngstown Sheet and Tube merger retained their positions in the Sheet and Tube organization tonight while reports on an early merger settlement were circulated.

At a stockholders' meeting, which lasted barely twenty minutes, Eaton and his associates, G. C. Brainard of Youngstown and Hugh B. Wick and S. Livingston Mather of Cleveland were reëlected members of the Sheet and Tube board. Fred Tod of Youngstown replaced on the board his brother John, who is in Europe.

After a meeting of the directors, which lasted two and a half hours, it was announced that all officers were reëlected including Eaton and Mather on the executive committee. No comment was made on the reports of a merger settlement.

The reëlection of Eaton and his associates was interpreted here as an indication of some form of a settlement of the merger battle. Dispatches from New York said it was stated in usually well informed quarters in Wall street that early settlement is expected.

West Virginia Smokeless Coal Cut to $1.75 a Ton

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The price of West Virginia smokeless coal has been reduced to $1.75 a ton from $2.00, f. o. b. mines, effective immediately, for May and June delivery.

ASSERTS FORD MOTOR WILL NOT REDUCE WAGES

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The Wall Street Journal, in a special dispatch from Detroit, today said there will be no deflation of labor by the Ford Motor company as an aftermath to the depression, nor are there likely to be any wage cuts by the many manufacturing concerns that are constantly employed on Ford work.

"Henry Ford absolutely refuses to consider or condone wage reductions," the Journal says. "He believes that if the general level of wages were reduced it would take 20 years for labor to get back. To prevent wage cuts on Ford work, Ford Motor company makes periodical inspection of its supply companies. Instances are rare where a purveyor has been willing to jeopardize a Ford account for the benefit that might be derived from a wage reduction."

Committee to Represent Pynchon & Co. Creditors

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—Formation of a committee to represent creditors of Pynchon & Co., brokerage firm, suspended from membership in the stock exchange, was announced today by White & Case, counsel for the committee. Eugene Leake, vice president of the Adams Express company, is chairman of the committee, and its other members are J. D. Tookar, Alexander Banks, and Charles W. Higby.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—There was a fresh crop of ugly rumors and a further run of unfavorable dividend announcements to keep speculative Wall street's raw nerves on edge today. The share market was given little respite from the selling pressure that has been upon it for these many weeks and a large part of the list broke through its previous low level for 1930-'31. Many industrials were forced back to the lowest points since 1926 and some of the long suffering rails fared even worse.

Distress selling and the alert activity of shorts uncovered many vulnerable spots in the list. Reports of large blocks of stock overhanging the market were fairly well substantiated by the action in selected issues.

Chemical Group Weak.

One of the weakest groups on the roster today was the chemical stocks. Allied Chemical and Dye yielded more than 10 points in the early trading and Air Reduction, Columbian Carbon and Du Pont were conspicuously heavy, the last named selling to a new low for the present shares. Allied and some of the others made up a portion of their losses during the course of the short lived rallies which enlivened trading at intervals in the afternoon. Withdrawal of the Nichols interests from the company's affairs at yesterday's meeting was popularly interpreted to mean that despite the talk of "short selling" of the stock which has been so rampant here of late a good part of the selling has probably represented actual liquidation.

Food Shares Under Pressure.

Another section to attract attention was the food shares, several of which have been notable for their resistance to selling pressure ever since the list turned downward after topping its February peak. Corn Products, General Foods, and Procter & Gamble, Borden & Co. and National Biscuit all found the going rough and were down from a fraction to 2 points most of the

Now Serving The Fourth Generation As Trustee

The well-being of more than eight thousand persons—heirs and beneficiaries of estates—is the accepted responsibility of this Bank. To every-day problems, the officers of the Trust Department bring human understanding. They give counsel to the widow when she seeks advice, their experience is helpful to the young man entering business, they aid in the selection of a school for a girl—in short, give sympathetic consideration to problems of the family. How well such duties are performed is evidenced by the fact that families this Bank has served during three generations are now naming it as guardian and trustee for the fourth generation

BUY 25 ACRES IN LYONS FOR FOREST RESERVE

Property at Kean Avenue and 87th Street.

BY AL CHASE.

Twenty-five acres of land in Lyons township were purchased yesterday by the forest preserve district of Cook county from the heirs of the Gertrude Simon estate, Maria R. Mildes and Catherine Lentes, for an indicated $35,320. The property is at the northwest corner of 87th street and Keane avenue. The improvements, consisting of a residence, etc., were valued at $1,700.

The four one story stores at the northwest corner of 53d street and Kimbark avenue, lot 80x80, were sold by Mary Pettibone Smith to William Wolf and Birdie W. Golby for an undisclosed consideration. Ringer, Wilbartz & Hirsch were attorneys.

The fifty-one apartment building at the southeast corner of Greenleaf and Glenwood avenues, lot 120x171, has been sold by Morris Seven to Samuel Weinberg.

Gives School Site to Village.

A. W. Komarek, of A. W. Komarek & Co., real estate, with offices in Cicero, Berwyn, and North Riverside, has presented a school site to the trustees of schools, township 39, in North Riverside. The property given the public by Mr. Komarek fronts an entire block on the north side of 24th street, extending from 12th to 13th avenue.

The village of North Riverside will vote in about thirty days on a proposed $25,000 bond issue, to finance the erection of a grade school on the site donated by Mr. Komarek. The property given is valued at between $10,000 and $15,000. Roos & Boeger were attorneys.

National Tea to Build.

The National Tea company purchased the 28x112 at 3768-70 North Clark street, from Anton Melin for an undisclosed consideration. The present old improvements will be wrecked and a brick one story store building erected at once. It will be completed in about sixty days and will be occupied by the owner with a chain store.

Construction is expected to get under way about June 1st on a new building for the F. W. Woolworth company at the southwest corner of Chicago and Ashland avenues. It will comprise at least two stories with foundations for additional floors. The site fronts fifty-four feet on Chicago avenue and 120 feet on Ashland avenue. The average annual rental is $15,268, which capitalized on a 5 per cent basis estbalishes a leasing value of $305,360, or $5,654 a front foot on Chicago avenue and about $47 per square foot.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 4,000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 8,000.

All classes of live stock were forced down in price on yesterday's session. Movement was slow in all branches of the trade, with closing sales on the bottom. Cattle receipts were excessive at most points, the total at 30 markets for the first two days of this week at 123,000 showing an increase of 39,000 head, or about 33 per cent. Supplies of hogs and sheep for the two days show a decrease, although offerings yesterday were large for Tuesday.

The extreme top price of hogs dropped 15c at $7.50, while the general average moved down 15c at 10:30, these prices comparing with a top of $7.35 and average of $6.85 at the close of last week. Most of Monday's gains have been erased. Narrower demand for fresh pork loins at slight declines limited the buying power of some of the smaller local packers, but eastern demand has picked up during the last two days.

September Hogs Bring $8.

Medium weight hogs for September delivery were sold on the futures market at $8.00 yesterday. May mediums were offered at $7.75 and bid $7.25, and heavy grades for next September were offered at $8.25 and bid $8.00. May and June light were offered at $7.60, with bids for June light at $7.50. On the "to arrive" market light weights for today's delivery carried bids of $7.40. Hogs averaging 210@260 lbs for today were bid $7.00 and heavy grades averaging 260@310 lbs were bid $6.80.

Cattle prices took another dip yesterday and were near the season's bottom late in the afternoon, when a fair proportion of the supply was still in first hands. Only a few sales were made during the first rounds of trading. Fancy yearling steers averaging 980 lbs held the top price up to $9.75, but very few cattle were eligible to more than $9.00.

Top Lambs Steady.

Best grades of fat lambs held steady at the opening, while bulk of other classes were off 10@15c in midsession and later. Colorado wool lambs topped the list at $10.00 to city butchers and shippers, while packers took most medium weights at $9.50@9.75, paying the outside figure for 97 lb averages. Prime 99 lb lambs brought $9.25. Shorn lambs sold at $8.00@9.00, plain quality Texas stock at the inside figure.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady today, closing unchanged to 25 points higher, except May, which was 2 points lower. Sales totaled 3,100 barrels. Crude oil was 6½c nominal in the southeast and valley and nominal in Texas. Prime crude 6.50c. Closing prices: Bleachable: Spot, 7.40c; May, 7.50c; July, 7.63c; September, 7.77c; December, 7.90c. Prime summer yellow oil was neglected, with closing prices ranging from 5 points decline to 5 advance, with spot, 7.25c; May, 7.35c; July, 7.45c; September, 7.55c; December, 7.60c.

COMMONWEALTH & SO. PLACES DIVIDEND ON 40 CENT ANNUAL BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—Commonwealth & Southern corporation directors placed the common stock on a 40 cent annual basis, against 60 cents previously, by declaring a quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share.

The United corporation, as one of the largest individual holders of Commonwealth & Southern common stock, will feel an income reduction of about $360,000 a year as the result of the dividend reduction. United Corporation's holdings as of March 6 were 1,798,270 shares. Another large holder of Commonwealth & Southern common stock issued is United Gas Improvement, with 975,447 shares. American Superpower, the Bonnbright Utility Holding company, and Electric Bond & Share are also holders of substantial amounts. Though the exact figures have not been disclosed, U. G. I.'s return on Commonwealth will be reduced by about $195,000, or something less than a cent a share on its outstanding stock.

COMMUNITY WATER SYSTEM

Community Water Service Company

A quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share has been declared upon the $7 Cumulative First Preferred Stock of this Company, payable June 1, 1931, to stockholders of record at the close of business May 20, 1931.

PROVISIONS LOWER

Scattered buying caused a small advance in lard early, but the recent short covering had weakened the technical position. Later the market weakened on scattered selling in sympathy with a decline of 10@25c in hog prices at the yards and lard closed 7½c lower. Bellies were neglected but were off 5@7½c at the last. Liverpool lard advanced 6@9d. Exports from the seaboard aggregated 1,200,000 lbs lard and 348,000 lbs meats. Prices follow:

AGAIN DEFAULT ON DEBT OF NEW SOUTH WALES

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

CANBERRA, Australia, April 28.—J. T. Lang, the extremist premier of New South Wales' Laborite state government, has again defaulted on the state's international debt, this time—the second occasion within two months—extending the scope of the repudiation to New York, as well as London.

The commonwealth government, however, will meet these interest payments promptly as they fall due under the financial agreement whereby the commonwealth government guarantees the debts of states to foreign bondholders.

Up to May 1 the balance due by New South Wales to the commonwealth will be roughly $7,950,000. The interest payments fall due on Friday on the New South Wales 5½ per cent debentures, 1922-'32, and on the New South Wales 5½ per cent 5 per cent inscribed stocks. The amount of interest is $3,250,000.

Pass Bank Bill.

Sydney, N. S. W., April 28.—(AP)—The New South Wales government bank amendment bill today passed all stages in both houses and becomes a law immediately. The bill provides for absorption of the New South Wales Savings bank, which was closed last week, by the Commonwealth Savings bank. Premier Lang said that depositors would be fully guaranteed by the government against any loss.

Elect Cortelyou Jr. Head of Distributors Group

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—George B. Cortelyou Jr. was elected president of Distributors Group, Inc., sponsor and national distributor of North American Trust Shares, at the quarterly meeting of the directors of the company today. M. Cortelyou succeeds W. W. Watson, who resigned. Three new directors were also elected: Allen Hubbard, Thomas McGowan, and J. Henry Knapp Jr. A report read at the meeting stated that sales of North American Trust shares during the three months ended March 31 showed a substantial increase over the last three months of 1930 and a 38 per cent increase over the first three months of last year.

GENERAL ELECTRIC MAY RETIRE LARGE BLOCK OF $10 STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—The General Electric company may decide to retire its "special stock," a $10 par preferred issue returning 6 per cent and outstanding in the amount of $42,929,635, to save the comparatively high rate being paid and to reduce its capital, it was reported in Wall street today.

The issue is callable on any dividend date on ninety days' notice at $11 a share. Retirement of the stock would require an outlay of $47,222,598, which the company could easily make in view of its cash, totaling $141,717,851, at the end of 1930. It would still have approximately $95,000,000 in reserves.

Elimination of the special stock would leave only a small funded debt of $2,047,000 of 3½ per cent debenture bonds, due in 1942, ahead of the common stock.

E. R. SQUIBB & CO. PROFIT FOR YEAR IS $1,571,648

The five day week plan adopted by E. R. Squibb & Co. last year resulted in greater production efficiency, Carleton H. Palmer, president, says in his annual report to stockholders.

The company reported net profits for 1930 of $1,571,648, which are not comparable with the 1929 earnings because of changes made during the year in the corporate organization. The company expenditures for advertising amounting to $3,182,470 were the largest in the company's history.

President Palmer pointed out that the company's policy last year included the adoption of a profit sharing plan with retailers, maintenance of existing wages, an employment guarantee to all workers and a vigorous advertising program.

Name Olsen Delegate to London Grain Conference

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—One of the United States representatives at the international wheat conference opening in London May 19 will be Nils A. Olsen, chief of the agriculture department bureau of economics. Another delegate soon will be chosen to represent the farm board.

Announcement of Olsen's appointment followed today's cabinet meeting, at which President Hoover and Secretary Hyde considered the wheat topic. It developed later also that the agriculture secretary may visit Europe in the not distant future.

USED CAR SALES
BECAUSE OUR PRICES
ARE THE LOWEST!

Studebaker Sales Co. is now running a PROSPERITY SALE! In the face of conditions, our business is better than ever. The reason is, we cut our prices drastically to meet the present situation. The public realizes this, and the result is our showroom is always crowded.

Why not drop in and investigate our remarkable bargains? The famous Studebaker Used Car Pledge protects you, no matter what you buy.

STUDEBAKER COACH, 5si. 6 that's exceptionally clean throughout. Has a sweet running motor and many extras. $95.

NASH SEDAN. Adv. 6 that looks and runs best; more than many cars selling for three times the price. 4 whl. brakes and many extras. $95.

PAIGE COACH. Considering the fine condition of the exterior and interior and the fact that the motor runs smoothly, this Paige is an exceptional bargain at our price. Has 4 whl. brakes and many extras. $95.

ESSEX COACH. We recommend this as one of our very best buys. The appearance is attractive, and the motor runs fine. $95.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. Big Six 7 pass. that's an ideal car for the family. Every feature is in dandy all-around condition, and there are many valuable extras. $145.

FRANKLIN SEDAN. It's in wonderful shape today, for the former owner only used evenings and Sundays for pleasure driving. Has excellent tires and a wealth of extras. $285.

JORDAN 8 SEDAN. Was checked over by our expert mechanics and now it's in topnotch condition. The appearance is beautiful and the tires have little mileage. Many extras. $285.

CHEVROLET COACH. 1929 with very low mileage. A thorough inspection and demonstration will convince you that this Chevy, stock, bargain; rent $35. 153 W. 75th-st. is unusually clean. Motor is unusually smooth. Will not remain long at our price of $345.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN. Late model that's exceptionally clean throughout. Examine this car from bumper to bumper, and you'll find that every detail is in wonderful condition. Motor is A-1 and the price is out of keeping with the high quality of this car. $385.

ESSEX SEDAN. 1929 that never left the Chicago blvds. This car is a beauty. The finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery looks new. Has 6-wheel, running motor. Equipped with shutter front, shock absorbers, bumpers, etc. $395.

PLYMOUTH SEDAN. One of the very latest models that was only driven a few thousand miles. It's the last word for beautiful appearance and good performance. A remarkable value at $395.

STUDEBAKER COMMANDER. Late model 5 pass. Sedan that was oiled and greased every 500 miles, so it's in topnotch condition today. The motor was carefully checked and now is in mainly A-1. Has every essential extra. $450.
